Death From Wounds Is Greatly Reduced

The rate of death from combat wounds in this war has been reduced to little more than half what it was in the First Great War, Major General Albert W. Kenner, chief Army Supreme Headquarters medical officer, said recently.

He said this was accomplished through 45 to 50 percent of the injuries in this war were due to high explosive artillery and mortar fire. In the First Great War 60 percent of the casualties were caused by small arms fire. The mortality rate from battle wounds is running under four percent, of the total injuries. In the last war it was from seven to eight percent. Even among cases which would have been considered hopeless in the last war, many now are being saved through use of adequate equipment, and because of specialized surgery, the speed of the jeep and the transport plane in moving the wounded back, and the benefits of sulfa drugs and penicillin.

During the last war, 60 percent of the battle casualties developed infection. In this war the rate is less than 10 percent.

THE LADY QUILTS

Outspoken, Virginia-born Lady Astor, above, first woman to sit in British Parliament, will retire at expiration of her current term next year from now, she revealed in London on the 28th anniversary of day she first took seat.

Churchill 'Settles' That Son-In-Law

This is a London story which is being credited to Vic Oliver, who has a sense of humor. Oliver, allied with his father-in-law, Winston Churchill, "Pop," he asked the Prime Minister who dislikes being addressed as pop, "If you had to be a dictator, which of the dictators would you rather be?" "I'd prefer to be Mussolini," said Churchill. "But why Mussolini?" asked his son-in-law. "Mussolini is the weakest, was the first to succumb and now he lives only by the grace of Hitler." "Mussolini," said Churchill, "is the only man I know who could have his back stomach, his neck, his son-in-law shot and get away with it."

'When In Rome' . . .

A navy officer learned that in Rome it is best to do as the Romans do—and that is to keep hands off somebody else's fight. He came out of a store in Rome and found two Italians fighting at the curb. One was big; the other was small.

The officer went to the rescue of the small chap and sent the big one on his way. The small fellow shouted his thanks and ran down the street.

The officer smiled with the happiness of a man who has done a good deed. Then an Italian bystander stepped up to him and explained.

The big fellow had been beating up the small one because the small one was stealing articles from the navy officer's jeep.

City Of Aberdeen Bombed 32 Times

"The Granite City" Most Bombed Area of Scotland

Interesting revelations have been made regarding the bombing of Scotland by the Germans, and it is surprising to learn that the most bombed city is Aberdeen, which has suffered 32 raids, some of them very severe, comments The Strathford Beacon-Herald. Next come Glasgow and Peterhead, also in Aberdeenshire with 23 attacks each. No other municipality had more than about one-third as many raids as Aberdeen. Edinburgh coming next with 12, although the naval base of Rosyth and the Forth bridge, a few miles away, were among the earliest targets of the war.

It would be interesting to learn why the Germans picked on the city of Aberdeen and the towns of Fraserburgh and Peterhead. The "Granite City" has a population of 170,000; Peterhead about 14,000 and Fraserburgh 10,000. Aberdeen and Glasgow are each 600 miles from the nearest German air bases in Holland, and Glasgow is a much more valuable objective from the German point of view than all the Aberdeenshire ports put together. The Clyde being perhaps the greatest shipbuilding centre in the world. The Aberdeenshire ports have shipbuilding yards, and they also furnish a very large proportion of the minesweepers of the country. Being entirely both granite, the city of Aberdeen could stand a good deal of knocking about.

The Aberdonians may wonder why the Germans bombed them more than any other area of Scotland. Maybe they look upon it as a compliment, because it is the headquarters of the toughest of all the Scottish regiments—the Gordon Highlanders.

Animals In Zoo Miss The Children

The flying bomb evacuation of children from London has had a noticeable effect on the zoo.

Whereas the crowds of children used to collect to stare at the animals, the animals now rush to get a look at the children, Britain Magazine relates.

VOICE OF THE PRESS

A FOOT- FELT GIFT!

A soldier in a fushole on a Pacific island gave his profane vocabulary a complete workout the other day when he received as a present from his sweetheart a pair of felt bedroom slippers.

'Don't Be Afraid, Sis'

Apparently as fit as a fiddle in the presence of a snake as the most womanly Army nurse, is reassured by the firm grip the Allied soldier takes on her wrist as the pair watch an Indian snake charmer do his stuff in a Bombay street.

'Thunderer' Pries 50,000th Daily

The Times, of London, is published its 50,000th issue—never having missed a day since its first issue on Jan. 1, 1785.

The famed daily first appeared as the single-sheet Daily Register when the first William Pitt was Prime Minister. Three years later, it was named the Times and, as far as 1829, its editorials were the nickname of "The Thunderer." It is not published Sundays.
