CANADIAN PRESS NEWS SPOTLIGHT

The rift between right and left on the world's political-diplomatic front widened last week with spokesmen on neither side making what appeared to be a constructive effort at compromise.

Two widely-headlined events - one in Washington, one in Zurich - marked the rightward swing of the west. Climaxing an intra-administration controversy over foreign policy, President Truman swung his weight behind the State Department. Byrnes by his resignation of the American policies as criticized by the delegation to the Paris peace conference headed by Mr. Byrnes on the grounds they displayed a lack of proper willingness to co-operate with Russia.

Boasting out Mr. Wallace told the president he would "continue to fight for peace" and most observers were sure they had not heard the last of the man who coined the phrase "century of the common man."

The previous day one of Britain's most famous voices - that of Winston Churchill - had called for a Franco-German settlement which would lay the groundwork for a "United States of Europe." Though the leader of the opposition did not speak for the government, none-the-less Mr. Churchill's war-won prestige remains high and his words carry weight in western Europe.

On the left, at Lake Success, N.Y., Russian delegate Gromyko used his veto in a meeting of the United Nations Security Council to turn down an American proposal for on-the-spot investigation of alleged border shootings in Greece. The proposal had received eight to an eleven possible affirmative votes before the uncompromising veto.

Many American papers described President Truman's action in such terms as "entirely sound and above reproach" and a necessary move to restore unity and continuity in foreign policy." In short, Friday night broadcast, Henry Wallace appealed for public support in what he said was the fight he would continue to make for peace.

London papers made much of Wallace's ouster from the cabinet. Most of them expressed belief that State Secretary Byrnes delivered to Mr. Truman an ultimatum which, in effect, said: "Fire Wallace or I quit."

Following the worst airplane crash in western Canadian history when 21 R.C.A.F. personnel were killed at Estevan, Sask. early last week, a westbound Belgian airliner crashed September 18th in northeastern New Brunswick with forty-four passengers aboard.

Twenty-six persons were killed and of eighteen survivors, four were critically injured. Helicopters arrived at nearby Gander airport at the week end to rescue the critically injured survivors. Medical supplies, food and blankets had previously been dropped by aid to land rescue parties who had reached the scene. It was a miracle that there were any survivors. Canadian Press correspondent Charles Warren said the big airliner apparently had plunged at a 45-degree angle into some white birch. It travelled about twice its length before coming to a stop on a hillside.

Views At Reception For Veterans

These views give a good idea of the size of the crowd seated in front of the bleachers and in the ball diamond area.

Seated on the platform were: Earl Catherwood, General Chairman, Rev. W. H. Fuller, Program Chairman and Gordon Skinner, main speaker of the day. Seated with Judge Kinnear is Mrs. E. S. Pond, wife of the Reeve of Walpole.

These two gents seem to be reasonably happy about the whole thing, although it is obvious one is more worried than the other despite the fact he has more hair. The jovial gentleman on the left, Mr. L. B. Holmes, secretary of the committee, and a veteran of the last war saw to it that the boys arrived at the platform for their gifts in the proper order.

Hagersville Citizens Band did a fine job in providing music for the occasion. Attired in scarlet tunics they colour to the parade. The Bandmaster, Andy Sabola, can be seen at the extreme right, while the manager, Fred Willis, is third from the right.

Reeve Pond is talking seriously to Milton Kindree as he steps up for his gift. Possibly the Reeve is telling him that he will have to be satisfied with a certificate for the time being until it is possible to secure the gift which will eventually be his.

SEPTEMBER MEETING CHEAPSIDE AUXILIARY W.M.S.
Rev. and Mrs. Barnes entertained the members of the Nanticoke Auxiliary of the W.M.S. at the parsonage Cheapside on Tuesday of last week. The occasion was the regular September meeting of the Auxiliary and the program "Introducing India" was in charge of Mrs. H. K. Saunders as Canada, Mrs. W. H. Hodges, as India, while the church was represented by Mrs. George Saunders.

The book for study this year by the North American Continent including the four Canadian Churches, Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian and United is "India at the Threshold" by Dr. Winifred Boyce.

A Quiz on India brought out much interesting information about that country.

The hymn "Prayer to a Heart of Lowly Love" written by a famous Indian Christian, was sung as a prayer by Mrs. Saunders. Readings were given by Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Howard Dennis. Letters from Missionaries Miss Leta Werner in Trinidad and Miss Ida McKenzie in Africa, were read by Mrs. Hennig and Mrs. Barnes. The secretary, Mrs. K. Volk conducted the roll call. The responses were verses of favorite hymns Mrs. Kindree conducted the business
