FROM THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

The photo above has come a long way-from the bottom of Bikini lagoon, in the Pacific, through the air, over telephone wires to this paper. It shows a Navy diver stirring up "coral dust" as he moves about on the sea bottom, 162 feet down, during atomic bomb test preliminaries. Taken by underwater photography used for mine disposal during the war, the photograph was transmitted by radio over Telephoto equipment to San Francisco, where it was sent by Telephoto on telephone lines to various points throughout the country.

How Great Britain Paid For The War

And Money Provided By British Commonwealth

New figures on the cost of the war to Great Britain have been given out in London.

Hitherto, presumably because Lend-Lease and Mutual Aid were so lavishly advertised in public discussions, it has been assumed that these formed the major part of Britain's war finance. But, actually, it now turns out that, apart from the United Kingdom's tremendous financial resources, it British Commonwealth, joined to that of the so-called "sterling area," which provided the British Government with the larger share of the money, supplies, and mutual aid it required for the most costly war ever fought, says The Strat-ford Beacon-Herald. Here are the figures: The total cost of the war to the United Kingdom was, in dollar equivalent, $88,800,000,000.

The net United States Lend-Lease, loans and purchases of British securities, less the Reverse end-Lease and Mutual Aid transactions, totalled $12,300,0000,000. But the loans, supplies, pur-chases of British securities and other assistance given by the Dominions, India and the colonies came to $5,103,000,000, and the balances of the "sterling area" countries left in London brought the total up to $17,356,000,000.

The first price-wage spiral in the great automobile industry of the United States already has almost run its course. Another spiral already is in prospect, comments the Winnipeg Free Press. When the workers of the automobile industry won increases in wages last winter to compensate them for the rising cost of living, it was supposed that they would be satisfied at least for some time to come, that industrial peace would be restored and that the largest enterprise in the country could get on with production. Now the United Automobile Workers are preparing to ask for another wage increase because, they say, prices have gone up again. In some automobile plants the UAW man every time. already has given notice that it must have higher wages to cover the advance in living costs since the last increase was granted. Here in simplest form is the inflation spiral at work - higher wages which produce highe prices; then higher wages to compensate the worker for higher prices; then, inevitably, higher prices again cancelling out the
