GALLANTRY RECOGNIZED

THE GALLANTRY of Hon. Capt. Stewart B. East, the Jarvis padre, has been recognized by the award of the Military Cross. For more than four years now the stories of his fearless devotion to duty under fire have excited and thrilled countless Canadians with pride. He has performed his duties entirely without thought of self—to the extent of greatly impairing his own health, and although absolutely forced to go to hospital for a brief period when wounded in the leg, we now find him back at the front lines again. His name is a byword with the Canadians in Italy. Capt. East has been his friend in act as well as in word. He has exemplified his faith in God, and his example will live in the memories of the boys forever. His every action has been more than a sermon. Knowing Capt. East, we fully appreciate how merited this award is—it makes us very happy.

BLIND IN CANADA

IN CANADA there are 12,854 blind men, women and children. In Ontario there are 4,013. It is to serve these Canadians, who need the help of their fellow Canadians who are not handicapped, with training, employment, Braille books, social service and any assistance which will provide them with some of the ordinary comforts demanded by a decent standard of living, that The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is appealing to the public for financial support. The opportunity in the store window of Jarvis to assume their share of the costs of carrying on this great humanitarian and necessary work comes on October 7th when a tag day is being held. The workers are voluntary. The money raised is spent for the benefit of the blind people in this district.

TRANSPORTATION SQUATTERS

GRANTED that Bus Companies are performing a necessary Wartime Transportation service, and like others in all kinds of civilian work, are operating under handicaps resulting from the war, at the same time we fail to understand any reason why these monsters of the road should assume a possessive attitude of traffic rights on our Village streets.

There is no room for fire trucks or ordinary traffic in the Village when the buses pull up to the (Depot?). The main highway is the usual stopping point and the movement of other traffic is of no apparent consideration to the drivers. They move on when the spirit moves them.

The main point is not the inconvenience to other traffic, but the dangerous hazards created. Buses have no more traffic rights than other vehicles and in the interest of public safety, it is high time this is realized. Steps should be taken without further delay to eliminate this hazard.

THE FEMININE TOUCH

THIS AUTUMN'S fashion pages and shop windows are an assurance to many an nervous male that after five war-time years of slacks and overalls, the Feminine Touch is coming into its own again. We see a suggestion of Grand-ma's bustle in new fall dresses. The girls are letting their hair down after five years of "feather cuts." Hats grow fancier and sillier—and it's good to see them that way.

Since 1939 we've watched our womenfolk lay aside glamor to help their men win the war. The best girl donned khaki, airforce or navy blue. Kid sister looked like a boy in her service force overalls. Mom was snappily attired in Red Cross uniform three days a week.

Five years in the services, on farms and in war plants taught Canadian women to work like men and dress for the job. But a lot of us missed the feminine touch in wartime tailoring. Some got to wondering whether capable wartime clothes would lead our ladies forever away from the apron-frilled prettiness of pre-war life. After such weighty discussions on the subject of slacks and their probable influence on post-war glamor, it's comforting to know a fantastic bonnet is still a prime drawing card for the woman shopper—he she riveter or Red Cross worker. It's heartening to see a touch of lace and ostrich plume regain their old place of honor in the woman's world.

This 1944 glimpse of post-war fashion can't guarantee whether Miss Canada will sit by a typewriter or the family mending after the war, but according to what we see in the store windows these days, our girls are going to look entirely feminine at their job.

A highly developed system of national controls would choke out all hopes of developing those peaceful relationships of trade between nations which would be the daily, homely proof that the United Nations were becoming a reality and not an empty name.

THE STARLETTES

We are referring to the All-Girl Orchestra from Hagersville that is fast gaining prominence in a field, hitherto, almost exclusively ventured in by men. Of course there is that celebrated exception created by Phil Spitalny, and which is known all over America, as "The Hour of Charm." Whether such an exalted future awaits the girls, comprising the Starlettes is of course uncertain, yet they have a great future at which to aim.

Credit for the creation and development of the organization, we are told, belongs to Robt. Laidlaw. It started early this year as a hobby and under the leadership of Andy Sabola, long prominent in musical circles in Hagersville, the group of girls are fast proving that the orchestral field is not beyond the abilities of the feminine sex. The girls played for the Jarvis Athletic Association at their first dance of the Fall season last Friday night, and have return engagements at the Arena for the next two Friday nights. We can give them no higher compliment than to say the nearly four hundred dancers last week were pleased with their music. It is hopeful that this group of fourteen girl musicians can keep together and develop to that point of prominence in Canada, now enjoyed by the Spitalny organization in the United States.

