ACKNOWLEDGED WITH THANKS

THIS IS NEWSPAPER WEEK, a time when the newspapers of this country usually take time to tell their readers something of the virtues of the press and of the value of a newspaper in the life of every community. We are so woefully lacking in space that proper coverage of this event is prohibited. But two of our contemporaries in recent issues had some nice things to say about this paper and the Editor which we gratefully acknowledge and accept with the sincerity in which it was written. We have long since learned that newspaper Editors seldom compose flowery phrases just for the sake of filling space. Therefore, while acknowledging the kind words of Bruce Pearce of The Simcoe Reformer and Ken Glendenning of The Delhi News-Record, we hope at the same time to convince our readers that The Record is striving to serve the community in which it circulates. In the issue of September 27th, The Simcoe Reformer had this to say:

"The Reformer joins in extending felicitations to Editor Laird Miller and his staff of the Jarvis Record for their achievement in capturing three awards in the competition with other Village Newspapers across Canada. The honours are well-earned as The Record is typographically and editorially a model of excellence."

From the Delhi News-Record, issue of October 4th—
"Last week your editor had the pleasure of sitting in at a meeting and listening to a progressive young publisher and editor, Laird Miller of The Jarvis Record, when he addressed the local Kinsmen Club. Located in a smaller place than Delhi, he has made an outstanding success in his limited field. It was an inspiring and stimulating experience to see and hear of a young man, and to realize that it is by men of a calibre such as this that the old-time 'weak' newspapers are graduating into a public utility, which is an integral part of the progress and advancement of every community. His career constitutes a lesson that no matter how small the field there is room for development and scope for achievement."

JUST THE SAME

A RETURNED MAN said to us the other day it was most surprising to him the few changes that had taken place in Jarvis during his five years absence overseas. Although it was not his inference, yet it indicates that things have pretty well stood still during the war years. We need have no regrets in that fact, yet at the same time we do hope that the same condition will not remain for another five years. We hope to see in the near future progressive steps taken which will greatly alter the appearance of this Village. We are located in a prosperous community and there are many services which might well be established here in the interests of the entire district. As a trading centre we have been woefully inadequate. Some of our stores have been carrying on under severe handicaps but with the return of peace and normal times this condition will likely change. Too many of our friends in the immediate vicinity of the Village satisfy their shopping needs in other centers—a condition that is entirely with in our power to change.

A few years back we had a Merchant's Association and the need for a revival of that body is apparent. Present day merchandising methods call for advanced ideas and progressive thinking. We have equal opportunity on that score with merchants in other centers and we are among those hoping to see a progressive era ahead in the history of the Village.

PEACE YEET TO BE WON

—By Edna Jaques—

Victory is ours...decisive...absolute...total surrender. But peace—real peace—has yet to be won. Victory is not the end but only the beginning of our striving.

TO WIN BACK THE PEACE will not be easy, and certainly will take a long time. We have made a start in the right direction, but only a start.

So far—we have only the blueprints of peace. They won't work themselves either, we have to make them come true. To achieve their intended effect will require the earnest and daily efforts of many people and many nations.

There is, first of all, the reconstruction of a shattered world. We must bind up the wounds of the weary, care for those who have borne the battle, do for his widow and orphan. Only thus—shall we find a just and lasting peace.

War's end—was not the end of the fight of Europe. For the homeless and destitute, the hungry and forsaken, the barefoot and naked—the peace is yet to be won.

From October 1st to 20th the Canadian United Allied Relief Fund, on behalf of UNRRA, are putting on a national clothing collection. This will be YOUR big chance to really do a bit toward helping 125 million people in Europe and countless millions more in China get through the coming winter without suffering—maybe dying from exposure and cold.

The things most urgently needed are suits, men's, women's and children's. Odd coats, skirts, trousers, dresses, blouses, aprons, overcoats—men's, women's and children's. Jack-knives in all sizes. Scarves and shawls. Footwear (fastened firmly in pairs). Blankets. The lot of millions of children is appalling. Feet bundled in old rags and gunny sacks. No shoes. Emaciated bodies in threadbare wrappings.

