WEEKLIES OVERSEAS

WE ALL LIKE to feel we are doing something for the boys overseas, and a letter appearing in another column from Ralph Fess, is pleasant reading for Weekly Editors.

He states in part, "the boys I am with are mostly small town boys, and they all get their home town papers. We trade them around and get to know a lot about all the rural districts in Canada. So you not only supply the troops with news, but it is a good education as well."

There is no doubt in the world that the local weekly newspapers mirror the activities of the districts in which they are published, and an insight not otherwise obtainable is gained of the habits and activities of Canadians.

POST WAR PLANNING

A GREAT DEAL is being said these days about post war planning. The Ontario Government has set up a Department of planning and development, and committees are functioning in a great many municipalities.

So far the emphasis seems to be on a program of post war road building. The Province plans to spend nearly 200 million this year over a five year period. No doubt improved roads will be required to meet post war transportation facilities, but there are other things which we deem more important than good roads.

There are hundreds of small municipalities in this Province without any semblance of a public water supply, or proper sewage disposal systems. The people residing in these places tolerate the condition because they have been brought up to it. Otherwise it would be looked upon as just about as sanitary as taking dinner every day with the pigs.

The contribution of the rural boys in this war stacks up with the best, and that is what they are entitled to when they return. Water systems and sewage disposal plants are more important than highways, to those who do not now enjoy the benefits of them. It would be interesting to know to just what extent the Provincial authorities are prepared to go in bringing this advantage to the smaller municipalities who do not now enjoy these blessings.

THE QUADRUPLEX ENVELOPE

SPEAKING at a recent convention of weekly newspapers, Louis Blake Duff, himself a former newspaper publisher, said that if in the Minister of Canada after the war, he was going to set up a new system in tax bills. This is it, in Mr. Duff's own words: "When you sign your tax cheque you will make out forms in quadruplicate (four colors) to show exactly how you utilize your money to be spent. This will eliminate endless sittings at Ottawa going over the estimates. Each department will spend what money it has got — and that's the end of it."

Mr. Duff pointed out that nowadays tax money is being spent for a lot of things which some people disapprove, and they have nothing to say about it. "I am going to let you spread your own tax money, purely as you wish, among the departments, bureaux, agencies, commissions, purposes," said Mr. Duff. He then promised to show how he would distribute his contracts to the tax revenue. To the "bureaucrats" he would assign nothing, to the same to CBC. If the C.N.R. train was late again he would cut the Canadian National off with a dollar, and he would give one dollar to the Industrial Bank of Canada. He would reserve his big contribution to the building of a new Post Office at Welland — his home town.

Let anyone should take these proposals too seriously, it should perhaps be explained that Louis Blake Duff is Canada's wisest after that. He is not a true word spoken in jest, and Mr. Duff's idea is no funnier than many of those of the C.C.F. Take, for instance, the following quotation from "Make This Your Canada," which visualizes the C.C.F. "coming to power" at Ottawa, with Mr. Caldwell "sworn in as Prime Minister":

"On the day that the C.C.F. Cabinet is sworn in at Ottawa, all men and women in factories, offices and farms will feel that they are called to a new responsibility as citizens. Government will then become the concern of everybody. The old attitude of 'What can we do about it?' will be replaced by a feeling of 'This is my chance to build a great country.'"

On the very next page of this C.C.F. text book, however, is an advance copy of "Prime Minister" Caldwell's "broadcast" address to the people of Canada, which begins as follows: "It is not the C.C.F. as a party, but you as a people who have won power today. Because it is not physically possible for each one of you to be a member of the government, some of us are privileged to be the trustees of your power."

It will thus be seen that after telling the people — "men and women in factories, offices and farms" — that they are henceforth going to govern the country, Mr. Caldwell, as soon as he "comes to power," proceeds to dismiss the people from all responsibility and assume full power for himself and his Cabinet. It would appear that there is no hope of the C.C.F. Cabinet adopting Mr. Duff's strictly socialist idea of everybody having a part in drawing up the national budget. That is a pity, because the idea of the quadruplex envelope for taxes would place the "power" into the hands of everybody. But, then, as Mr. Caldwell says, he and his Cabinet would practically be everybody.

