Practical Gardening

Spading Methods Important in Gardening

By W. J. DRYDEN, WNU Farm Editor.

Systematic spading makes the job easier and more complete. Here is one way to do it. Set a definite task for your first day's work, say a strip six feet wide running the shortest dimension of the garden. At one end dig a ditch, say one foot wide and the depth of the spade, removing all soil from it. File this soil near the opposite end of the strip.

Begin to spade. The spade should be driven down straight, not on a slant, to its full depth. Take a small slice of the soil, the amount will depend upon the condition of the soil and the strength of the spader. Under no condition take enough to strain the back. Spading should be made easy. Lift it up, turn the spade over so that the soil falls under the spade and bottom soil on top. In filling the first trench, you have opened a second one.

If you wish to spade under manure or fertilizer, spread it evenly over the area except for the top of your initial trench. When this first trench has been dug, clean the manure from the top of the next trench and throw it into the bottom of the first; then proceed with your spading, placing the soil on top of the manure.

The soil should be broken up with the spade as you go along to lessen future cultivation work.

TEMPORARY PEACE

Andrei A. Gromyko, left, Russian delegate to United Nations Security Council whose walkout of Council discussion of Iranian question put the group on the diplomatic hot spot, and Hussein Ala, back to camera, Iran U. N. delegate who started the fire in the first place, warmly greet each other. Gromyko and Ala momentarily are in agreement that the Iranian question should be dropped from Council agenda. Center is Prof. Boris Stein, chief Russian advisor.

GREECE SEEKS WAR PRIZES

In a surprise demand on the eve of the Big Four foreign ministers' peace terms conference in Paris, Greece demanded the slices of Albania and Bulgaria indicated on map above. After the second Balkan War, 1913, Bulgaria got northeastern Macedonia and western Thrace. Greece regained Thrace after World War I.

Highlights of the News

Famine Crisis

Rescue of many million from starvation appears more hopeful today than it has for weeks.

In a series of week-end developments, action has been taken to obtain and speed new supplies of food to the hunger-swept areas of the world.

In the United States, a compulsory wheat-saving program become effective April 22. It cuts the domestic use of wheat and wheat products 25 per cent.

The order cutting domestic wheat consumption puts all Americans on short bread rations.

* * *

The British Government is preparing drastic steps comparable to those just taken in the United States to save wheat and flour for a hungry world.

American food planners have contended that British food reserves are excessive. They figure they are large enough to last about three months, but the British insist they would last nearer six weeks.

* * *

The Canadian Government is intensifying its efforts to increase the flow of food from the country's granaries to the famine-stricken peoples abroad.

The newest step has been the release of an additional 100,000 tons of oats and low-grade wheat held in reserve for livestock feeding combined with the suggestion by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that Canada and the United States cancel export permits for flour "except such exports as can be justified on the basis of urgent need."

Above six weeks ago, to meet an "urgent and desperate situation," the Government reduced by 10 per cent the amount of wheat for domestic milling and by 50 per cent for distilling, urged a sharp reduction in domestic consumption and elimination of waste, gave priorities on rail transport for wheat and flour for export, changed regulations on bulk shipments to increase exports, and intensified its campaign for the liquidation of grain inventories.

No Steel Soon

At Detroit, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp., predicted that if the strike of 300,000 AFL United Mines Workers continues, the steel industry will be shut down completely within three weeks. Add another week and the auto manufacturers will be without steel.

U. S. Steel Corp. announced that its biggest subsidiary in Pittsburgh would cut production to 26 per cent of capacity next week. Thousands of auto workers faced early layoffs because of the steel shortage.

Peacetime Armies

Russia's current armed strength is estimated at 6,000,000 men and she plans to train an additional 1,500,000 men a year, according to information reaching Washington.

This compares with an estimated 1,000,000 American youths who would be trained annually if Congress approved President Truman's recommendation for universal peacetime military training of youths 18 to 20.

Distillers Warned

British Food Minister Sir Ben Smith announced in the House of Commons that he had warned British distillers that they could have no more barley during the present period of world food crisis.

Robert Boothby, Conservative, said a policy of cutting down whisky production was shortsighted because whisky was the biggest dollar earner Britain had. Sir Ben replied that the obvious answer was that there had to be a choice between feeding the people and making whisky.

Mussolini's Body Stolen

Milan municipal authorities reported last week that the body of Benito Mussolini was removed during the night from Maggiore Cemetery, Milan, by "unknown persons."

An inquiry to ascertain the responsibility was under way. The discovery was made by workers who were in the cemetery to exhume other bodies.

