SEVEN FOLD CAMPAIGN——

A GROUP OF LOCAL CITIZENS have taken the step, long felt necessary, in combining the various charity appeals that are yearly made to the general public. Instead of being solicited on numerous occasions throughout the year for help to as many worthy causes you will this year be asked just once. We question very much if anyone will find any objection to this plan.

The 1947 campaign opens next Monday morning and ends on April 7th after a two week canvassing period. It is to be known as The Seven Fold Campaign because it includes seven well known charities. The Chairman of the campaign sponsoring the combined charity appeal has advanced a slogan which in itself should assure the success of the appeal. The slogan is: "AN ANNUAL INVESTMENT IN HUMAN LIVES."

The slogan should cause us to stop and give thought to the deep meaning which it conveys. In years gone by the word investment has seldom been associated with Human Lives but invariably with percentage returns to add to economic wealth. After two world wars it is, possibly, easier to consider that investment in other directions might possibly yield greater returns than that which can be secured in purely materialistic gain.

The people of the Jarvis district needed little urging to face up to their responsibilities when the lives of our own boys were endangered in a cruel conquest. We are equally confident that those same people will view the combined Charity appeal, which opens next week, with the same broad outlook of our responsibilities which never before in our history have been more pronounced.

THE COMING BOOST IN BUTTER——

BUTTER is going to increase in price on May 1. That much is certain as a result of the Government's decision, revealed when the main estimates were tabled, to discontinue the subsidy. How much the increase will be remains to be seen but it will be at least eight and a half cents the amount which the Government now pays every time a customer purchases a pound of butter. Present indications are that the increase will be considerably more than that.

This relatively large increase is bound to cause discussion, some hard feelings, and is certain to be partly misunderstood. It will be misunderstood as far as that part of the increase resulting from withdrawal of the subsidy is concerned. Despite the fact subsidies have been paid on foodstuffs in Canada for five years, to the extent of several hundred millions of dollars from the taxpayer's money, the public at large still does not understand this fact. Most housewives fail to realize that every time they pay forty-four cents for a pound of butter the Government has been handing over eight and a half cents to make the production of butter possible.

But the increase on May 1 is almost certainly going to be more than eight and a half cents to the consumer. Farm organizations, on behalf of cream producers for butter, for some time have been demanding a higher price for cream. They claim that farmers producing cream for butter are not getting cost-of-production or anything like what those farmers who produce milk for the fluid trade are getting. There is better than one dollar a hundredweight difference between the two types of milk. They are asking for a price which would result in something very near sixty-five cents a pound butter.

Present indications are they are not likely to realize this price, but that they will get some relief in view of rising costs. What is likely to happen is that the same time that the subsidy comes off the ceiling price on butter will be advanced. However flush production of butter comes in June, and it is expected that shortly after advances take place butter prices will find a more equitable level. It is altogether possible that butter may be fifty-eight to sixty cents on May 1, settle to fifty-five to fifty-seven cents for the remainder of the summer.

WHAT EGYPT OWES TO BRITAIN——

— By Lewis Milligan —

WHAT IS THE HISTORY of the British occupation of Egypt? It is certainly not one of conquest. Britain did not go into Egypt with the deliberate intention of conquering its people and annexing their territory, but was gradually drawn into a protectorate of the country by a series of international complications. The Government of Egypt at the time was bankrupt, and the country was in a state of chaos, which reached its climax in the year 1876.

The Khedive had suspended payment of all Treasury bills which amounted to nearly $500,000,000. Corruption and maladministration prevailed. Ultimately France, Italy and Austria nominated representatives to a commission for the purpose of dealing with the financial situation and collecting the debts owing to those countries. Great Britain was unwilling to interfere, but was finally persuaded to appoint a representative to the commission in the person of Sir Evelyn Baring, who afterwards was known as Lord Cromer.

As a result of the intervention of this commission the financial position of the country improved, but in the meantime a political storm was brewing. Amed Arabi, an Egyptian of humble origin who had risen to the rank of Colonel, led a revolt in the native army and finally assumed the position of virtual dictator. He built strong batteries at the port of Alexandria and challenged the British fleet in the harbor. The historical bombardment of Alexandria followed. British troops were landed and Amed Arabi's forces were defeated at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir.

