OTTAWA REPORTS

That, Because of War's Demands, Canadian Gasoline Ration Will Probably Be Cut

If the invasion develops into a long, drawn-out struggle, it is likely that Canadians will have to get along with less gasoline, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions, told the House of Commons recently. Referring to the demands made by war on gasoline production, Mr. Howe said it required 2,000 gallons of fuel to move an armored division one mile. A fleet of 5,000 bombers and escort fighters raiding Germany uses up some 8,250,000 gallons of aviation gasoline.

Richmond Hill, 15 miles from Ottawa, and Vankleek Hill, Ontario, are among centres holding centenary celebrations of agricultural fairs this year. The Vankleek Hill Fair started in 1844 under the name of the County of Prescott Agricultural Society when English currency was still in use in Canada. The first feature of the centenary program took place recently with the planting of evergreen trees in the fair grounds.

The first organized agricultural fair in Canada was held at Windsor, N.S., in 1765, and at Pictou, N.S., the first fair was held 127 years ago.

Because of reduced supplies of steel available for civilian use, Wartime Prices a 1 Trade Board has prohibited the use of metal eavestrough and conductor pipe except for repair and maintenance. Sales of hot air furnaces have been frozen and these can be obtained only through applications approved by Board representatives. Because of fir shortages, sale of wooden extension ladders over 7 feet in height are prohibited except under permit. Board officers explain that fruit growers and other farmers who need ladders will be given the utmost consideration when they apply for a purchase permit.

Ceiling prices for honey in a new WPTB order gives producers a higher return for No. 1 white honey than for other grades. In sales of bulk honey at wholesale price, the difference is one cent a pound, with No. 1 white honey priced half a cent higher than last year's maximum price for non-pasteurized honey. Canadian-grown cherries have been put under a price ceiling for the first time.

The Chemistry Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has made exacting tests to prove that hay cut early is much more nutritious than when cut late. Red clover cut when 50% in bloom was found to contain 26% more protein, 7% more calcium and 4% more phosphorous than red clover with 80% of the heads turned brown. Timothy well headed out had 45% more protein, 8% more calcium and 40% more phosphorous than timothy in full bloom. Alfalfa when 5% in bloom contained 19% more protein, about the same amount of calcium, and 8% more phosphorous than alfalfa cut when just past full bloom. Dr. T. M. Stevenson, head of the Forage Crops Division, Central Experimental Farm, says that when alfalfa is cut at the right time the stems make up about half the weight of the hay and the leaves the other half, but about 70% of the protein in alfalfa is in the leaves. To save the leaves, he says, "Don't let the sun go down on the hay in the swath . . . get it into windrows."

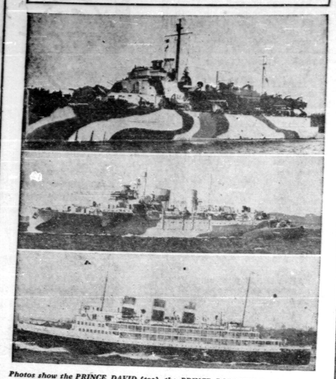
Total tonnage of Canadian coins struck in 1943 amounted to more than 1,050 tons, an increase of 400 tons over any previous year, according to the 1943 report of the Royal Mint tabled in the House of Commons by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance. Average output was three million coins a week. The coining division operated on a 24-hour day, seven-day week schedule for the major part of the year.

Famous Sister Ships in Invasion Fleet



Photos show the PRINCE DAVID (top), the PRINCE ROBERT (centre), and the PRINCE HENRY (bottom) photographed before her conversion for war service

THREE Canadian ships in the armada carrying allied troops to breach Hitler's Atlantic wall were originally designed for holiday traffic with no thought of grim business on the Normandy Coast. The Prince Henry, Prince David and Prince Robert were built for the Canadian National Steamships at Birkenhead, England. In the Pacific Coast service and in Atlantic waters each of these three sister ships covered great distances and carried many holiday travellers until 1939 when taken over by the Royal Canadian Navy. The H.M.C.S. Prince Robert became an anti-aircraft cruiser while the other two were redesigned as combined operations cruisers.

Press despatches from the front reported that the Prince Henry was one of the first ships to land troops in France while the Prince David also launched her landing craft in the early stages of the attack, and the Prince Robert was an important unit of the protective fleet.

