THE WEEK IN OTTAWA

— By Douglas Green —
Canadian Press Staff Writer.
Ottawa, January 31. (CP) — The fact that the political fate of Defence Minister MacNaughton, government candidate in the Grey North by-election February 2nd is expected to have great influence in shaping the future political picture in Canada was one of several factors which continued last week to hold the attention of observers here.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King warned members of the House of Commons last March that unless the administration received the co-operation of opposition parties in view of the mandate which he said, the government had received to carry on the prosecution of the war to the utmost, it would have to consider what its responsibility is.

It is regarded as significant that the prime minister has addressed two messages to the electors of Grey North, the first and second, according to partisan considerations aside and return Gen. McNaughton to a seat in parliament after the take-off on the attitude of opposition parties regarding the by-election.

Mr. King has taken the position that Gen. McNaughton, holder of a key position in the administration, should be elected to enable the government effectively to carry on the prosecution of the war.

Gen. McNaughton is opposed by Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate and former mayor of Owen Sound, Ont., and by Air Vice Marshal A. E. Godfrey, retired R.C. Air Officer and C.P.E. standard bearer.

The by-election is seen here as a test of party strength for a federal general election and its result as having a bearing on campaign plans in the federal field. Should Mr. King decide to dissolve parliament before the by-election, it is believed he will make the announcement at a press conference on January 31st.

Parliament reaches the end of its five-year term April 17, and it is thought likely that if Gen. McNaughton is elected a short session will be held starting perhaps March 1st.

Should he be defeated, the belief is that parliament will be dissolved immediately and a general election held.

S.L. Cyril H. Carscadden Is Victim Of Liberator Crash

KILLED IN CRASH

Husband Of Jarvis Girl Was In First Class To Graduate Under B. E. A. T. Plan

Squadron Leader Cyril H. Carscadden, husband of the former Margaret Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell of Jarvis, was one of the victims in the crash of a Liberator bomber on Sunday near Whonnock, British Columbia, when it received their wings at Camp Borden.

Six others lost their lives when it was thought the big bomber exploded shortly after the take-off on a routine flying operation from the Abbotsford Training Base.

S/L Carscadden, who was well known and had many friends in Jarvis, was on board the plane when it crashed.

He was transferred to Boundary Bay, B.C., in late November last year, and only last week was transferred to the Abbotsford Training School.

He was taking a course in Flying the Big Liberator Bombers in anticipation of a transfer to the Indian-Burns theatre of operations.

His wife, who accompanied him since their marriage, is living at Vancouver.

His mother, Mrs. James M. Carscadden and his two sisters, Lillian and Gladys, are also living in Jarvis.

He has one brother, Keith, of Edmonton, Alberta.

Word of the fatality reached Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell on Monday, but gave only the bare details.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

S/L Carscadden was a native of Red Deer, Alberta, where his mother still maintains her home, and it is thought likely the burial will either take place there or at Jarvis.

Contending that the multiplicity of school districts and school boards in Ontario was one of the obstacles in the way of providing equality of educational opportunity, Premier George Drew declared last week that the whole course of rural education would be advanced by simplification of the administrative structure and creation of larger units.

Addressing the Junior Farmers Association at Guelph Premier Drew said that while he did not expect that a drastic reduction in school districts was likely to be achieved as quickly as possible, "Education is a real, practical problem which we must face," he said, "and my ambition is to advance the whole course of it."

The course of rural education in Ontario has been a long one, and it is a task which will take many years to complete, he said.

He said that the province has 4,287 school boards for a total population of four million while England and Wales with about forty-four million people had only two hundred and thirty school authorities.

Sounding a ringing challenge to the agricultural youth of this province the Premier declared that this was no time for pessimistic views for never in the history of Ontario has youth been given the opportunities it possesses today to build the nation of tomorrow.

"The recovery of any country depends upon the standards maintained on its farms," said the Premier. "From your hands will emerge the type of life we will live as a people. From the youth of the Dominion will get its measure of responsibility."

To the rural areas thousands of young Canadians will return from the battlefields," he said. "They have not had any snow yet but I have seen pretty good snow. New Years did not go off so nice. Jerry gave us the cheer but nothing very serious happened. The Record has not been coming through so good but maybe since you have got my new address it will start coming through O.K. I hear you have had quite a snow storm back home. Well some of the boys are getting ready to go back to England on their nine days leave and some are getting ready for Canada and there is no tears in their eyes now."

