VINCENT LUNNY Jerry Bell gobbled up a bad

hopping grounder and tossed the ball to second base for a force play, ending an inning in the Hawks' practice game.
"That's the old pepper!" shouted Phil Weston, second baseman. "You'll be in the lineup regularly with me yet."

Bell and Weston had played to gether for four years in the minors, being nurtured carefully for their big league debut. Weston made the team easily; the Hawks had not started Bell yet in a league contest. A wild rishman named Pat O'Toole clung to the shortstop position. Starting the next inning of the intra-club game, the Irishman went to short and it was Bell's turn to bat. He hit the first pitch solidly into right field. The next man up got a piece of the ball. A slowroller! a double play ball. Bell left first with the crack of the bat. O'Toole, covering second, leaped to take the high throw as Bell bore down. The ball crashed into O'Toole's temple and spikes glistened in the afternoon sun, when the dust subsided, there was Bell with his leg hooked around the bag-safe!

The Irishman didn't move. He

The Champlain Road Was Indian Highway

Most of Ontario's main highways are but the Indian water routes of yesterday.

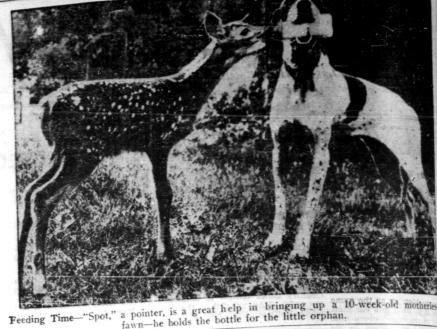

Of such historic routes the one that is most closely linked with the past is that known as The Champlain Road, one of the earliest and one of the most travelled of them all. And its association with the days of the Indians and the explorers is in the fact that, for part of its course, it can be travelled only as it was 300 years ago-in a canoe.

It was in 1615 that Samuel de Champlain, father of New France, in search of an outlet to the western sea, blazed a trail up the Ot-tawa River to Mattawa, across Lake Nipissing and down the French River to the shore of Georgian Bay and on to the land of Huronia where he was to establish a western outpost of New

The romance of the Champlain Road was not dimmed with the years. It is still existent along the highway that now parallels the majestic Ottawa—in Ottawa, in the towns that grew along the river in the days when the lum-"Aw, let the kid hit." Moderation____

WILL SEE US THROUGH

Last year, in one of its several published statements, The House of Seagram said, "Canada's great record of price control was made possible by the wholehearted co-operation of the Canadian people with their Government's anti-inflation methods. This fine record should be maintained . . . by moderating our pleasures, by controlling unessential spending, we continue to serve our Nation and ourselves best."

That statement we repeat today. We need only march steadily ahead . . . with continued emphasis on those habits of moderation, self-control and commonsense which are so happily-and fortunately-characteristics of Canada, and Canadians.

> Then this Nation will stand secure on the road to its yet greatest opportunities.