While Canadian National Steamships officers had no thought of war when specifying the type of ship required, they did ask for power and speed and thus, unknowingly, provided the basis for useful cruisers. The builders installed high pressure boilers feeding steam turbines to develop 16,000 horsepower and a top speed of 23 knots. The purpose was to maintain an exacting schedule.

The Prince ships were designed for 334 first cabin passengers with deck space for 1,500 day passengers. When launched these ships were each of 6,000 tons. In war dress their top decks, which carried much of the cabin accommodation, were dismantled.

H.M.C.S. Prince Robert has been more frequently in the news than her Canadian National sisters, early capturing a rich prize in the Pacific, and afterwards staging a fierce battle against enemy aircraft while guarding a convoy in the Atlantic.

These ships sailed to the Land of the Midnight Sun but no Alaskan adventure imagined by Jack London, Robert Service or Rex Beach approached that recent action off the Coast of Normandy.

Bill has been associated with the agency since his graduation from Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto until four years ago when he enlisted. Prior to the war he was executive assistant in the agency's Montreal office.

'Invasion Bank' Taken To France

The army took its own amphibious "invasion bank" to France. It came in waterproofed cash boxes filled with 4,750,000 francs (approximately $95,000), a lorry, two tents and three men. A spokesman said "this is real, genuine French money brought from the Bank of France before the collapse we are circulating again."

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I wash feather pillows?

A. Boil for 15 minutes in a boiler of water softened with one-third cupful borax and one tablespoonful ammonia. Do not use soap nor soda. Lift out, lay on the washboard and scrub with a stiff brush dipped in heavy suds. Rinse in two waters, squeeze as dry as possible, shake thoroughly and pin to a line in the shade. Shake and turn several times daily. It may take a few days to dry them thoroughly.

Q. How can I remove rust from white materials?

A. Rub the juice of a freshly cut lemon on the stain, hold the material over a steaming kettle, and repeat until the stains disappear.

Q. How can I get rid of ant hills in my lawn?

A. These are usually black ants. If you can reach the ant hill directly, saturate it with kerosene or boiling water.

Q. How can I remove coffee stains from fabric?

A. When the stains are fresh pour boiling water through them, or rub with glycerin and wash in lukewarm water. If the stains are old and dry, apply javelle water and as soon as the stain disappears soak the place in ammonia and water to prevent damage to the material.

Q. How can I wash gloves so that the skin will not harden?

A. Wash in lukewarm soapsuds and rinse in the same temperature water. Dry on glove stretchers, pulling and stretching the gloves as they begin to dry.

The word "curfew" comes from the French couvre-feu, meaning "put out the fire."

British Bakery Unit Praised By Yanks

Front-line American Army bakers, armed with bazookas and .50 caliber machine guns, are ready to produce 30,000 pounds of bread a day for the invasion armies, using British mobile bakery units given them under reverse Lend-Lease.

"When we came off the ship we were presented right away with this unit," said the officer in charge of a company of bakers at one of the biggest U. S. Army embarkation ports in the United Kingdom.

"The British said: 'Take the baking company; here's the equipment.' We soon found British equipment would bake as much bread as the equipment we had trained on in the States. It's half the manpower, it can be set up and dismantled quicker, too."

...d after all, what have we to complain about supposing we do have to file returns every year? Farming is a business just as is any other means of earning a livelihood. The butcher, the baker and the hardware merchant all have to keep some kind of business record — then why not the farmer? After all if a married man on a farm has a net income of less than $1200—and I venture to say that up to and including 1943 there were many with less than that amount — then he has nothing to pay. If he has more, then he must pay just the same as any other business man.

As for the forms themselves they are surprisingly easy to understand—or at least they seem so compared with what I remember of the questions that were asked farmers in the 1941 census. But it doesn't do to read the entire form and try to remember everything at once. That way madness lies. Concentrate on one question at a time and thus avoid confusion of thought. Incidentally, you might keep track of the aspirin you use and charge it up as a farm expenditure.

Did you get any of that nice little wind-storm that swept through Ontario last week? We thought when we heard that terrible wind that there must be an awful gale blowing somewhere so we were not surprised when we heard of the damage that had been done in some districts. A windstorm is such a frightening thing. We have experienced two in our time — and that was enough. After this wind we looked around next morning but could not see that any damage had been done. But then Partner went over to the driving-shed and got quite a surprise.

