'Bullet-Proof' Tire

It was announced a few days ago that the British 'bullet-proof' tire is in wide use in Normandy. The tire is being manufactured in Britain and in America, to a British design made available to the United States under reverse license.

It is not actually bullet-proof. There is no such thing as a bullet-proof tire, but by reinforcing the walls, providing an inner ring and strengthening the inner ring, a tire can run for 40 miles before it is completely ruined. The new tire when flat can carry the weight of a vehicle without slipping.

The bullet-proof tire was preceded by another British invention which made the difference between victory and defeat in North Africa—a combination of cross-country and sand tires, which prevented vehicles from bogging down in the desert. It was designed on the camel theory: a camel crossing the desert sinks into the sand much less than any other animal. This is due to the fact that the area of a camel's foot is greater in proportion to his weight than that of other animals, and also has a specialized structure.

Bullets Will Make Huns Understand

There is sound logic in the statement of Ilya Ehrenburg, one of Russia's foremost authors, that no matter what is happening inside the Reich, Germany's fate will be decided on the battlefield by her enemies and not at home by her generals.

"Hitleric Germany will be driven to her knees not by insurgent officers but by ourselves and our Allies," Ehrenburg wrote in the Moscow press.

"We don't trust the Germans, neither the intelligentsia nor the silly one, neither the blind nor those who have recovered their sight. We trust our tanks and our troops. Our troops move faster than the conscience of the Fritzies. It is to be expected that the Germans will understand everything when we reach the gates of Berlin."

RED COMMANDER

Gen. Ivan Chernykhovskiy, commander of the Third Belorussian Front, led his Red forces into Germany proper when he crossed the border of East Prussia, land of the Junkers estates. East Prussia is threatened with isolation by Russian troops smashing to the coast—to the south through Warsaw and to the north through Lithuania.

HOT SPOTS, COMING UP

Where and when hard-driving U. S. naval forces in the Pacific will strike next is the $64 question Japan's new high command is wrestling with. It is expected that the U. S. will use them up on the three areas circled above, which are now well within bomber and tank force range.

THE WAR - WEEK - Commentary on Current Events

Germany Cannot Win But Allies Must Not Underestimate Enemy

The end of the war in Europe can come through hopeless defeat of German armies in the field; it may come through a crushing of home-front support; or through a combination of the two, comments The Christian Science Monitor.

As in 1940 The American break-through in Normandy is comparable to the German penetration at Sedan on May 14, 1940. The Germans were able to advance about 25 miles a day, accomplishing supply-line wonders. Paris fell to them in just 30 days.

Will the Anglo-American forces better this record? It is possible, if the French Underground is no doubt hampering German movements. Moreover, the German determination to hold on to the robot-launching area is likely to lead to further military blunders, which

Quiet, Please

Here is a delightful story, taken from a recent issue of the Belgian secret paper L'Alouette. A young man called Bebert was called up for compulsory labor service. His uncle, a keeper at a Zoo at Antwerp, enabled him to go into hiding by disguising him as an orang-utan. One day his mother came to see him. Bebert was delighted, and jumped about on his trapeze to show how well he had learned his part. Suddenly he fell into the next cage, where two lions were prowling up and down. Bebert's mother yelped with terror. At first the lions took no notice. Then one of them came up to the bars and said: "For goodness sake be quiet, Madame. Do you want to give the whole lot of us away?"

West To Have Best Crop In Years

"The West is going to have one of the best general crops it has had in years," said D. C. Coleman, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on his return to Montreal from an inspection trip over a large section of the company's Western lines.

To Mr. Coleman's eyes the West never looked better. Consistent gains throughout nearly all of the grain-growing districts have brought both crops and pasture lands to the peak. With plenty of feed, the livestock population is on the increase and cattle and hogs are contributing greater wealth to Western agrarian economy.

RAF ROCKETER

Man-sized is the name for rockets used by RAF Rocketers. Two in photo above are displayed by leading aircraftman R. E. Atkins.
