There are some who will say that the profits of the manufacturer could be cut but the producer, in a time of rising prices, faces a real problem. It is a time of high demand. Naturally he desires to sell as much as possible.

When I read this in a dispatch from London I was reminded of a conversation with a Londoner in the Strand in June of last year. Speaking in a weary tone of the poor quality of the food and the difficulty his wife had in obtaining the full rations, he said, with a wistful smile...

BRITAIN is a nation slowly dying of starvation, declares Dr. Bicknell, a member of the Royal College of Physicians, in an article appearing in the Medical Press. Dr. Bicknell, who is a noted British nutritionist, charges that “everyone in England is suffering from prolonged chronic malnutrition, which makes it physically impossible for them to work sufficiently hard either to grow all the food possible from our own soil or to make the necessary exports to pay for imported food without which we cannot live.”

“From what does it require saving? From opportunism at neglect of principle and from the possibility of coalition with the followers of any other political philosophy. Both are bogotom of what can only be called the office-holding mania. This is in the Liberal ranks across Canada the old, healthy grooves have given way to pessimism, disappointment, defeatism and despair.”

There was much more this staunch Liberal had to say which may be quoted later. It was published after this weekly series was begun and as will be seen is entirely in line with the informed public opinion and the need to re-assert sound responsible government with full freedom for everyone. Hon. Mr. Power's writing is much strengthened the case which those articles set to display.

As this series progresses other witnesses will be called whose positions in public life mark them as authorities much concerned with the national situation. In quotations prominent figures such as Mr. Power's non-partisan, reasoned view will be thus achieved.

“NO MAN can read with profit that which he cannot learn to read with pleasure. If I do not find in a book something which I am looking for, or am ready to receive, then the book is no book for me however much it may be for another man.”

Time For Decision - - - By George W. James - The Canadian Statesman, Bowmanville, Ont.

ARTICLE No. 3 In this weekly series which is designed to arouse public interest in national affairs before a general election is called it has already been made clear that the CCF party cannot command enough support to form a government, neither can the Social Credit party. Hence the contest is between the Liberals and Progressive-Conservatives. It is therefore up to the public to decide which party can best serve his country during the next several years, which due to the universal upheaval following the war, will be the greatest testing time in our history.

FAIR APPROACH These articles approach the question by endeavoring to be completely fair, by substituting cool reasoning against heated political harangue, which it is believed is the approach welcomed today by rural readers whose votes will determine the issue when an election is called. Granted, therefore, that the contest lies between the two leading parties, the question then revolves about leadership and the policies of Liberals versus Progressive-Conservatives.

ONE STRONG LEADER Before discussing policies or examining the present state of the nation under the Liberal government of the day, the public will be interested in who will lead these contending parties, and their past record, where do they stand? It has already been asserted that John Bracken will lead the Progressive-Conservatives in the next election, having already increased his House following by more than 70 per cent. That point is clear and settled. That party has thus a strong, experienced leader whose personal story will be told later.

LEADERSHIP UNCERTAIN On the other hand, Prime Minister King has made it clear he will not lead. Liberals to another general election. Nor has he given any indication who he wishes to succeed him, although Liberal stalwarts have approached Mr. Coldwell, CCF leader to lead the Liberal Party. The prospect, therefore, is a virtually leaderless Liberal party coming up to a general election. It is a prospect which the public must accept in view of the following statements by Mr. King.

CONFIRMED RETIREMENT Speaking at his 25th anniversary banquet, Aug. 7, 1944, he declared he would lead in only one general election, which took place in June, 1945. Speaking in Prince Albert, May, 1945, where he was defeated, he said the same thing. He repeated the assurance at a non-partisan dinner, June 18, 1946. Elected in Glenora, Aug. 24, he said it was his last contest and when turning over the Department of External Affairs, once again the same statement was made.

