WHAT CARELESSNESS MEANS-

THE HEADLINES these past three weeks have revealed an amazing number of deaths as a result of fires in homes. Such tragedies occurr at times without apparent cause, yet usually carelessness in some manner lies at the bottom of it all

The local Fire Chief wants us to urge all of our readers to be ever alert to the danger of fire. Those who have read of the shocking deaths recently will, we are sure, be fully awakened to the necessity of taking every possible precaution to avoid such possibilities in their own homes. Clean chimneys, elimination of waste around stoves and stove pipes are among the simple precautions that common sense demands. Because it was alright last year, or, for that matter, yesterday, is no guarantee that it is alright today. If you are not fully cognizant of the dangers of fire, we suggest you observe the Fire Chief's warning. v v v v

THE TRANSITION-

SETTLING BACK TO PEACETIME ways after more than five years of war seems to be a problem for civilians as well as those who served in the Forces. In a sense it is quite understandable. During those years everyone's thoughts were centered on the problems of war service. Spare time was devoted directly or indirectly in this way. The usual customs went by the board and Red Cross work, sending parcels overseas, Victory Loans and other undertakings associated with the war in one way or another occupied all spare time.

Now that peace is here our thoughts should be turned to rehabilitation. Not entirely to the rehabilitation of discharged service people, though this should not be neglected, but to normal peacetime rehabilitation of our mode of living, of doing business of recovering again those normal pursuits which go to make up the way of life the price of which was paid for so dearly in human life.

Our thoughts go back a decade or more ago when our local merchants association through their activities cordially invited the district people to the Village. The Village Main Street has a great tradition, whether in Jarvis or elsewhere. Children born on farms in the vicinity have printed indelibly in their minds the peculiar features of each place of business. Needless to say the store leaving the most favourable impression in the earlier years of a youngsters life, will most likely retain that goodwill in later years when he becomes a potential customer. If however, nothing is done to form those impressions it is more than likely that the good relations will be established by merchants in other places.

There is, it seems to us, a big job to do in jarvis, so far as the merchants as a whole are concerned in establishing their rightful place in this trading community. The first step in this direction is undoubtedly the formation of a merchants association, formed for the purpose of operating with unified action. To present to the people of the community well stocked shelves of the necessities and luxuries of life in such a variety that it will become unnecessary to go to other towns to complete their shopping requirements. Brightening up places of business; installing modern equipment, and working together for the good of all are objectives that an enterprizing merchants association could work toward. Individualism is a thing of the past. Industries work together. In the larger centers labour is united. In our own best in terests our entire merchandizing set-up in the Village is sadly in need of a unified out-look. The opportunities are not lacking for making Jarvis one of the outstanding trading centers among the smaller communities in the Province. It remains for us to practice that initiative that was in no measure lacking as we worked together to do our part in backing the war effort.

IS SOVIET RUSSIA A DEMOCRACY ?-

- By Lewis Milligan -

A GREAT CHANGE appears to have come over Mr. Ernest Bevin and other leaders of the British Labor Party since they have assumed the responsibilities of government. During the recent three-power conference in London Mr. Bevin remarked that there was need for a new definition of the word Democracy. Mr. Molotov had used the word as applying to the socialist system in Russia, and to the method by which he proposed to set up the new governments in the Balkan states. Mr. Bevin bluntly declared that Soviet Russia was not a demo cracy, and he likened the Soviet policy to that of Hitler, upon which Mr. Molotov got up and threatened to leave the conference if the statement was not withdrawn: Mr. Bevin spoke as though he had only just build up a Socialist State in Britain. But when Mr. Bevin, as Foreign Secretary, came at close quarters with Mr. Molotov he discovered that Russia was not a democracy at all. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in their delivered that the chill and Mr. Eden in the chil chill and Mr. Eden, in their dealings with the chill and Mr. Eden, in their dealings with the Soviet leaders, took that for granted and dealt with the situation accordingly.

