MEAT RATIONING

THE MAN on the street says meat rationing will not curtail meat consumption in Canada. The Government says meat rationing will reduce consumption twelve per cent, which means this portion will be made available to the people who are starving for meat overseas.

Even if the man on the street is right every Canadian who has any honour will accept meat rationing. The people in the United Kingdom get about enough meat per week for one good meal; the people of France get one-tenth of a pound of meat per week. These are the very same people, who until the final surrender of Japan this week, were fighting along side of us to preserve liberty. The only course open is to accept any plans that are designed to assist these people who suffered the horrors of war at their very doorstep. If we are not prepared to sacrifice to this small degree we are certainly most unworthy of the victory over our enemies.

There is evidence too that Meatless Tuesday and meatless Friday are just words to many people. Homes serving meat on these two days of the week should keep their shades drawn. Restrictions on meat is no hardship to Canadians when such a wide variety of other foods are available to them in such prodigious quantities. Let's forget regulations and ration ourselves. We can all cut down below the rationed allowance and still be well fed. Let's be the kind of people we want other people to be.

RECOGNITION OF SERVICE

A RETURNED SERVICEMAN in the last war whose contribution to the cause of Victory will remain with him a lifetime, made a suggestion with respect to the recognition of servicemen in this conflict that is worthy of serious consideration.

This man spoke with the voice of experience. He said he failed to see the value of a gift to a serviceman on his return to civilian life. What that man needs, he said, is guaranteed security in the future. A sure knowledge that as the years progress his family will not suffer from his inability, due to war service, to provide them with the opportunities to which they are entitled. He pointed out as evidence specific cases where men had, a few short years after returning to civilian life, become physically incapacitated and were dependent upon a pension existence. Reduced to this category, all plans that man may have had for the future of his family become void.

His suggestion was an Insurance plan of some sort that would cover such casualties. A plan administered by local authorities, who would have an intimate grasp of the particular circumstances surrounding the serviceman and his family. A plan devoid of red-tape procedure, that would become immediately effective, and would ensure that servicemen of a standard or above standard of living. He felt that any serviceman in this category richly deserves such treatment and we thoroughly agree with him.

War is a peculiar business and sometimes leaves its marks years after the conflict is ended. Any man who offers his life for his country deserves every security his country can give him for the remainder of his life. There must be no veterans of this conflict who will ever be overlooked or neglected.

An earthquake sufficiently intense to cause damage to property occurs somewhere in the world on an average of every three days and ten hours.

The Shipshaw power plant in Quebec, which provides electricity for the Aluminum Company of Canada, has a potential kilowatt hour capacity greater than that of Boulder Dam in Colorado.

Pen, Scissors and Pastepot

The move to get women out of the kitchens is being still further advanced by the announcement that meals packed pre-cooked frozen meals will be sold at grocery stores soon. The housewife will be able to attend two matinees in the afternoon—stop at the corner grocery—pick up her frozen meal and get a complete meal for her work week husband that will be all ready to set before him after a few minutes heating. It's served in the package which is thrown away after he is through—hence no dish washing. Maybe it will be better than eating out of cans.

The cost of living in July stood at 129.3, an increase of 4.2 per cent since price control started late in 1941. We know of one person requiring a car which is essential to his particular job. After securing the bus would cost him $1,900. It was one of the lower priced cars in pre-war times. The difference he was told was due to the allowable $12 per month mark-up since it had been frozen in storage since 1942. But then cars aren't figured in the cost of living, despite the fact they may be essential in making a living.

It is heartening to learn that the Russians consider British methods superior in some things. Moscow building organizations have asked the United Kingdom for films, plans and literature showing how various types of homes are built in Britain. The financial news reports that it is anticipated that many British methods will be employed by the Soviet in reconstruction work.

A young pilot was describing his early training. When he was in Norwich, he said, he was shut up in a Link trainer or something of the kind that never leaves the instruction floor. The instructor told him to fly from Norwich to Bristol. Sitting there motionless, he made the necessary calculations and, having completed the theoretical flight, he said: "All right, we're now coming down in Bristol." The instructor replied sternly: "Take your hat off. You're in the middle of Westminster Abbey."

With so many heavy rains lately, it would be well for users of well water to have their wells examined and tested. This is particularly advisable concerning wells at summer resorts.

"Here comes our cheque Mummy!"

All over Canada, in cities, towns, villages and on farms, hundreds of thousands of men and women watch for the postman to bring dependents' allowance cheques as other people look for pay-day. They are people of all ages whose breadwinners are away on active service. They include returned men not yet back in civil life.

And soon there will be hundreds of thousands more back from the war. They will receive cheques to help them buy civilian clothes, to go to college, to get technical or vocational training, to start in business for themselves, or to set up as farmers or fishermen.

The banks have to be prepared to cash all official cheques for these and a dozen other purposes—and to do so anywhere in Canada without charge. In fact, the banks supply Canada with the nationwide machinery to facilitate a grateful country's plans for restoring service men and women to civilian life.

This is a tremendous task. It will entail a vast amount of bookkeeping. But you can be sure that your banks will take it in their stride without impairing regular banking service.

ERIE

Miss Margaret Biggar entered St. Joseph Hospital on Tuesday, to commence training for a nurse. The anniversary services of the Stone Church will be held the fourth Sunday of September. Miss Vivian Biggar is spending a short time at her home after completing a course in nursing at Detroit. Mr. Harry Williamson has recently had hydro installed in his buildings. A Michigan west-bound car was badly damaged early Tuesday morning when it ran into another car about seven miles east of Jarvis, according to the driver of the damaged car. The other car did not have a proper tail-light. However, it left the scene of the accident at once. The Michigan car had to be towed in.

ROCKFORD
