WHOSE RESPONSIBILITY ?___

YOUTHFUL ESCAPADES resulting in damage to public property are daily report-ed in the public press. More notable than usual was the open disrespect for the keepers of the law when several thousand youths stormed a police station in Toronto on Hallowe'en night demanding the release of two of their number who had been run in. In fact, just recently, we have had examples in our own community of youth's impertinent attitude toward public pro-

Modern social thinkers lay the blame for this attitude of youth on the lack of wholesome recreational programs in the community. No doubt such measures divert youthful energies to creative ends, but to provide this, money and direction is required. In small places it is often difficult if not impossible to provide these

Are such directives essential to the proper bringing up of children? Surely it lies within the power of parents to guide and direct their off-spring toward a proper apreciation of the rights of others. Surely it is not beyond the power of any parent to counsel their children the importance of a respectful attitude towards public and private property. Surely it is within the power of any parents to know where their children are spending their evenings-and if they are indulging in questionable ts to effectively point out the error of their

The modern method of letting children have a free hand in the belief they will eventually fit themselves into their proper niche may have its virtues - but on the other hand the stern parental discipline of a generation or so ago developed some fine upstanding citizens, who to say the least were capable of exemplifying a respectful attitude towards society. In those days the razor strap hung on the door nob. It was not used often, but effectively.

BACK TO CHURCH-

WITH THE ARRIVAL of the Fall season, the most active season for the churches gets under way. A great many people stay away from church during the summer months, although heaven knows they need the inspiration and help of the church just as much in the summer as any other time.

But whether or not church-going has been operly observed during the summer months. I should get back into the habit now that Fall

Church going is merely a human way, and a corporate way of showing gratitude for all the good things we enjoy. There are those the good things we enjoy. sad things of life, and forget that they have a right to be grateful for the God-given privileges that all of us possess in some degree.

We can all be thankful for our homes, our friends, our food, clothing, and the beauties of the country in which we live. We can be thankful for music, and laughter, and the other simple pleasures of life. We can be thankful for being spared so much of what others have suffered in these past six years. We can be thankful for eyes that see, and ears that hear, and minds that can think.

We know the old story of being able to worship God just as well in the woods, along the trout stream, or even in one's own home. That's true, you can, but the trouble is, the people who argue this way won't do it. It is much better to join corporately with others in giving thanks for all the good things of life. Lastly, the churches are the guardians of the moral and decent way of life. Let the churches starve for membership and money and you will lose all that religion has given to the world, and that means all the freedoms to which we have become accustomed. -Bowmanville Statesman

ATOMIC BOMB IS THE FIFTH FEAR-

- By Lewis Milligan -

THE COMMON PHRASE used in describing an explosion is that something was "blown to atoms," and if we wanted to be more emphatic and total we would say it was "blown to smithereens." The first is an obvious exaggeration, for no explosion ever blew anything to totally separated atoms; and as for the latter -well, what are, or where is smithereens? have looked up my Annandale dictionary and I find no mention of the word. Perhaps "smithereens" would be the best description of the effect of the explosion of the atomic bomb in which the atoms themselves are blown into radiation-that is, they are smithered into noth-

When the Apostle Paul said that "Things that are seen were not made from things that do appear," he was stating a fact which it has taken science nearly two thousand years to discover. Scientists tell us that when the atom splits, each of the parts into which it is broken equires and sets about instantly to obtain many imes the amount of space needed for the unsplit atom. The result is an explosion that is said to be 20,000 times as great as that produced by the same quantity of deadly T.N.T., which does are calling the "Atomic Age" the process of creation has begun to go into reverse. I recall bonds, but they probably will contribute to the interest payments that reading in one of the English magazines many years ago a story about a scientist who claimed b have invented a machine by which, at the Hitler is dead. "That is official" earth in an instant. The story told of how the inventor's friends regarded him as crazy, and they taunted to such an extent that he really when they shot him dead, and thus saved the world from possible extinction. They smashed up the machine, and the secret of its process was said to have died with its inventor.

At the time this story was regarded as a

At the time this story was regarded as a piece of fantastic fiction, but in the light of recent scientific discoveries and demonstrations it does not seem so far-fetched. Indeed, it may be regarded as a parable, for if our scientists continue to develop atomic bombs to the extent they hint at, then it may be necessary to shoot them in order to save mankind and the world from annihilation.

The other day the Archbishop of York quite seriously expressed the fear that the atomic bomb forebode the end of the world, and that it might result in the literal fulfilment of the scriptural prophecy of the last day, when "the elements would burn with fervent heat." That is certainly what happened locally in Hiroshima when the end of the world came to thousands of the people of that city "in a moment; in the twinkling of an eye."

Whether or not such swift and terrible destruction could ever be wreaked universally by some greater scientific release of atomic power, what has already been wrought is enough to make civilized man pause and consider whither he is withering. The question arises as to whether we are meddling too much with the structure of the universe,-like the boy who, out of curiosity, took the clock to pieces to see how it worked, and then could no put it together a-

In this connection another passage of Scrip ture comes to mind, in which the writer of Eccle siastes says: "Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions." If Solomon thou ght that three thousand years ago, what would that wise man say of Atomic Age when the inventions of man, according to the inventors themselves, threaten his total destruction?

The Atlantic Charter named "Four Fears" from which mankind must be saved if world peace was to be secured; but from the war itself has emerged a Fifth Fear, compared with which the other four are mere bogies. is a Sixth Fear which alone can cast out the fear of the atomic bomb and all the rest - "The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom."

SIMPLE TRUTHS FOR

LABOR UNIONS.....

MAURICE R. FRANK, National Business Agent of the Railroad Yardmasters Union North America, has been telling some plain truths about business to his fellow business agents and labor leaders. He states that too few of them have any idea how business is operated and for what it actually is operated. " main reason for operation is to produce a commodity or a service for PROFIT," he says. "The profit motive does not necessarily mean that all employers are void of humanitarian in stincts. Many able employers daily are demonstrating that they are interested in the welfare of the workers and the general public, but in order to exercise civic humanism, a businessman must have what it takes, and that is money There is only one place he can secure this and that is from profitable operation of his business. The union business agent who does not recognize this fact is heading his constituency for

Mr. Frank says that no sane person is going to invest money in any enterprise where there is no reasonable chance of a profit. "If you doubt this statement," he continues, "just examine the present investments of some of our labor unions. You will find that the wise heads of these unions have invested the union funds, or a great portion of them, in enterprises that assure profit. To assure profit, unions, the partners of industry, should at all times operate in line with good acumen, based on equity to all parties affected. You cannot take incentive and profit out of business and still have business. You cannot preach hate and expect anything but hateful conditions."

Mr. Frank concludes: "We must not lose sight of the fact that what hurts business, hurts labor, and vice versa. We can well remember, too, that what hurts the customer and the general public, eventually reflects itself upon the partners of industry. These simple facts should be explained to those who do not understand them by those who have learned what it is that makes business "tick" in the United States. I know of no one in a better position to explain these truths to labor union members than the union business agents, because that distinctly is part of the BUSINESS OF THE BUSINESS AGENT." The capitals are Mr. Frank's).
