The study of the Alekto smut beetle is continuing. Prof. R. W. Thompson was in the county again last week and the habits of the insect are being watched very closely. In addition to this the crop is being examined for any fungus diseases that may have a detrimental effect on the setting of the seed.

Fall wheat has been and is an important crop in Hamilton County and there seems to be a general interest in this source of ready cash. Growers will be glad to learn of a meeting to be held at the farm of Mr. Fred Nagel on Monday evening next, July 23rd, at 7:00 o'clock. Sixty.

DOMESTIC BROOM
TOKEN OF SECURITY
— By Edna Jagtes —
Ever since the first woman fastened a few twigs together and bound them after, brooms have been made. With it she will tackle anything from a barnacle to a robber, head off the cow and protect her chickens home. A broom is an every-day symbol of home security. In one minute form, a couple of miles behind the advancing Allied army, an old woman was seen crawling out from a cellar and although her home was a heap of rubble, she got her broom and swept off the doorstep making a little clean place to begin life anew. To her the broom meant protection.
When war broke out Canada grabbed another kind of weapon for home security — Price control. The War-time Prices and Trade Board was set up on September 3, 1939 — "To provide adequate safeguards under conditions against any undue enhancement in the prices of food, fuel and other necessities of life and to ensure an adequate supply and equitable distribution of such commodities".

Defeat of the school by-law was no doubt a keen disappointment to members of the school board and to many ratepayers who desire for their children the most modern educational facilities. This Week At Queen's Park
— By Jean Thompson —

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — The special four-day session of the Ontario Legislature, elected at the general election in June, was convened by Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews last Friday.

Just before the close of the session members approved a government motion to appoint a select House committee to study labor legislation. Before the next session of the legislature which will convene in October, the committee will comprise eight government members and four opposition members, of whom two will be Liberals, one C.P. and one Labor-Progressive.

A report from the Health Department showed heart disease to be the most common cause of death in Ontario, with cancer second. "Heart" disease in mental illness among older people was reported in Ontario hospital statistics. During 1944, 2,269 new patients were admitted and 1,874 patients discharged.

The royal commission inquiring into C.C.F. leader E. B. Joffile's charge that the Ontario Government of Premier Drew maintained "a political police — a Gestapo", last week concluded hearings which lasted more than a month ago. The report of the commissioner, Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel, is expected to be handed down in September.

Since the inquiry opened June 20, evidence was heard in fifteen days and more than 1,000,000 words of testimony entered. Thirty witnesses were heard and 260 exhibits filed. The final three days of the inquiry consisted of argument by counsel.

Mr. Joffile, the first witness before the commission, was also called. He reaffirmed his charges after the commission, also called, had heard and more than 1,000,000 words of testimony entered. Thirty witnesses were heard and 260 exhibits filed. The final three days of the inquiry consisted of argument by counsel.

Pictureque Beaumaris Hotel at the upper end of Lake Muskoka opened to the ground early Sunday morning.

Damage to the sixty-two year old resort was estimated at $100,000 more but there was no loss of life or injuries. It was thought that the fire started from accidental causes, possibly from hot ashes in the hearth.

At the height of the summer season, some 125 guests resided at the resort. Fire warning turned in by the night watchman about 3 A.M. The fire started in the kitchen. The fire started in the kitchen. The fire started in the kitchen.

Two Sidelights
— By D'Arcy O'Donnell —
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 25 — (CP) — A little more than two years ago — 1943, to be exact — Canadian and Allied troops stormed ashore the beaches of Sicily to begin the liberation of Europe, a liberation brought with it all the problems that follow an invading army.

One of the problems, and a major one, was the feeding of the liberated peoples. Canada, with her expanded wartime agricultural production, was called upon to furnish some of the food needed by the liberated peoples, and the Dominion was ready to meet the call.

Meat rationing was introduced in May, 1943, and was aimed at saving up supplies for the liberated peoples. However, sufficient supplies were not available to carry the supplies Canada built up during the war.

Now the picture is quite different, and meat rationing is to be relaxed. The individual will be allowed 1-3 pounds of the meat he desires, besides any amount of fish and fowl he may procure.

The reintroduction of rationing was made necessary by the fact that the meat supplies no longer are what they were in 1943. That year, many prairie farmers had decided there was money and less trouble in growing feed grains than in growing beef and pork exports have dropped despite increased demands from Europe and increased shipping space made available since V-E Day 8.

It was the pressing demands from Europe that led the government to reintroduce meat rationing and it was the same demands that have Minister Dingley to ask Canadian housewives not to serve on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Overseas' Need Urgent
The finance minister asked the housewives to follow the custom of eating in Canadian restaurants, not serving meat two days a week. The request was made, he said, not because there was insufficient meat to fill Canada's needs, but because the people who had with Canada and the Allied nations now were in need of food.

The need for meat overseas was urgent, yet meat rationing in Canada could not be re-instituted immediately because of complex adaptation problems. That was why there was need of meat rationing in the homes and in restaurants.

He gave no hint as to when meat rationing might become effective. Most people in parliamentary circles felt it would be within the next two months.

Parents and children in the countries which our armies have liberated are in hunger and misery," said Mr. Dingley. "If they are helpless and hopeless we shall have jeopardized the peace so won. But if we make them feel that they have friends in their own homes, we shall have helped to promote the kind of co-operation which the future peace of the world depends on."

While farmers heard the call for more and more food for their sons and helpers now were stationed, and until they returned farmers could not see how they could increase their production. Already more than 50,000 of the 160,000 army and air force personnel scheduled to reach Canada by the year end have arrived in the country. But a good number of these men have volunteered to serve in the Pacific.

After a lingering illness Matthew Leng, beloved husband of Ann Murdoch, died at his home in Jarvis on Sunday last. Taking as his subject "Maintaining the Great Traditions" Rev. Crosby based his remarks on the story of the house built upon a rock. He emphasized the necessity of young people having some definite objective or goal in life and using the great traditions handed down to us as a foundation on which to build for the future. The address was most inspiring and helpful.