MINISTERS RESIGN All this is from the record. It has been particularly disturbing to his followers who are becoming openly critical of the situation. Five of his most able Ministers quit from his cabinet: Hon. P. J. A. Cahill, Hon. J. I. Ralston, Hon. Angus Macdonald, Hon. T. A. Creecher and Hon. C. G. Power. Each has been outspoken in criticism since resigning. The staunchest Liberal of all Hon. C. G. Power, 30 years in the House of Commons, writing in Maclean's Magazine, Feb. 1, 1947, said in part:

“All my life I have been a Liberal: now I am looking for a place to vote Liberal. What the party urgently needs is a house cleaning... the traditional party of progress and reform has gone off to sleep, and is travelling in the ditches of expediency and improvisation, first right, then left... a resurgence must come upward from the ranks.”

LEFTIST WARNING “From what does it require saving? From opportunism at neglect of principle and from the possibility of coalition with the followers of any other political philosophy. Both are bogotom of what can only be called the office-holding mania. This is in the Liberal ranks across Canada the old, healthy grooves have given way to pessimism, disappointment, defeatism and despair.”

CASE STRENGTHENED There was much more this staunch Liberal had to say which may be quoted later. It was published after this weekly series was begun and as will be seen is entirely in line with the informed public opinion and the need to re-assert sound responsible government with full freedom for everyone. Hon. Mr. Power's writing is much strengthened the case which those articles set to display.

NON-PARTISAN VIEW As this series progresses other witnesses will be called whose positions in public life mark them as authorities much concerned with the national situation. In quotations prominent figures such as Mr. Power's non-partisan, reasoned view will be thus achieved.

BIRD NOTES No. 10 If we were to visit the hills we would probably see some of the common “Sea-gulls”. Gulls are great scavengers and do a great deal of good in cleaning up the earth. They are also very intelligent and in fact, it is a common sight around city dumps to see flocks of screaming gulls and crows around themselves. They will keep our lake shores clean and even be seen miles inland in a recently plowed field.

CONFEDERATION'S FAULT They tell us that this drift from our province of the great second five-day week... it is caused because of lack of industries. It seems to trouble more than anything else is an economic sickness - the loss of the ancient decision of the union by the sea to join confederation. By that decision we cut ourselves off from our southern and based our future on Dominion of Canada.

FIVE-DAY WEEK IN BRITAIN MINES SHOWS GOOD HEAD. Largest production increases are expected in silica, furnaces electric pipe and fittings, cast iron and the positive public should report. Smaller increases there were a couple of spots in wash basins, cast iron tanks, steel pipes, tubes and fittings, water pipe, and culvert tile.

ON THE FARM FRONT BRIEF NOTES FOR THE BUSY FARMER - By Haldimand Harry - (intended for last issue) Latest estimates would indicate that approximately fifty per cent of the seeding of spring grain, such as oats and barley, have been completed in Haldimand County. This means a marked increase in the acreage of other types of crops such as corn, soybeans and buckwheat. This means a marked increase in the acreage of other types of crops such as corn, soybeans and buckwheat. This means a marked increase in the acreage of other types of crops such as corn, soybeans and buckwheat.

“A Pasture Barometer” has been suggested. This is nothing more or less than a feed rack kept full of hay at all times. If the cows are hungry, they will help themselves and incidentally, it will indicate whether the pastures are doing their job or not. Did you know that every thirty inch step taken in the care of a cow adds up to seven miles in a year? A little planning to reduce unnecessary steps in the barn will save many a year-long hike. This might be a good time of year, just after the cattle are put out on pasture, to do a little rearranging in the barn to make things more convenient.

“It is the opinion of both myself and wife that one of the most superior qualities of a Chevrolet is the ease of handling. We do not hesitate to endorse it as a most valuable family car.” J. J. Simpson, Winnipeg, Man.

“I have never driven a car that has so few of troubles, or in which I have had so much pleasure in this new Chevrolet.” John E. Lindner, Halifax, N.S.

“The riding quality of the Chevrolet is almost blissful inasmuch as in short periods of time I am able to shift from one speed to another.” Paul A. Côté, Quebec, P.Q.

“As the Chevrolet is a field, I expected low-grade riding enjoyment, but by my surprise, I found all the advantages for which I was daily true on rough roads when the Chevrolet gives you perfect control when it hits ruts, potholes or washboards.” A. G. Holmes, Lebride, Alta.

“This being my fourth Chevrolet purchased from you, I feel that I have never been so satisfied with any car as I am with this one. I am so pleased with the efficiency and comfort of operation that I have never been so satisfied with any car as I am with this one.
