

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendolyn P. Clark

Sometimes you wonder at the great tricks that fate can play. And you certainly wondered this morning...

Can you imagine the sheer terror of getting up in the morning to find your barn a blazing inferno? For that is what happened in this case...

That all-important subject of price brings us around again to the latest price increase—eggs, turtles, leather goods, fats and oils...

Well, after a while I began to cool off and I finally came to the conclusion that possibly the upswing in prices might result in a leveling off period...

Imagine this: A friend of mine who often stops in at a tea room told me that since after she has seen high school youngsters come in after school...

At the same time one cannot help feeling sorry for the kids because it will be hard for them to understand and to make adjustments when this easy-come, easy-go period comes to an end...

But of course the young folk are not the only offenders. I suppose we have all developed an "I want" personality to a greater or less degree...

Comparing the doubts of this or that, I suppose you have all developed an "I want" personality to a greater or less degree...

Back to the subject of price deflation. From what I have gathered high prices are not expected to last very long and you will have noticed that most of them are things that women have to deal with...

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

A bright light shone in my eyes, making the faces of the two men across the table blur and seem unnatural...

The bald man was shuffling cards—the kind you play bridge with. He turned them face up and placed them in a line in front of me...

"You had a bad day today," he said. "I did a bad thing today." "What are you doing on the floor, son? You have your father and everyone else in the house awake..."

"What would you like most, little boy?" asked Baldy. "I want to go home," I replied. "Ha, ha," he gurgled. "Get that, Chisel. Little boy wants to go home..."

"You gambled today little boy. You should never have done that. Those who gamble pay a penalty, especially those 'Little Boys' who gamble. It never pays off. You know that now, don't you?"

CHAPTER IV
Wordlessly, as McCale bit his lip to keep silent, Adelaide Bigelow reached for the door in the envelope. She turned slowly, motioning him to leave the room with her.

His silent drew him forward, to the woman at the piano. She was exceedingly beautiful in an almost classic way. The high cheekbones of her face shadowed the faintest of hollows...

With an effort he brought himself back to the woman who faced him. Her manner was arrogant as she repeated his name in the cool, detached tone she might use to a chauffeur...
