

when strike or street car and bus operators in Washington left 500,000 persons without public transportation, A. L. Wade showed unusual enterprise by riding his horse to work. Unheralded transportation walkout started when members of Local 689 of Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (AFL) voted to stay in continuous meeting until Capital Transit Co. acted on their demand for a 30-cent increase in hourly pay.

ARMY HAS SELF-LIGHTING CAMERA

Many a wounded or ill soldier owes his recovery to the newlyrevealed Army "secret weapon" pictured above. It is a revolutionary surgical camera, with a built-in light source-a quartz vapor tube flash unit that produces up to 50,000 flashes more brilliant than sunlight at 1/25,00th of a second duration. Developed by the Signal Corps, the camera uses 35-mm. film, weighs 51/2 pounds and is operated from a 27-pound portable pack that may be plugged into any ordinary current line.

Here's the New 'Reconverted' B-29!

Obsolete materials and parts, once used in making B-29 Superfortresses at the Bell Aircraft Corporation's Marietta, Ga., plant, had been sold to salvage firms in carload lots. But, believing that Bell employees could make good use of the discarded materials, the firm recently opened a retail Salvage Sales Store. Now workers flock in to buy the "junk." Photos below show some of the many practical uses to which they put it. Their ingenuity and skill produced scores of scarce household items. The Occupational Therapy section of Atlanta's Lawson General Hospital uses a good deal of B-29 salvage. Convalescing veterans find relaxation and learn new skills in designing and making useful objects which they can send home.

of GINGER FARM

Gwendoline P. Clarke

Here is a thought that is worth considering. I was listening to an address by Mr. Walter S. Woods been reduced to three again. With Partner able to get around once more to help with the chores and milking it was hardly necessary to to get another job — and right in our own neighborhood too, which suited him fine. Son Bob has also been working — that is from nine until five each day -- tractorploughing for one of our neighbours. And Partner and I have been right into the chicken business, killing and dressing a few each day so as not to make it too tiring for Partner. Even at that it was tiring enough. Personally, I don't mind being tired just so long as we get those noisy strutting roosters off the farm. "The female of the species" may be "more deadly than the male" but at least she is not so insufferably preten-tious and vain. To hear the cocksure crowing that emagates from our rooster pen you would think the crazy things were telling the world they were our main source of income. They help, of course, time I like roosters — when their feathers are off and in place of birds we have dollar bills. And I am also pleased when they tip the am also pleased when they the me scales at anywhere from six to eight pounds with firm, white flesh one knows will make good eating. You know, it is possible to get a lot of satisfaction from the knowledge that one has turned out a good product.

but I'm telling you we earn every cent we get for our dressed chick-

We had just finished weighing and pricing five birds for a private sale when in came a truck with our order of potatoes. There were five bags of the murphies and the price for the five bags was a little less than our price for our five chickens.

I said to Partner — "Now, which line of produce do you suppose brings in the best returns?"

Well, sir, we thought and we talked, but we haven't got the an-swer yet. Partner thinks there are too many angles to consider for a definite conclusion to be possible. There are so many "ifs". If it is a poor season then potato crops are light; if disease attacks young chickens then losses are heavy. If ... if ... so many ifs!

But I do know one thing - at least potatoes can't crow, and they don't scratch in the flower beds or sneak around to roost on the fron doorstep to the embarrassment o

Figures can't supply the answer go so far. You can't estimate in dollars and cents the value of carrydollars and cents the value of the difference in hoeing potatoes in wet or dry seasons. So there you are, friends, and if you would like to are, friends, and if you would like to start an argument in your family circle, or among your neighbours, try that one. And I would just love to know the result.

There is something in that, isn't there? There is surely room for readjustment when our sons who went away as boys come back to us grown men, with a knowledge and experience of life — and death - far beyond their years and of a nature that we, in our time, will never know. 2 Liners Ordered From British Firm
