On the Farm Front
BRIEF NOTES FOR THE BUSY FARMER
 — By Haldimand Harry —

Haldimand farmers should recognize the fact that while the weather is still acute and should recognize themselves accordingly. One large wholesale dealer expresses the opinion that this may be the worst winter yet experienced as far as feed grains are concerned. It is felt that the recognized that not enough feed grain is being produced in Canada to meet the domestic demand and to maintain the production of live stock products, which Canada has undertaken to ship to Britain.

Protein continues to be one of the limiting factors but smart dairymen can go a long way toward beating the protein shortage by the intelligent management of their dairy cow rations. One of the first steps to be taken is to feed the dairy cow in proportion to her milk production. Heavy producers of milk require more protein than low producers and usually they suffer most if they don't get it. This is of course, means that the farmer must know what his cows are producing. Regular use of a reliable milk scale is the only sure method of knowing this.

Another suggestion to beat the protein shortage is to make good use of legume hay. Good alfalfa hay, properly harvested at the right time, contains up to fifteen or sixteen percent crude protein, and when fed liberally, will supply a large share of the protein needs. It can, therefore, be safely said that a ration made up of plenty of good alfalfa hay with a somewhat reduced percentage of digestible protein.

The effect of the removal of the producer's subsidy on milk is now being reflected in a reduced price of consumption. In September 1946 the price of fluid milk was six percent higher than in the corresponding month of 1945. However, in October 1946 the price following removal of the subsidy) the sales showed a three percent decrease from the price in August. Even more it is a time when the price of milk is being made more available for manufacturing purposes, according to a recent release and may explain to some extent the reason for the jump in butter production in Haldimand County.

It is still a little too early to assess the probable results of the recent announcement of an increase in the price of bacon. Undoubtedly, however, it should encourage the production of more hogs. Even before any announcement was made, there was fairly reliable evidence that Haldimand hog producers were increasing their breeding operations to a limited degree. The expectation is for an increase of some 500 hogs to be marketed during the period of April, May, and June 1947 as compared with the same three months of 1946. In the Province a 7.3 percent increase is forecast for the same period. It is altogether likely that the main result of the increase in price will not be felt until the end of the year.

Haldimand dairymen, whether selling in the whole milk or cream trade, are urged to note that careful control of milk production is important. There is a tendency, during a period of maintaining quality with the return of high bacteria counts are of warm spells should be avoided. A cooling of milk is always best. There quickly that this means of cooling milk is no better than the same in cold water. In winter this cooling has when cooled is prevented from freezing, especially if kept in an insulated cooling tank.

Order those chicks now if you intend to participate in the increased egg prices next September. Canada's future and indeed Haldimand's future in poultry, depends upon a good supply of fall and early winter eggs. The hatcheryman sets his

Further Steps In Decontrol Ties Taken By Government

A further step in the orderly removal of emergency controls, effective January 15th, has been announced by Hon. Douglas Abbott, Minister of Finance. It involves the removal of a variety of goods and services from price control, reducing the controlled list largely to goods of basic importance in living costs and production costs.

"The outlook for a better balance between supply and demand is beginning to brighten," Mr. Abbott said. "The menace of soaring prices is beginning to recede in some directions."

Nevertheless, it is evident that the time is not yet ripe to remove all price controls. Prices of many basic foods, clothing, certain basic materials, and rentals would increase very substantially if all controls were removed.

"Consequently the list of goods and services which still remain subject to price control contains most of the basic foods, practically all articles of clothing, boots and shoes, most textile home furnishings, coal and wood fuel, the major household appliances and heating and plumbing equipment, automobiles, tires and gasoline, rentals, household laundry services, restaurants, electric rates, storage rates, a variety of basic materials such as steel, copper, rubber, tin and pulp, and certain other goods which are important in production costs such as farm machinery. The list of items remaining under control, as announced by the Prices Board, affords continued protection to the consumer in the places where the risk and the effects of rising prices are greatest."

"Among the goods being released from price control are the majority of items which may be described as household equipment and supplies, including furniture, small appliances, kitchen and cooking utensils, tableware and cutlery, brooms and brushes, pads, radios, pianos and clocks. Tools and garden equipment, handbags and leather luggage, paints and varnishes, and a number of building supplies such as clay products, cement, stone, and sheet metal products are also being released from the sphere of food, the important delectables are fresh vegetables and fruits (except for apples, most kinds of fish, and ice. Certain imported foods, such as tapioca, fruit juices, and peanuts are also deleted as well as canned fruits and vegetables other than the large staple items. Canned and molasses are also in the sphere of textiles. Only a few articles containing cotton, rayon, and woolen goods are in the category of textiles. Among the services being released, hairdressing and beauty parlors, and the operation of public buildings are no longer subject to price control."