In a recent dispatch from Moscow, Brooke Atkinson, special correspondent for the New York Times, said that in the common use-of the word democracy the people of the United States and the people of Russia do not mean the same thing. "With us in America." said Mr. Atkinson, "democracy is a habit of mind as well as a political system. With us it is an expression of faith in the principle that over a long period of time the people as a whole are able to work a wiser designer than their leaders. period of time the people as a whole are able to make wiser decisions than their leaders......Our

Russian socialists may claim that their system conforms to that definition. We would need to define what we mean by the "people" and by "representative institutions." We believe in the rule of the people as a whole through representatives elected periodically after free and resentatives elected periodically, after free and open discussion, by secret ballot. Freedom of | The Ontario Agricultural Review speech, freedom of the press, and freedom or in announcing the winners in the butsia or the State Socialism which the British Labor Party or the C.C.F. Party have visualized in their programs. Socialism cannot be put into operation or maintained without some form of dictatorship. If the Russian people were to be given freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of elections, the Soviet Socialism Republics would very soon go to pieces. Socialism may be the very best system for the Russian people: they have never known freedom, and they do not miss it. But to the people of the Western democracies freedom is as necessary as the air they breathe.

We may admire what a planned economy has done to uplift the Russian people from the oppression of Feudalism, but we left feudalism behind us hundreds of years ago at the signing.

oppression of Feudalism, but we left feudalism behind us hundreds of years ago at the signing of the Magna Carta, and we have made wonderful progress under our free democratic system. The Russian people have profited by that progress and are sharing in our heritage. We may learn something from their daring experiments, but they have more to learn from our longer experience of freedom. All true progress is toward greater freedom — not away from it, and it is for that reason that Soviet socialism cannot be combined with the political democracy of the Western World.

A FARMER'S WIFE LOOKS

The government paid 3,000 Civil Service Workers bonuses ranging up to services described as "War Duties." This despite the freezing order on wages which has kept the pay-check of a good many hard working citizens at the same level during wartime—and for the good reason the harassed employer kept faith with the order under the threat of a $5,000. fine. This, along with the suggested M.P.'s fine combined with the political democracy of the woters — particularly when the announcement also comes that the Wartime Wage and Price Controls will be continued for an in-

AT STRIKES.

- By R. J. Deachman -THERE APPEARED recently in the Canadian Countryman, a farm journal published n Toronto, a letter from Mrs. William Schrag of Zurich, Huron County, a letter which expresses the farm attitude to strikes more clearly than anything else I have heard or read this Here it is: vear. "It seems that all we hear about these days is Strikes! Strikes! and more Strikes!

"More pay for less work"! I often wonder what all these strikers think (I doubt if they think much, or deeply) when they vote to strike think much, or deeply) when they vote to strike for their demands. Do they honestly believe their action justified? Do they really think "victory rally" held in Toronto this week. Representatives were present and the school at Kohler will fill a large place in the lives of the people of the peop they are getting less than their share of the income of the nation as a whole? Do they foresee the result of their demands, if met, upon the economic life of the country? Or are they determined to get all they can at the present moment, regardless?

"Apparently the only large group in the country not in a striking mood is the farm population. The farmer seems to be satisfied. He is enjoying a position of economic parity—a position in which his returns for a 12-hr, day (plus the hours contributed by his wife and children) are equal to the returns of the industrial laborer for his 8-hr, day.

"Let us assume that all these groups have a moral right to "a 30 per cent wage increase and a 40 hr. week." Do they not concede to all the non-striking groups the same right? Let us be fair and square and increase the income of every person in the country by 30 per cent and cut their working hours to 40 per week. Are we any better off, Even a moron could see that we would be in a worse position. Our export trade would suffer if all prices were increased by 30 per cent. The non-farming population would most certainly be half-starved if the farm work at present.

"If industry were able, by more efficient management—up to date machinery—increased output, etc. to offer a pay increase, it would be much better and fairer to reduce the price of all manufactured articles, thus benefitting the course, because and only the consumer. That would be helping every man, woman and child in the country. If a product is lowered in price, the demand for it is increased, exports are increased, and the entire industry stimulated.

Western democracy is flexible. We can spontaneously overthrow a government with startling speed, as in the Democratic revolution of 1932, or the Labor victory in Britain this year."
We can define democracy as "That form of government in which the sovereignty of the state is vested in the people, and exercised by them through representative institutions." The Russian socialists may claim that their system speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of elections among several parties are the essentials of democracy as we understand it.

But those freedoms are not compatible with Socialism, whether it is that of Soviet Russia or the State Socialism which the British Labor Party or the C.C.F. Party have visualized in their programs. Socialism cannot be put instance.