The outside was all right but the inside was a shambles. Half the driving-shed has timbers across the top like the straw loft in a barn. Across these timbers Partner has been in the habit of storing used lumber, odds and ends of machinery, spare tongues and other stuff that seems to accumulate around a farm and is generally used for repair work some time. Imagine Partner's surprise to find this grand collection scattered all over the driving shed floor. One of the timbers had broken in the middle and let everything down. We suppose the wind rocked the building and the timber, which although it looked all right on the outside must have been rotten through and through just gave up the struggle and collapsed. And Partner was walking on top of it the other day!

Well it's nice haying weather we're having isn't it? Is your hay cut and still out in the field? Ours is in that condition but we are hoping to get some in on Monday as the weather really does show signs of being a little more settled. Shortage of help is bad enough but add to that unsettled weather in haying time and it really puts one on the spot. And do you know the barley is in head already—that is, there are a few heads here and there, proof that the whole field will be headed out in less than a week.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

July 16.

SUCCESSES AND FAILURES OF ISRAEL

Judges 2:1 — 3:7.
PRINTED TEXT, Judges 2:6-16.
GOLDEN TEXT. — Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Proverbs 14:34.

Memory Verse: Oh give thanks unto Jehovah; for he is good. Psalm 136:1.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time. — The events of our lesson occurred subsequently to the death of Joshua, approximately, 1375-1350 B. C.

Place. — The narrative of our lesson is not centered in any one place, with the single exception of Bochim, on a mountain west of Gilgal — the exact location has not yet been definitely ascertained.

Successes of Israel

"Now when Joshua had sent the people away, the children of Israel went, every man unto his inheritance to possess the land." The people entered into a covenant with Joshua to be true to God and His commandments, and departed to possess the inheritance allotted to them.

"And the people served Jehovah all the days of Joshua, and they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres, in the hill-country of Ephraim, on the north of the mountain of Gaash." The people remained true to their covenant not only during the remainder of Joshua's life, but during the lifetime of all the elders who survived him. The faithfulness and Godliness of Joshua left their mark on the Children of Israel.

The New Generation

"And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, that knew not Jehovah, nor yet the work which he had wrought for Israel." Unless there is a strong spiritual movement in the land through preachers and holy men, a spiritual decline always follows. After the death of Joshua no one seemed to be able to keep the people together in an earnest worship of God, and to inspire them to obey the law of God.

Failures of Israel

"And the children of Israel did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah, and served Baalim." Fearful licentiousness in the worship of this deity was not only sanctioned by its followers, but formed part of the worship.

"And they forsook Jehovah, the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the peoples that were round about them, and bowed themselves down unto them: and they provoked Jehovah to anger. And they forsook Jehovah, and served Baal and the Ashtaroth." Man must follow some god and when he forsakes the true God he follows after false gods, gods who can profit him nothing.

The Anger of Jehovah

"And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel... and they were sore distressed." Israel was completely humiliated, for after conquering the stoutest of their foes they were defeated and became completely subject to their enemies. God had warned Israel of their danger, and they went into sin with full knowledge of the calamities which would follow. If man sins persistently he can no longer stand up against it; it becomes his master and he its abject slave.

The Lord Hears Israel

"And Jehovah raised up judges, who saved them out of the hand of those that despoiled them." In their distress they sought the Lord and He heard them, and raised up men who became their saviors and deliverers. God dealt graciously with the Children of Israel for through them His Divine and eternal purposes were to be fulfilled.

CONSIDER VICTIMS FIRST

We are beginning again to hear reference to the "poor German people." Let us remember first of all the poor people of all the lands which they have enslaved, who have been murdered, tortured, despoiled, dispossessed. Let us consider the victims before we prepare to weep for the murders.

A MENTION ANYWAY

Those American radio war commentators cannot be accused of disloyalty to their own country. But they might give the British, the Canadians and others just a wee tiny bit of credit for what they are doing in the fighting line.
—St. Thomas Times-Journal

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

How Long Will Final Phase Of War Against Germany Last?

We may be sure that Allied plans for the invasion included ample preparations for repairs to Cherbourg's harbor facilities, says the Christian Science Monitor. Great convoys may be unloaded there in as little as two or three days. Then the liberation of Europe will proceed at accelerated pace. That the British, American, and Russian generals have planned a blitz seems evidenced by the lateness in the season of their attack.

