Hydro Preparing Post-War Program

Service To Be Extended To Additional 5,000 Farms In Ontario

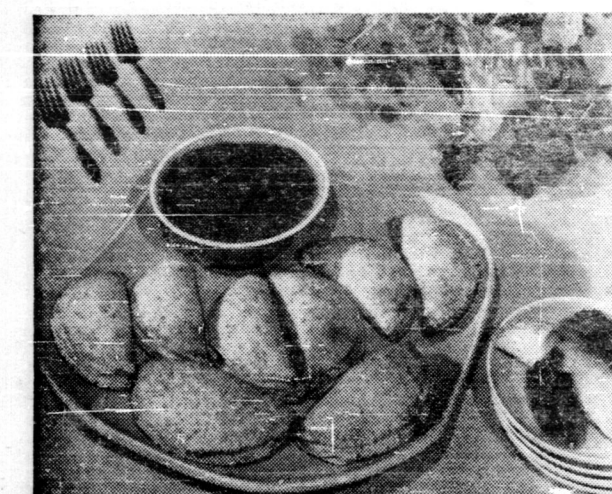

Rural Ontario will provide an annual market for about $4,000,000 worth of electrical appliances and equipment and necessary materials after the war ends, Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman, Ontario Hydro Power Commission, stated last week.

Hydro is already preparing its post-war program of rural electrification, and representations have already been made to the Federal Metals Controller to release additional materials during the present year.

If this request is granted, the Commission hopes to extend service on existing rural lines and add new short extensions making Hydro available to an additional 5,000 to 6,000 farms, thus affording protection for the war. The plan calls for construction of 800 miles of line.

Two Advantages Under the new rate structure to rural users, Dr. Hogg states 97 per cent of rural consumers have received reductions in cost of electricity. Existing consumers on farms are using an average of only 12½ per cent of electricity they might consume. Dr. Hogg said there are two basic advantages to be enjoyed by using electricity to a greater extent on the farms.

Old Favorites in a New Delight

In All-Bran Prune Turnovers, juicy prunes are hidden away in a crunchy coat of bran pastry. The result is a glamor dessert from two foods which may be found on almost any pantry shelf!

ALL-BRAN PRUNE TURNOVERS
1½ cups All-Bran (more or less)
¾ cup flour (sifted)
¾ cup shortening
1½ cups sweetened, chopped, cooked prunes
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Roll All-Bran until fine and combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out lightly floured board to about one-eighth inch in thickness. Cut into rounds (5 inches in diameter) with cutter. On half of round place a spoonful of chopped prunes which have been only partially drained. Put a dot of butter on top. Moisten edge of dough. Fold other half over to cover prunes and crimp down edges, using a fork or pastry crimper. Brush with milk and place on a greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (425 F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot or cold with cream if desired.
Yield: 6 turnovers.

"MONTY" INSPECTS RUINS OF CHURCH

General Sir Bernard Montgomery is shown here amid the ruins of an Italian church in Fossalta.

First is an increase in production with a minimum of farm help, and second, farmers can make their farms more comfortable and convenient places on which to live by installing not only a water pumping system but modern household appliances and equipment.

Dr. Hogg emphasized the interdependence between industrial labor and the farmer. In post-war days there must be recognition of the fact that industrial workers and farmers are equally important to the stability of our economic system.

A Reading Course For Winter Months

In 1939 William Lyon Phelps listed what in his opinion were the "best books in the world": The Bible, Homer's "Odyssey," Dante's "Divine Comedy," "On the Nature of Things" by Lucretius, "David Copperfield," Hugo's "Les Misérables," Virgil's "Aeneid," Milton's poems and Shakespeare's plays. How many of us have read them? If Winston Churchill is a master of the English language it is because he is intimate with the best in English literature, says Mrs. Leithbridge Harbord. How would it be if we took Phelps' best books as a reading course for the winter months?

Dessert Sauces

Sauces add zest to most desserts and add vitamins and extra nourishment to o.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup boiling water
1 egg
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
Dash of nutmeg
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon salt
Mix cornstarch, sugar, egg, lemon, nutmeg and salt in top of double boiler. Add eggs beaten. Pour in the boiling water slowly, and cook until thick and clear. Add butter and beat for a few minutes.