TAKE IT EASY

THERE'S BEEN a lot of talk in recent years about the trend of young people away from the farm, and in some quarters the situation has caused a lot of concern. This summer, like last, sees a reversal of the movement, even though it's only temporary.

Efforts are being made by National Selective Service and other agencies to increase the number of high school students from cities and towns working on farms, helping to overcome the current manpower shortage and save the heavy 1944 crops.

The aim, Labor Minister Mitchell said last week, is to get as many boys and girls "as possible" to take farm work in their school vacation. If the scheme is successful, these young people should be a big asset to the hard-pressed farmer.

The shortage of labor in virtually all farming communities is so serious, Mr. Mitchell said, that there may be a considerable loss of crops unless student help is available in large numbers. In the long run, the farmers themselves will decide how much of this assistance they get.

The city-bred boys and girls who offer to take jobs on the farm will be willing; but it must not be forgotten that physically they will be in many cases inadequately equipped for the work.

Their legs are strong for bicycle-riding, swimming and running the bases but not for climbing up and down ladders in the orchard. Their arms are strong for throwing a baseball but not for pitching hay or sheaves.

Work around a farm will bring into play muscles they are not called upon to use in city life. Their months in school with little or no work after school hours will show up in the fields.

At first they may not seem to stack up very well against lads of the same age who have been helping right along with the farm chores. Many may send them home, instead of keeping them on the farm all summer.

Given a chance to break into farm life moderately, these city boys and girls will gain strength and skill rapidly. Their help through the summer months will save crops which otherwise would be lost.

The farmer's motto was these three young people should be these three words: "Take it easy."

MORE FALL FAIRS LIKELY IN 1944 Based on reports received by the Agricultural Societies Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, there is likely to be a slight increase in the number of agricultural fairs held in Ontario during the year 1944 says J. A. Carroll, Superintendent of the Branch. Last year 225 fall fairs were held in the Province and some societies which did not hold fairs last year have fixed dates and are planning to revive their activities this year. The official list of dates is now being compiled and it is expected to be complete as soon as the various district meetings of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies have all been held, which will probably be about the middle of June.

INVASION MAKES MORE URGENT THE SAVING OF CIVILIAN GAS!

A Message to Canadian Motorists

THE invasion of Europe has thrown a vast and critical burden upon the petroleum resources of the United Nations.

In the first eight days of the campaign alone Allied aircraft flew 56,000 sorties. Many thousands of oil-burning warships and landing barges are shuttling ceaselessly across the Channel. Tanks, trucks, jeeps, mobile artillery, ambulances, by the thousands, are in action.

The driving power behind all this activity is petroleum — gasoline and fuel oil. But there is only so much available, and it is being used up so rapidly. If existing supplies are to prove adequate, the most stringent economy of gasoline and fuel oil must be practised here at home.

Canada is able to produce only 15% of her own gas and oil needs. The common pool of the United Nations and the bulk of this is shipped here by tankers. Critical manpower is needed to produce our gasoline and oil. Precious lives and precious ships must be risked to deliver it to our shores. Invasions, and the difficulties of supply and transportation are not our only problems. Right here in Canada gas and oil are needed in enormous quantities for vital war purposes. The Commonwealth Air Training Plan has consumed as much as $48,000,000 in a single day. Canada's Navy — expanded since war began from 15 ships to 650 — consumes over 2,150,000 gallons every week. Army training, war plant operation, food production, essential trucking — all are huge consumers of gasoline and petroleum products.

Gasoline is ammunition — ammunition of which we have all too little. To waste a gallon of it is a crime against our fighting men.

Answering Your Questions about the Gasoline Shortage

How much gasoline was consumed during the 54 days of pre-invasion bombing? ... More than 200,000,000 gallons.

How much fuel oil does a battleship take in one refueling? ... Enough to heat an average house for 350 years.

How much fuel does one armoured division consume in every five miles of advance? ... 10,000 gallons.

How many gallons of petroleum products are required to supply the needs of 500,000 European invasion troops for a week? ... Over 25,000,000 gallons.

So please return us PROMPTLY Give the boys a helping hand! YES, there's a SHORTAGE!