It is interesting that the American-British-Canadians copied Russian tactics at Cherbourg. First they snipped its supply lines, then they pocketed it, leaving the Germans to defend a bastion cut off from reinforcements and supplies. Such was the strategy of Stalingrad, such is the present pattern of Vitebsk, Orsha, Mogilev, Zhlobin, and Bobruisk.

Strategy In Pacific

It is the strategy in the Pacific, too, where strikes at the Bonins isolated the Marianas from the sea and air lane down the island chain from Japan. At Cherbourg, air power was used to blast rails and highways and concentrations of troops being rushed to a counter-attack. In the Marianas, air power, too, blasted the Japanese effort at counterattack, inflicting, according to the latest word from Admiral Nimitz, the heaviest air loss yet suffered in a single operation by any pagicipant in this war.

Indeed, Admiral Nimitz's summary of 747 Japanese planes destroyed, 30 ships sunk, and 51 damaged paints a new picture of the frantic Japanese effort to save the Marianas. It would almost suggest that the Allies are further advanced in the Pacific than we have heretofore supposed.

Supply Line Battles

Yet cold assessment tells us that the situation in the Pacific is in a broad and general way just about as it was in the European war when the Battle of the Atlantic was at its height. That was a supply line battle, too.

Without it, the Allies could not have mounted the strength that is being poured into this final phase of the war against Germany. Without secure supply lines to the Far East, the Allies cannot hope to mount the power that will sweep over Japanese land forces.

We have spoken of a blitz and of the final phase of the war against Germany. How long will this phase last?

The answer to that is only partly physical. War is made against the troops and sometimes they may fight, as many did in Cherbourg, until their ammunition is gone. But in a larger sense the war is waged against the will to resist.

Futility of German Position

Some day the utter hopelessness and futility of the German position will dawn upon the thought of the German populace. With it may come a crystallization of honest doubts about the queer Nazi doctrine, with its denial of the brotherhood of man, and its fanatical restrictions.

When that moment comes, and the suffering imposed from without is more severe than that which a frenzied leader at home can whip up, the German war will be over. It will be over even if their troops in the field still have the resources to stand a bit longer.

So predictions cannot be based on physical military factors alone. This is total war that the Nazis have brought upon Germany, and the nature of it is levelled at the mentality behind it, as well as at the arms before it.

We'll 'Let' Farmers Keep Their Farms!

So said a C.C.F. Broadcaster Recently to the Farmers of South Alberta

"We will LET the farmers keep their farms."

A C.C.F. broadcaster gave the farmers of South Alberta that assurance the other evening over an Alberta radio station, says the Lethbridge Herald.

Nice of him, wasn't it?

When the C.C.F. is regimenting everybody else, the farmers are to be "let... keep their farms."

It must have struck farm listeners as a bit strange that, in this day when we're fighting dictatorship, we had arrived at a point in our political thinking that there should be any question whether or not farmers should be allowed to keep their farms. We're only 30 years from the time when we were appealing to the farmers of the world to come to the prairies and the Government would give them a homestead for $10.

* * *

The C.C.F. strongly protests that this whole question of whether the C.C.F. will "let" the farmers own their own farms has been created by their political opponents. They tell the farmers the C.C.F. brain trust never even thought of it. Well, if the farmers will dig back into the files of the summer of 1933 when the preliminary C.C.F. platform was drawn up they will find that it was the full intention of the founders, including the late J. S. Woodsworth, to socialize the farms. The third plank of the provisional platform drawn up at Calgary at the convention where the C.C.F. name was adopted was "security of tenure of the farmer on his USE LAND." The C.C.F. ers themselves started all the row about socialization of land. They made the first threat. And a great many of the industrial workers in the movement still think that farmers should be told what to do on collective farms owned by the state.

SMOKE, SIR!

Believe it or not, this cute little number is a hard-working war worker. She's Jean Mutch and she works at MacDonald Brothers, Winnipeg, helping to make aircraft on which men train for battle. This picture was taken when she and the other members of the plant concert party, the "Ansonettes", took time out to stage a big show in aid of the Red Cross, seen by thousands of citizens.

Viral statistics about Jean: — Aged 19, blonde, brown eyes, five feet seven inches tall. Her uncle, Capt. Leslie Mutch, in England with the Cameron Highlanders, is Federal Member for Winnipeg South.