If you wish you may caramelize the brown sugar. This sauce is delicious with spice cake or fruit puddings.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

February 12
JESUS ON THE MOUNTAIN AND IN THE VALLEY
Mark 9: 2-29

GOLDEN TEXT — I believe; thou shalt mine abide. Mark 9: 24.
Memory Verse: God... careth for you 1 Peter 5: 7.

Place — The transfiguration took place on Mt. Hermon, far in the north of Palestine, the healing of the demon — possessed boy took place near the southern foot of this mountain.

The Invited Three
"And after six days Jesus took with him, Peter, and James, and John, and brought them up into a high mountain, apart by themselves. And he was transfigured before them: His face shined like the sun, and his clothes were as white as snow. And, behold, there appeared unto them Elijah and Moses: and they were talking with Jesus."

The Transfigured Lord
"And there came a cloud over them, and a voice out of the cloud, saying, 'This is my beloved Son: hear ye him.' And suddenly they were alone."

Christ's Healing Power
"And when Jesus saw that a multitude came running together... But Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him up, and he arose."

Christ's words center more into him shows the completeness of the miracle and Christ's care for the future of this youth. In the grip of Christ there was power, healing power. The weak, exhausted had found himself possessed with new life and vitality when his hand was grasped by Christ. He was lifted; but even as he was lifted he found himself able to rise with the new strength which had entered into him.

The Colonel's Lady
By Helen Montgomery

"There may be girls nowadays who feel poorly equipped to cope with Army life, but I am a little vain of my position of Most Honourable Army Wife of All Time, and I have no notion of giving it up without a fight."

This is the way the Colonel's Lady, Helen Montgomery (Jones) begins her story of life as an Army wife; the most amusing book we have seen in many years.

Married in 1924, when Lieutenant Jones was just graduated from West Point, they spent a short time at their first army post in the United States and then sailed for China. Despite domestic crises precipitated by their lack of knowledge of the Chinese language — on one occasion they were served "fried eggs and cream cheese" instead of "fried legs and green peas" — they were enchanted with the land and its people.

After their return to America the Jones were moved from one post to another, struggling always to make a Lieutenant's pay do for themselves and their three children. In 1935 the tide turned. Lieutenant Jones became Captain Jones and they started up the ladder that has ended in a Colonelcy.

Battling Basutos

Basutos who are greatly esteemed as fighting men in the African army, have one big "defect" which will trouble the military men greatly. They actually love drilling so much that they do it in their spare time as amusement.

The result is that, to find suitable punishment for minor delinquencies, C.O.'s have solemnly to forbid the offenders to take part in any drills, regular, extra or voluntary. It sounds very odd, but the fact is officially vouched for.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

If this war teaches us anything at all it certainly should make us realize how interdependent every country, every race, every industry and every individual is upon the rest of the world. It is true from the highest to the lowest. No man or nation can live unto himself alone. We find evidence of that every day in the news, on the farm, on the battlefield, on the sea. And so often it is the little things that count — little people, little jobs and little boats. Yes, especially little boats.

Do you remember the scene in "Mrs. Miniver" where the little boats rescued the men from Dunkirk? Little boats — not little ships or destroyers, but small, unimportant pleasure yachts and fishing smacks. And do you realize how dependent we still are upon the little boats for the safety of our loved ones and for the shipment of everything they need on the battlefield. No, it isn't the little boats that carry the men and supplies, but it is the little boats that make it possible for the bigger boats to ride the seas with their precious cargoes.

All these thoughts have come to me as a result of some verses I received last week. They were sent by a reader of the column who, apparently, wishes to remain anonymous. Here is the poem:

bombing and shelling. Sometimes the bomb is aimed to bounce on the water and ricochet into the ship's side, and sometimes the bomb is dropped earlier so that it bounces, falls into the sea and strikes the target below the water line. In a third method, the bomb is released at a higher level close to the ship to strike before a vertical dropping position is attained. At Pantelleria low-flying planes skipped bombs into caves which were used as underground hideouts.

The Husky

The husky is a dog native to northern North America from Alaska to Labrador. He is usually wolf-gray in color (indeed, he has some wolf blood in him) and is much used for a draft and pack animal.

The name husky is said to be derived from an Algonquin Indian word for eskimo. In the early days the white missionaries called the Labrador natives "huskewas," a form of the word eskimaw. Curiously enough, the name husky was first applied to the natives themselves and only later on came to be identified with the eskimo dogs.