Mussolini was buried in a pauper's grave in the cemetery soon after his execution by Partisans near the Swiss border in April, 1945.

Mussolini was captured on the shores of Lake Como attempting to escape into Switzerland. After a summary trial, he was shot.

Gold Strike

The richest gold reef ever discovered in South Africa, containing 62.6 ounces of gold to the ton of rock, has been discovered five miles southeast of Bendalsrust in the Orange Free State.

The strike yields 1,252 pennyweights over 18.4 inches, compared with the normal yield of 12 pennyweights. This is equivalent to $2,500 a ton in Canadian funds. Up to now a yield of 80 to 100 pennyweights had been regarded as exceptional.

Line on Cars

Production of 30,000 vehicles a week is expected as soon as the labor disputes in the automobile industry decline.

To Televise Tests

Television will be used at the atom bomb tests at Bikini and in the Pacific to record for remote observers what actually happens when the bombs explode.

WE ARE A Moderate People

CANADA has set an example to all nations of the world in its control of wartime prices. This great record was made possible by the wholehearted co-operation of the Canadian people with their Government's anti-inflation measures. Now that the war is over, Canada's fine record should be maintained . . . by moderating our pleasures, by controlling unessential spending, we continue to serve our nation and ourselves best.

The staple necessities of life have priority calls on our money and our efforts. Unnecessary spending at this time will bid up prices on everything that is still scarce and will serve only to devalue all our personal wealth and that of the nation.

The House of Seagram for many years has advocated moderation and now suggests its continued careful observance in these times.

Let moderation in all we do be the keynote for lasting stability.

"ANYWAY, WE'VE HAD A GOOD TIME"

War years meant vacations to these donkeys on a farm near Kent, England, but they will soon be returning to the sands of Margate where they carry youngsters at the seaside resort. The farmer takes a last look at the animals which were his war guests since 1939.

Russians Should Quit Manchuria

They Have No Business In Chinese Territory Claims New York Herald Tribune

Manchuria is Chinese territory, inhabited by more than thirty million Chinese. Its mines and industries and food are essential to the creation of a strong China. It is an area in which all North China can be penetrated, as the Japanese proved. Russian domination of the Manchurian provinces is a threat to the existence of China and is an attack upon two long-held American policies—the policy of the open door and the policy of protecting the territorial integrity of China. Therefore since the Russians have no business in Manchuria. Therefore the Russians should get out.

Internal Peace Agreement

The Russians know—for the evidence is obvious—that the strong right-wing faction in the Chinese government is both anti-Communist and anti-Russian. They also know that the Chungking regime, with American assistance in transporting troops, desires to take over all Manchuria, including areas in which the Chinese Reds have strength, as soon as possible. Meanwhile, China's internal peace agreement (which ended the fighting between Chungking and the Chinese Reds in most areas) has not been applied to Manchuria, where neither faction is dominant, and fighting continues in some parts of the Manchurian provinces. While it goes on, Chungking is giving more and more emphasis to American aid in the economic development of China and is resisting Russian demands for further concessions in Manchuria.

U. S. Troops in China

There are American troops in China—kept there, according to the American contention, for disarming and shipping home the Japanese. There is, in addition, a program under consideration for long-term American training for the Chinese Army. Outside of China, but not far away, there are American troops in southern Korea, in all of Japan and many of the islands of the western Pacific—all of which are potential American bases in case of war with Russia.

SPOTS OF SPORTS

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

("A Six Bit Critic")

In the past it has always been our custom to try to refrain from giving advice to boxing promoters. There are several reasons for this, the principal one being that advice is just about the last thing such promoters desire from sports writers. What they want from us is plenty of publicity, and no questions asked, in advance of the brawl—heaps of admiration for their match-making genius if the thing should happen to be worth looking at—and loads of sympathy and alibis in case their much-ballyed "Fight of the Century" turns out to have been "The Fight of the Stenchers." (O.K. officer, we'll come quietly).

* * *

However, right now we feel very much like departing from this custom, and tipping off the hard-working promoters to a whole series of fights which, if properly smoked up, might very well break all existing attendance records. The principals would be well known—world famous, as a matter of fact; each should have a personal following that should pack the joint; and if they are only fight a battle half as good as the one they talk, the resulting affairs should be worth going many miles to see.

* * *

The contestants? Well, you might have guessed it yourself. Who else but all those old Allied Generals who, a year or so ago were so chuck-full of admiration for one another's genius that you might very well have thought that Napoleon's and Wellington's were a dime a baker's dozen; and who, today, are beginning to let down their hair and to such tales out of school that we begin to wonder how it is that we're not all heiling Hitler right this minute.