WE HAVE become used to the pervasions of Nazi psychology, and when Dr. Goebbels or Hitler cries out against an alleged breach of international law by the Allied nations we pass it off with a tired smile. But this perversion appears to be catching, or perhaps it is a common characteristic of all fanatics. An example of this queer mental twist occurred in the House of Commons at Ottawa recently when Clarence Gillis, C.C.F. member for Cape Breton, complained bitterly that Thomas Reid, Liberal member for Westminster, had slandered our sister Dominion of New Zealand.

At a previous session Mr. Gillis had presented a glowing picture of New Zealand as a Socialist Utopia, and had cited comparative figures which purported to show how much better they do things in that island than we do in Canada. Mr. Reid went to work on New Zealand newspaper reports and discovered that Mr. Gillis' facts and figures were so far wrong as to present the very opposite of the truth. Here are some of the comparisons Mr. Reid worked out:

Per Capita Debt	$1,024	$670.00
Dominion plus local governments (plus provincial in Canada)	$1,152	$908.00
Rate of Interest	3.4%	2.60%
Per Capita loan on Interest charges	$28.75	$14.65
Per Cent Debt payable outside	33	33
Income Tax
Single man		x
$700 a year	$53	$13,000
Married man, 2 children
$1,500 a year	$154	$25,500
x - Pre-latest Canadian budget, refundable deducted.

Amused at this exposure of misrepresentation, Mr. Gillis indignantly charged Mr. Reid and other members of the House with trying to belittle the people of New Zealand who had made such a fine contribution to the war. It was alright for Mr. Gillis to belittle and besmirch Canada by citing false statistics, but for Mr. Reid to go to the trouble to dig up facts that spoiled the C.C.F.'s glowing picture of Socialism in New Zealand—that was nothing short of a cruel slander against the New Zealanders. Such is the mental perversion of fanaticism.

The Psychology Of Fear

— By Lewis Milligan —

I read somewhere the other day that alices in the stomach were caused by worry. This set me thinking about the influence of mind over matter, and it seemed to confirm the theory of Christian Science that the cause and the remedy for physical diseases are in the mind. That certain physical conditions can be set up by a distraught and fearful mind, and that recovery from an operation can be retarded by the same mental process, are recognized by most physicians.

A very prominent and practical doctor once told me that when he was engaged in his student days in post-mortem examinations, he always had a dread of blood-spilling on his hands. He said that he had tried so much about this that one day he discovered that small red spots on the back of one of his hands, which on examination, proved to be a sort of imitation of a break in the skin. It gradually disappeared.

I am not a Christian Scientist, and I cannot accept the theory that matter is merely a concept of mind. That to me is self-contradictory. But I do believe that there is some sort of a connection between mind and body.

I accept the theory that worry can cause a lot of trouble in the mind, and I believe that it is the cause of most of the troubles of the world in general. This is a concept of mind, and it is the cause of most of the troubles of the world in general.

Worry is usually a fear of what is going to happen to us or to some one dear to us on the morrow, and we make today miserable worrying about it. "Four Fear" is a book that tells us about what is going to happen in the post-war world, and we are told that we can avoid them by planning the future in advance.

We must make plans for the immediate future, but it is well to remember that "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley." Hitler was the greatest and most careful planner of modern times. He started by worrying about the future of Germany, and he planned for the next thousand years by the National Social Party.

The Nazi plan, however, has gone agley. All of Hitler's worrying and long-range schemes have brought disaster to the German people and to the world in general. It might be argued that the present Allied nations the disaster would have been avoided. The League of Nations was the greatest plan for the preservation of world peace that had ever been conceived, and yet there is reason to believe that it was directly responsible for the greatest war the world has ever known.

The question arises: Can a man, by taking thought, add one cubit to his stature? Man is certainly able to plan for the immediate future, (continued on page five)

Can You Picture CANADA without Schools?

Well may Canada be proud of her educational system which has made this country 96% literate—one of the highest standards in the world. Credit for this achievement goes to the thousands of teachers and administrators who are devoting their lives to our sons and daughters, and to members of local school boards and the various provincial departments of education.

In wartime, even more than in peacetime, the things that draw us all together, that unify our efforts, that make us good neighbors, are the things that count most heavily. Both good education and good transportation are playing decisive parts in preparing Canada for the post-war world.