Well, I cannot think of much more to say right now, so I guess I will sign off for now. Thanking you again for the cigarettes. I remain as ever,

JIMMY DUNNET

DEAR FELLOW CITIZENS:

Appeals for Cash, Clothing, Bed Quilts and Blankets to meet Russia's urgent needs have been made but the response has not been adequate. It has therefore been decided to postpone the despatch of goods and money until February 14th, and to make this further appeal.

Our Russian allies have put forth what the Hon. Winston Churchill has called a "superb and titanic effort which will inevitably shorten the war."

To make such a masterly contribution to the Allied cause, Russia has neglected civilian needs to such an extent that women's and children's clothing is practically unobtainable and they are suffering from the cold.

In gratitude to these heroic people, you will please hand contributions of cash or goods to "The Jarvis Record or to members of the Aid to Russia Committee."

WEDDINGS

STALLWOOD—BEST

Pink and white snap dragons, roses and ferns formed an attractive setting in the United Church, Hagersville, on Saturday, January 27th, for a lovely ceremony in which Ethel Irene Best, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Best, Nelles Corners, became the bride of Charles Keith Stallwood, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Stallwood of Jarvis. Rev. Dr. Mumford, officiating. Mrs. F. Howard played the wedding music, during the signing of the register, Mrs. Alan Doughty, Mt. Brydies, rendered a lovely solo. "Because."

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white satin and lace and wore a headpiece of white lace over satin with a train of white net. She carried a white bible with streamers of white satin and rose buds and wore a string of pearls. The gift of the groom was a diamond ring.

Miss Barbara Stallwood, of Hamilton, sister of the groom and the bride, acted as bridesmaid, the former wearing a gown of white satin and lace and the latter a floor-length gown of pink tulle with matching head-dress and shoes. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink roses, baby breath and ferns.

Mr. Ivan Sheppard, R.C.A.F., brother of the bride, supported the groom. Mr. Bruce Miller, of Jarvis and Mr. Vincent Smith of Hagersville, were the ushers.

After the reception held at the bride's home, the happy couple left in a big white limousine for their honeymoon.

On the diplomatic front, Gen. Charles de Gaulle warned from Paris that France will not be bound by any decisions she has no part in making. Obviously addressing his remarks to the Big Three Conference already under way, de Gaulle demanded the occupation of the Ruhr industrial region by a defeated Germany.

French leader also called for a plan of independence for the small states of Europe.

With scarcely a let-up the Russians have surged deeper into Germany in their multiple invasion and the world wondered how soon the breath-taking drives would be matched by an Allied offensive in the west.

At the week end a drive was needed to complete the picture of global advances. In the Philippines, Manila's early fall was a certainty and in Burma British forces neared Mandalay.

Moscow repeatedly called for a West front smash and the Germans had claimed for days that sixty to seventy divisions were massed in the twelfth Army Group sector near Aachen for an impending general offensive.

Significantly, Gen. Eisenhower and Lt.-Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of the 12th Army Group conferred last night with no hint of the nature of their deliberations. There was no disclosure, either whether the American general had again under his command the armies which passed under Field Marshal Montgomery at the time of the Germans' Ardennes break-through in December.

Other signs pointed to the Allied front being ready for a push forward. The British 2nd Army was drawn up along the Roer River along a line from German-held Siegen to the confluence of the Roer and Maas rivers and the 1st Canadian Army to the north had eliminated the German bridgehead south of the Maas. The American 1st and 3rd Armies were assaulting the Siegen Line, weakened by transfer of German forces to the east, and the enemy offensive in Alsace had petered out.

It had not escaped German attention that the British 2nd Army completed a limited attack which neatly cleared the area between the Maas and the Roer and brought them up to the left bank of the Roer in line with American forces to the right. Similarly the Americans began an attack northeast of Monachau in the direction of the upper reaches of the Roer north of Duren.

From there the line of the Roer, which guards the Cologne plain, can be turned and it is worth noting that this is the resumption of the attack which was getting under way when the Germans made their December counter-stroke.
