OUTGO WEEK

VARIOUS WEEKS throughout the year are set aside to commemorate some event or to arouse consciousness to some public responsibility.

A few years ago Income Tax was something the average person regarded as a justifiable demand upon the excess earnings of the rich.

But the war changed all that and anyone now who is not required to fill in one of the Department of National Revenue forms is in company only with a terrific minority.

Despite this annual undertaking which causes headaches, backaches and in fact is known to take the victims right down in bed at times, the rank and file are gradually becoming accustomed to it.

Our Provincial Premiers are in Ottawa right now in conference with Federal Officials trying to determine who is going to collect the taxes in the future.

Butter SUBSTITUTE AFTER BECOMING ACCUSTOMED to the delicate flavour of butter with our meals, the present aroused feeling regarding the shortage of this food product is quite understandable.

Furthermore there is no more likely organization, or group, that might be expected to show concern than the Housewives' unions in the larger cities.

But there are other matters that should be considered before any amendments to the present statute are hastily made.

Particularly at this time when it seems to be more clearly recognized than ever that general prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the primary producer, we should be able to withstand the temporary shortage of butter rather than jeopardize the future prosperity of one of our basic industries.

SHERLOCK HOLMES AND THE SOLAR SYSTEM

By Lewis Milligan

DR. WATSON, in describing the character of his new-found friend, Sherlock Holmes, tells us that the detective had little or no knowledge of literature, philosophy and astronomy.

"What the deuce is it to me?" said Holmes, impatiently. "You say that we go around the sun. If we went around the moon..."

All this, of course, is fiction and far-fetched, but it raises a very interesting question—many questions. One might work out a theory of education from Holmes' point of view, or base upon it a philosophy of life.

Great knowledge is not essential to human happiness. "He that increases his knowledge, increases sorrow," said the wise man; which is another way of saying, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

Childhood is the happiest period of human life, but our happiness in childhood was due largely to our sense of wonder at the new world in which we found ourselves.

Thus one might prove that the acquisition of knowledge is essential to happiness, even though the knowledge be superstition.

The classical superstitions of Paganism which peopled the universe with gods and other invisible presences was a form of intuitive knowledge which served its purpose and satisfied human craving for an explanation of things.

The theory of relativity raises disconcerting questions regarding our ideas of space and time. The idea of infinity seems to be as much a myth as was the limited idea of the universe conceived by the ancients.

Sherlock Holmes was right, from his point of view as a creator and unraveller of crime mysteries. For his purposes it didn't matter whether the earth went around the sun or whether it went around the moon.

But, strangely enough, the creator of Sherlock Holmes was not satisfied with such limited knowledge of things, for Conan Doyle spent the latter part of his life probing into the unfathomable mysteries of the human soul through spiritualism.

Pen, Scissors and Pastepot

Reports from Simcoe County state it is estimated that postage stamps in half production will be slashed in half this year due to lack of labour.

These who think the Royal Ontario Museum is rather a dull place may be surprised to learn that more than 20,000 people visited there in the month of February with the highest attendance for a single day being 9,522.

Thomas Richard Henry always catches the oddities in news reports. He picked up a CP dispatch the other day as follows:

"Newport Isle of Wight, Apr. 28 (AP)—Hanson, favourite of the Red Bull Cow is dead. Grazing in the lush pastures of Wellow farm, the cow was bitten on the udder by an adder."

Maybe it is just that the writer likes variations, observes T.H.R. and couldn't bring himself around to writing: "Bitten on the udder by an adder."

They say in a certain section down in the United States, real progress has been made toward temperance. The Bar Owners Association slaps a stiff fine on the operator who permits a patron to get drunk on his premises.

The Anglican, Presbyterian and United Church, are each conducting wide campaigns to raise money primarily to strengthen the spiritual foundations of their institutions.

All corn growers, whether on the farm, or elsewhere, are hereby notified that all long stalks, or other corn remnants, which they may be, must either be ploughed under completely, or else gathered and burned before May 20th.

1946 is an all-important year

FOR CANADA'S TOURIST BUSINESS

MILLIONS OF AMERICAN VISITORS are expected to come to Canada during 1946 for their post-war vacation.

It won't always be easy to accommodate them. We still have our crowding and shortages. We are still in the aftermath of war. This is the very reason we should all take special care to be courteous and considerate to our guests this summer.

This year, of all years, we must maintain the reputation we have won for true hospitality.

YOU MAY NEVER SEE A TOURIST, BUT... tourist dollars flow to you. The grocer, the garage man, the farmer, the office worker—everybody benefits directly or indirectly from tourist spending, and the extra work and income it creates.

THEY'LL BE TALKING ABOUT US... We want them to come again. We want them to tell their friends: "We had a marvellous time in Canada!" By making them truly welcome, we can win millions of enthusiastic salesmen for Canada—"satisfied customers" who will pass on to many times their number the story of Canadian hospitality and of Canada's unlimited attractions as a vacation land.
