

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING Poison Oak

Poison Oak, public enemy of the forest, is about ready to start paying its debt to society-at a rate of perhaps $5,000,000 a year, a itist estimated.

This bad boy of the plant kingdom, tormenter of picnickers and fishermen, has reformed under the benign guidance of chemurgy and is in a position to earn an honest living, said Dr. A. C. Shead, Uniyersity of Oklahoma chemistry pro-

Mindful of the plant's painful rash, people have been busily stamping out the plant for years, but Dr. Shead raised a warning hand. What we should do, he said, is plant more poison oaks and thus give this country three important new commercial pro-

The scientist said the same juice has spread itchy rashes would, when oxidized to eliminate the irritant, make a lacquer of high quality, 20,000,000 pounds of which is at present imported annually from India.

The non-poisonous berries, Shead explained, are rich in fat that could be used to make Japanese wax, large quantities of which were imported from Japan before the war at prices ranging to 25 cents a pound. The Japanese got it from a poison oak similar to the North American variety.

The third product - and Shead said it was a rare plant which yielded as many as three useful substances - is tannin for the leather trade, extracted from the

The professor's estimate of the potential commercial worth of the plant was, he said, conservative.

Paint Is Preservative Protector, Beautifier

Among Post-War planners, the Canadian Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, with 95 per cent of the paint manufact and dealers of Canada backing the scheme, is unique. wartime sales are higher than they have ever been, the industry counts on a still further expansion when the war is over.

An aggressive and dynamic sel-ling policy is being outlined to members of the Association at various city and provincial group meetings by pointing out that a wide campaign of advertising and publicity would open new selling fields if manufacturers and suppliers placed before Canadian all the hitherto little-mentioned attributes of their products. For years paint has been known chiefly as a beautifier, protector and preservative. It also has decided assets as a protectio against fire, as a fighter against many could no longer spare ball-bearings and machine tools for Ja-of health and vision, as a product that could lessen strain and fatigue, make work more pleasant, living more enjoyable and the

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

Some weeks go by and at the | to our son. This time he is going end of them you feel as if you had done nothing, been nowhere, and seem nothing and no one. This definitely has not been one of those weeks. Every day has been full to its close-and beyond it.

Wednesday I was just putting the finishing touches to the dining-room, which I had been papering when in walked our son again. He had interrupted his furlough at home to visit his girl friend. Now he was back again to wind up his leave. In the afternoon Partner and I had to go away on usiness, so that was one day gone. On Thursday, if it rained, Bob and were going to Hamilton to get the car wheels straigtened up. I t were fine Bob was going to work the last of the land with the tractor. The day dawned and it was neither wet or fine-just foggy and damp.

We went to Hamilton. When I came back I had all my work to do. But still the trip was worthwhile because we got the car wheels fixed although we almost had to go down on our knees to persuade the man to do it. Friday Bob finished working the land and Partner completed his long-de-layed spring seeding. I was I was washing nearly all day - for ourselves and for the Army. That's what I thought anyway from the array of khaki that got itself into my washing machine - and a hand power machine at that, don't forget, . . .

Early Saturday morning Daugher and a friend arrived for the week-end. The house was shambles-but there was nothing I could do about it-at least, not all at once. However the weather was grand and the whole family was outside more than it was in. But not sitting around-dear me, no-our visitors make themselves very useful. Daughter swept and dusted the downstairs rooms for me and then started in to weed the garden.

While all this was going on, Partner, son Bob and friend Bert went to work on a job that had "Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No been worrying Partner for some time-mostly because he wasn't able to tackle it alone. Partner will do nearly anything but he does like to have both feet on the ground. And this was one job where there was no telling where your feet might be. It was trimming a tree-a very big tree-in the centre of the front lawn, and every time there was a bit of wind we have been afraid it would come down and wreck the roof of the house. Bob did the climbing -and the sawing-and presently one great himb after another came crashing to earth. After dinner there was the wreckage to clear away and all three men were busy chopping, sawing and carting. And now, to look at the tree you would hardly know it had been trimmed at all, there is so much of it left. Sunday afternoon Bob went of to visit a favourite uncle in To ronto-the rest of us went for a short but lovely drive through the driving around yet it Partner had n't been there. He was the only one who knew which way to go when we got onto strange ground. Of Course Daughter and I had to have the car stop several times so we could pick wild flowers. After all, who could drive by nodding columbines and sweet-scented phlox? After supper there was the usual scramble to crowd a lot
