No Fresh Meat For Rations; No Fodder For Livestock

happy? Feel that it's unfair to have only about two pounds of meat a week? Take a look at what five key European countries have to FRANCE: a thin slice of meat a week, equal to one-tenth of a pound Meat in restaurants only on Sandays and legal holidays. Meat consumption in Paris down from 117,000 tons to 5000 tons. Starvation bringing disease in its wake. Children especially suffering; infant mortality rate up 50 per cent. BELGIUM: One meat meal during the week. Nine-tenths of Belgium's chickens have disappearand all slaugh ering has been stopbe built up. Belgians have to rely HOLLAND: most meals built round sugar beets. Horsemeat when it can be obtained, is $20 a pound. Mercy convoys from Britain doing their best to provide Dutch children with soup. GREECE: there is absolutely no fresh meat for rations. All the pigs have disappeared and practically all the dairy cows. One and a hal million people are living in caves, scarcely keeping themselves alive. One million people have malaria.

YUGOSLAWIA: livestock population wiped out. A shipload of sheep from abroad had to be unloaded by the crew; the Yugoslav men were too weak from starvation to work. People who are strong enough are bringing small quantities of grain in on their backs from hundreds of miles away. There simply isn't

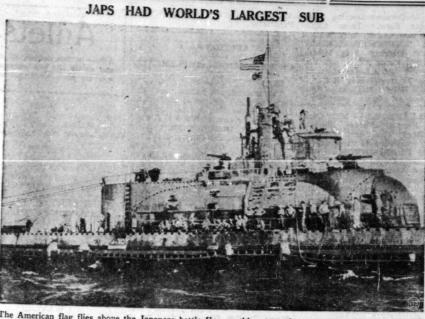

Churchill Wielded

One reason given for the defeat of Winston Churchill is that the former Prime Minister had ac through his leadership in the war, comments the Windsor Star. It is a trait of the English people that they dislike seeing anyone approach the position of a dictator. Although Mr. Churchill may neither have wished to be nor was a dictator, there is no doubt about the great power he wielded. In war the people followed his leadership, but once the crisis against Germany had ended, the such power being in the hands of any individual, even Mr. Churchill's. There were so many factors in the recent election in Britain, it is idle to single out any special one. But, it is always interesting to review some of the opinions.

Too Smart To Live This atom smashing business prompts the thought that the world is getting too smart. Some creatures of the past became ex-tinct because they were too dumb to live. Now there's the danger that mankind may become extinct because it is too smart to live. - Kitchener Record.

Lights Go Out Again In London

Britain, which happily welcomed sparkling lights when Germany was defeated, now watches the blackout creep back.

Darkened streets are part of the austerity program the British people have been told they must expect to continue in greater or less degree for perhaps two years. After the splurge of bright lights in celebration of peace, shortages of electrical power and gas have made in the opinion of the government conservation essential.

And so, in London, the lights are going out at midnight in various areas, with street lights turned on at dusk and off at midnight. There will be half-lighting on by-roads,