Even now the British declined to remain in Egypt, although they had the support of the other powers. Trouble broke out in the Sudan, and Britain decided to withdraw her garrison and abandon the country. Meanwhile a religious fanatic, known as the Mahdi, rose to power. General Gordon was sent to report on the situation and suggest the best means of evacuation. While on this mission General Gordon and the garrison at Khartum were slaughtered by the Mahdi's men. That was in 1885. Khartum was not recatured until the year 1895, when Sir Herbert Kitchener (afterwards Lord Kitchener) finally routed the Sudanese forces.

Reforms were instituted throughout the country under Lord Cromer, who was known as the "Savior of Egypt." The River Nile was dammed and a system of irrigation was established. Peace and prosperity prevailed, such as had not been known in Egypt since the time of the Pharaohs. It should be stated that the British occupation of Egypt was decided upon by the Anglo-French Convention, which was signed in 1905.

There have been periodic disturbances and riots, but these have not been due to British misrule. They have usually arisen among Egyptian students who have had sufficient education in British principles of democracy to give them a desire for independence, but not enough to impress them with a sense of responsibility and gratitude for what Great Britain has accomplished for their country — to say nothing of the saving of the whole of Egypt and North Africa from the Germans at the Battle of Alamein. These political uprisings on the part of students in Cairo were in reality a tribute to British rule. As the country and its people have advanced, Great Britain has gradually developed a system of democratic government, until at the present time Egypt is virtually an independent state.

The conditions and the political situation in Northern Africa are far removed from what they were seventy or even forty years ago when Britain at the request of other European nations entered into the occupation of Egypt. The Ethiopians have benefitted by British rule in Egypt. They co-operated with the British in the suppression of the fanatic terrorism in the Sudan, from which they suffered for centuries. The wild Dervishes used to make periodic raids into Ethiopian territory, and after the defeat of the Hahdi their troubles from that quarter ceased.

The history of the occupation of Egypt is similar in many respects to that of India and other British possessions. In any case, the entire world has changed enormously in the past hundred years, due largely to the progressive policy that has characterized the development of all countries that have come within the British Empire.

THAT FRIENDLY SPIRIT——

A FRIEND OF OURS from the city dropped in to see us the other day. On the way to the newspaper office he walked through the town's business section and he appeared pleased with the things he saw and the people he met.

"Practically everyone on the streets said 'Good Morning' to me," he told us. "I like that. People in the city are so busy rushing about their own affairs that they can't be bothered even to smile at you, let alone give a stranger a friendly 'hello'".

That started us thinking. We had always taken for granted our town's friendliness and it never had occurred to us that it was something visitors might find surprising and worthy of note. We realized now that it was a worthwhile feature of our way of life and a significant characteristic of our smaller Canadian communities.

City folk with little knowledge of day-to-day living in towns and villages sometimes comment on the interest so-called small town folk take in each other's affairs and to the uninitiated it might appear to be "nosiness." But anyone acquainted with the facts can tell you it is something else altogether.

In our communities where the tempo of life is more leisurely than in the cities we can afford to take time to get to know our neighbors, to talk with them about their activities and ours, to watch for a chance to lend a hand to the fellow who needs help or to put in a word of encouragement. That's why we say "good morning" to strangers as a matter of course.

It's a good thing, too, this business of cooperation and friendliness and looking out for the other fellow. After all, isn't that what most of the big international conferences are about?

That fellow Pat Sullivan made quite a stir throughout the country last week by his resignation as secretary of the Seaman's Union and his divulgence of a fact long known, that Communism is rampant in the Union movement. But even before we saw his picture in the paper we had decided that he was one guy we would never let play on our ball team.

