Since the outbreak of war the Credit Unions of Quebec have experienced perhaps the greatest expansion among the various types of cooperations which prevail in From some 1200 in 1939, these have grown to somewhere around 1800. Wartime regulations forbidding opening of new business places or expansion of those already estab-lished have been a serious check on cooperatives, but taking over of privately owned stores has substantially increased their numbers. The trend in this direction has been greatest in Western Canada, it is reported. In the Maritimes, while expansion is curtailed, interest in study clubs has been maintained, and it is anticipated that with the lifting of restrictions the coopera-tive movement will go ahead rapid-

About five million bushels of corn is used annually by the starch industry in Canada. Since the outbreak of war large quantities of Canadian-grown corn have replaced that formerly imported. The starch companies have found Canadian corn of good quality quite suitable for their purpose, says F. Dim-mock, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Good quality corn, he points out, means that it is well matured, naturally dried, high ni starch and low in moisture. With

The urgent need for horsehair is stressed by L. S. Hewes, director of brushes for Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He asks that farmers gather up all the supplies they can get and sell to dealers promptly. Horsehair is used to make gun-well as by patching up cuts and breaks. Agricultural engineers sugget that farmers take advan-tage of this since material for the purpose is still available. Sprouting of potatoes for a few weeks before planting time has been found helpful in obtaining extra-early mature potatoes. An early variety such as Ir '1 Cobbler is-re-commended by Experimental Farm perts. Disinfect the tubers, then place them in shallow boxes, bud are sprouted, dry sand can be used to fill in around the tubers so as to cover them slightly, and then kept moist until the seed is plant-ed).