* * *

Yes, indeed, those should be fights that should draw like a suction pump. Just imagine the thrill of sitting there and hearing some flannel-mouthed announcer bellow—"In this corner, representing the Yew-nited States of America, weighing one ton and a quarter, medals included, General ——" But we'd better desist. Perhaps, all things considered, it would be just as well not to name any actual names right at this juncture; but no doubt you can see what gorgeous possibilities the whole thing offers. In fact, the more we think of it, the more we're inclined to try and dig up an angel and go into the fight-promoting racket ourselves!

* * *

Whenever a referee stops a fight—as happened in Toronto recently—and tosses the alleged contestants out of the ring on the grounds that neckling is, or should be, a private rather than a public pastime, there's one question that is always asked. It is: "If they're so frosty about fights being on the level, why do they let the wrestlers get away with the stuff that they regularly do?"

* * *

The answer to that one is, of course, that while modern wrestling is technically listed as a sport, it actually belongs among the spectacles, such as rodeos, circuses and the like. Your true follower of wrestling is a peculiar and special species—one with which we have had a great deal of intimate and close-up dealings, and which we are just as far from figuring out today as we were at the beginning.

* * *

The only sports follower who can get more enthusiastic, more frantic than a wrestling fan is a wrestling fanette—for, in this regard, the poet was right on the beam when he said that the female of the species is deadlier than the male. During the stress and strain of a hard-fought bout we have seen wrestling ringsiders go into frenzies and perform antics and actions that, if you've never attended one of these affairs, you wouldn't think possible. We've seen hard-headed and successful business men—also men of high position in the learned professions—throwing hats, canes, programs, bottles and other bric-a-brac at some big grappler who had roused their ire by, apparently, doing foul damage to their favorite.

* * *

...And they were in deadly earnest when they did it—really craving for the villain's life or gore. But we doubt that—deep down in their hearts—one out of a hundred actually believed that all the mayhem and skullduggery that went on in the ring was on the level. They knew, in their innermost brains, that ninety per cent or more of what they saw was nothing more or less than an act. Maybe they were home, and were a little bit ashamed of themselves. But they were back again, the following week, just as red-eyed and enthusiastic, just as eager for their favorite to ram the villain head-first through the concrete floor and then tramp him down with the double-dealing referee.

* * *

Yes, a strange breed indeed, your wrestling fans and fanettes. Sometimes we wonder what their reactions would be to a real bout—one in which there was nothing but straight wrestling involved—wonder how they'd enjoy one such bout, thirty or more years ago, which was for the championship which both the principals claimed, and very badly wanted. For in that fracas the two contestants grappled for more than four hours without a single fall; and, at one period, stood for more than two hours, locked, without once moving their feet.

* * *

We're afraid that would have seemed rather slow to your modern wrestling bug. Still, there are other things that can seem rather slow, too. Sports columns like this, for instance. So that will be all till next week.

5-Months-Old Quintuplet Calves Shown First Time

Quintuplet calves, only group of their kind known, were exhibited for the first time in Fairbury, Neb., recently.

The bovines — named United States, Russia, England, China and France — weighed less than 200 pounds at birth. Today they aggregated 1,000 pounds as they pranced from their house and paraded through Fairbury. The parade had the aspect of a Nebraska county fair.

Costumes consisted of red halters and white blankets lettered in red with their names.

France is the only heifer. Two are white faces, one is red, and two are a mixture of red and white.

The five were born November 20, 1945, of a grade Shorthorn cow and a non-registered Hereford bull. The mother was owned by Leo Schmidt, who lives five miles northeast of Fairbury.

Islands Submerge

Two steaming volcanic islets which rose out of the sea 200 miles south of Yokosuka two months ago are submerging. A patrol flight reported the twin islands had almost completely disappeared and could hardly be discerned from the air. The volcanic formation appeared about Feb. 10. Smoking rocks reached a height of approximately 50 feet.

Canada Could Grow More Wheat

By restricting our own consumption of wheat we can do something to help solve the situation, says the Winnipeg Free Press. But with a population of only 12,000,000 people, it will not amount to a great deal in view of the extent of the world disaster. Only one course remains open which will enable us to lend really substantial aid to the victims of famine.

That course is to increase our wheat production by plowing up some of the acreage which we intended this year to leave in summerfallow. Agricultural experts and farm leaders have already estimated that by plowing up about 2,000,000 acres of summer fallow this year, Canada's long-term agricultural program would not be too seriously imperilled and an extra 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of wheat would be harvested.