A select committee of the Ontario Legislature has recommended that M.P.P.'s salarys be increased from $2,000. to $2,400 per year (taxable) and that each member be allowed $100.00 per month for expenses (non-taxable). We think any member of the Legislature should be worth $3,600. per year or else they should be just common people like ourselves but we don't like the idea of any group of people enjoying the advantages of a designated portion of their income being untaxable. There are a lot of people in Canada that spend a goodly portion of their income every year in effort that contributes to the public interest, but we have yet to hear of any member of any government appealing to the Department of National Revenue to permit even a small measure of relief in tax from against the costs for so doing.

- - - - - - - -

A subscriber who had received an account for his subscription this week came into the office and laid the money on the line to bring the account up-to-date (that is in advance) and said: "Why didn't you send me an account befor." We could have said: "because we were afraid you would be annoyed and cancel your subscription." But we didn't. We merely said that sending out such accounts requires considerable time, which we don't seem to have too much of, and anyway that our subscribers always come in sometime and pay up, so why employ the means when the end is almost the same. But there are factors in this newspaper business that have changed in recent years. An advertiser, for instance, is concerned chiefly with the number of paid up subscribers a paper has. If a reader of forty years standing has paid for only thirty-nine years and eleven months he just doesn't count in the circulation figures. And it is the circulation figures that bring in the advertising and it is the advertising that enables us to publish a newspaper.

- - - - - - - -

Speaking of subscribers of forty years standing may not mean much to the casual reader but an editor feels an attachment to such a person that defies a suitable definition. The late A. E. Lambert, who passed away recently in Harriston, New Liskeard was a continuous subscriber to the Record for forty years. We never remember seeing the late Mr. Lambert, but we knew him as a native of Jarvis and have had the pleasure of communicating with him through the written word. When we heard of his passing we felt that we had lost a close friend.

We have a letter to hand from that well known radio personality Alan Savage in which he informs us that his show "Ontario Panorama" has been awarded a Canadian Broadcaster Beaver award for distinguished service to Canadian Radio in 1946 for spotlighting the byways of Ontario. Alan Savage and Gordon Sinclair received a warm welcome in Jarvis when they presented their show here and the advertising Jarvis received in that brief half hour broadcast from the Town Hall was really valuable. Needless to say the friends of the program, and that includes everyone in the district, are happy in the knowledge that this radio team has been recognized by this award.

Appeal For Crippled Children

In Southwestern Ontario five nurses supervise the Province-wide work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

With more than 15,000 crippled children in Ontario these nurses have far more duties than they can efficiently handle. To cover the territory adequately, especially in the Northern and Eastern sections, a staff of at least fourteen nurses is required.

Many children if they received proper care and treatment, especially in early stages of affliction would be spared suffering and their chances of complete recovery greatly enhanced.

It has been found that congenital deformity and defect is the predominant cause of cripples, representing forty-one per cent of cases in 1946. The next cause in importance is poliomeritis. Accidents account for nearly eight per cent of crippled children.

The two factors which have shown the most decisive results of good preventive activity are tuberculosis and rickets. In fifteen years the combined rate for these diseases has been reduced by half — from 11 per cent to 5.2 per cent.

The Society's nursing service, organized in 1935, assists in this good work. Nurses are trained in both public health and orthopaedicsy They seek out crippled children in every part of the Province, organize clinics, arrange for hospitalization, transportation and education. They lecture to community groups stressing prevention, assist at Blue Mountain Camp and Woodeaien, and make follow-up visits to all polio cases reported to the Provincial Department of Health.

In many cases the nurses have observed the need for physiotherapy, which to date, has been available only in the larger centres. The Board has approved the appointment of a physiotherapist to the staff as soon as finances permit. Her work would be largely home demonstrations so that mothers could continue the beneficial treatment intelligently.

These, among other duties, can be extended once the staff is enlarged. This will be done as soon as finances permit. It is hoped that through the sale of Easter seals this ambition may be realized.

The Dunnville Lions Club is sponsoring the Seal Campaign in Haldimand and letters are going out shortly asking contributions from citizens of this district.

Success on the part of the individual is becoming a subject of deprecation.....Canada cannot exist and prosper under a government which, while it professes private enterprise, is afflicted with a definite trend towards socialism.....Canadians should no longer be required to dance like marionettes under the untrammelled control of bureaucrats appointed by and responsible only to this Government.
