this strangeness that had come over him? Or was it really a circus band? Just outside! They were playing his march. The Circusmen's March! He relaxed, happily. The boy was getting his circus after all. Shouts of joy were coming from him. For the little fellow was looking out the window, almost crying again he was so excited and thrilled. "I wanna dance," he exclaimed, looking down at his cast. He saw one of the bandsmen come into the house. In a minute or two he came out again and the band stopped playing. He said something to the others and then they started playing again.

The boy looked puzzled. He listened attentively for a moment. Then: "That first piece was so pretty it made you wanna dance or somethin'. But this one is different. Gee! It sounds like somebuddy was dead."

after the other-that is until I remembered that heavy machinery was continually passing over the spot, and since each piece of equipment must weigh a good many tons I thought there was just a chance the road-bed would as we wanted to watch the big bulldozer at work—the men were some other machine. The bulldozer was going up and down a huge bank, pushing dirt ahead of it on to the road for more fill. It looked as if it must surely take a nose dive but of course we knew it wouldn't - the caterpillar treads took care of that.

Haven't we been having the most wonderful weather and isn't the country lovely these days? I time off some time and take ad vantage of every chance we get to see a little of our own nativ scenery. Maybe it isn't necesary to go very far afield - sometimes n further than our own backdoor. The main thing is to have "seeing"

And speaking of scenery-if you get the connection-what do my readers think of the Battle of the Skirts? Of course we will leave the men out of this little discussion-what I want to know is what the ladies think of it. Per sonally, I am all in favor of the longer hem-line—if it doesn't go to extremes. Dresses the way they were may be all right for five-footers—all they have to do is shorten them to suit themselves, but take women like myself-five feet eight-we never find anything long enough. Now it will at least give us a little leeway whether we finally decide to have then long or short. And after all, ladies, you will admit that the longer hem-line will cover up a few runs and such like in these days of dearer stockings. But, of course, if fashion says-skirts to the anklewell, that's another story. That is where we can show our independence and do as we like.