Their hope for clothing is from this continent. Your attic may hold a "dead to life" for some child or adult. Your old suit may mean the difference between comfort and suffering to some man who has stood so much already.

The dress you put away when it got too small for you, may lighten the heart of some woman whose comforts are mighty few. That pair of shoes that just didn't "click" with your feet may keep some woman's bare feet from the snow this winter.

Little sister's outgrown dress and coat would look like a visit straight from Santa Claus to some little girl in Holland. Little Brother's last winter coat would make a little boy in Belgium feel like a millionaire.

Talk of peace and love and brotherhood won't mean much to a mother who watches her child slowly die for lack of what you can so easily spare. A baby wrapped in paper isn't a joke in Europe, it's a grim reality. Winter won't wait.

Round up your serviceable used clothing which you can spare without buying new.

ARE WE THANKFUL THE WAR IS OVER?

—By Lewis Milligan—

CANADIANS, along with all the peoples of the United Nations, have for six long years been fighting, working and praying for victory and peace. The victory has been achieved at a terrible cost in human life, in property and treasure. Special days have been set apart for rejoicing and for thanksgiving. But are we all thankful that peace has once more come to the world? Certainly the men and women who are returning day by day from the war zones are profoundly thankful that it is all over. You can see it in their faces as you pass them on the city streets. There is a wistful wonder in the eyes of those men as they look around on familiar scenes and faces which they left behind them three, four and five years ago, not knowing whether they would ever look upon them again. They can hardly believe it is true, and not merely another of those dreams of home which haunt them in their sleep on the battlefield.

When my eldest son arrived home from Holland, after five years overseas service, he told me that for the first few days he went around the house "pinching himself" to make sure that it was all real.

Yes, it is real. Victory has been won; peace has returned, and our fighting men are returning. Thousands of them will never return. They gave their all for their country. Walt Whitman's lines come aptly to mind in thinking of those men:

As I mused on these warlike days
and of peace returned,
and the dead that return no more.

Those who are returning are glad to resume the ways of peace. I was sitting alone in a certain modest club room today when a young man in civilian clothes stepped briskly into the room and advanced toward me with wide eyes and introduced himself. "My name is G—"

he said, "I got my discharge from the Air Force yesterday, I was in the hospital the last six months. Was a member of this club before going overseas. I guess I'm behind in my dues." He went on to explain how he had sold out a little business several years ago and joined up, and now that it was all over he was eager to get back into the "game" again. He had been running around the city all morning looking for a job, and had got two "pretty good offers."

In the course of conversation he mentioned the salary of one of the offers, and I thought it was very moderate for a young man of his experience, but he regarded it as "very good for a start."

What struck me about this young man was his eagerness and his willingness to accept any offer of work that he could do, without much concern as to salary. He was happy to be back again in civilian life and all he wanted was a chance to make a "new start."

He had risked his life for his country without who now that financial return, and he was ready to begin life over again on a lower status than that which he gave up to go to the war.

I thought of all the men whose good fortune it had been to remain at home during those years of war, and who had received big salaries and wages for services that involved little or no risk, and who had enjoyed the blessings of peace and plenty while this young man and thousands of his comrades had endured hardships and horrors for a pittance of pay.

I read in the newspapers of men who have been constantly employed for several years at wages far higher than they had ever received, and in many cases have earned more money than they knew what to do with, and who now that the war is over refuse to work for a living wage.

And yet these men are willing to accept $25.00 a week from the Government for doing nothing, when they might be earning more than that at the jobs offered, and at the same time be helping industry and themselves to make a "new start" into a world of peace.

Are we all thankful that the war is over and that peace has returned again to mankind? All our men and women in the fighting services are profoundly thankful, but it would appear that some of those whose good fortune it was to remain safely and comfortably at home are not quite so thankful that the war is over.
