"SALAM" TEA

Valley of Revenge
 BY JACKSON COLE

Synopsis
 CHAPTER XXIX: Juanita in forms Valdez that, although she has lost track of the killer, she knows that the man who assumed the disguise of the red cavalier and frightened the cat men was Straw Aldman.

CHAPTER XXX
 "No. But worse may come, senior. Men strain at the leash, Cattlemen say no more settlers shall enter the north part of Deep Water Valley. One man says they shall."

"This one says they shall," Valdez said muzzily. "Who is he? Did you hear his name?"

"Si, senior. His name is Russ Barle. I have heard, and he is a banker here in the town of Gold Creek. More than that, most of the things in my own Paisano Valley. But there seems not to have been the same reason Senior Garvin had—so far as I have heard. He does not try to take the tobacco farmers' land and run them away."

"Then what is his reason for bringing them in and making all the trouble?"

Juanita shook her head disconsolately. "I do not know, senior. Unless it is to show that he can do what he pleases with what he owns, and may want to let the cattlemen know that he is greater than they, say of them." Her small dark head shook as she sighted for the evil of the world.

"But it is leading to a war between the farmers and the ranchers, senior. It is leading to much bloodshed."

"With selfishness on this Barle's part to keep it flowing," Valdez

Then what is his reason for bringing them in and making all the trouble? Juanita shook her head disconsolately. "I do not know, senior. Unless it is to show that he can do what he pleases with what he owns, and may want to let the cattlemen know that he is greater than they, say of them. Her small dark head shook as she sighted for the evil of the world. "But it is leading to a war between the farmers and the ranchers, senior. It is leading to much bloodshed. "With selfishness on this Barle's part to keep it flowing," Valdez

Valdez's eyes raised slowly, and he scanned the faces in the back bar mirror. Coldly he picked out the cruel face that he knew must be the face of Train Carter, one of the men who had been the murderers of Valdez's mother.

The man who had been hailed as Carter halted at the end of the bar. The bartender placed a bottle and a glass before him, and Carter poured himself a man-sized drink.

He leaned on the bar-rail, rested an elbow upon the malagoua, then picked up his filled glass and tossed down his drink. With an unconscious gesture that seemed instinctive he lunched up the big forty-five that sagged from one hip and swung the holster around to the front.

Michael Valdez put down his own glass, wiped his mouth with the back of his hand and walked toward Train Carter. His face beneath the black wig was set and masklike, his stride sure and purposeful, the gait of a man deliberately set for trouble.

Men recognized that, too. There was an uneasy stir among those nearest Valdez. People nearest Carter and Valdez at the bar lost no time in getting out of a possible line of fire. For there was something in the eyes of the strange vaquero that spelled death.

Valdez strode down the room until he was at the end of the bar. Carter was facing him, watching him suspiciously, got knowing what it was all about, but his hand was hovering over the walnut butt of his pistol.

Then coldly, calmly, Valdez spoke.

Your Handwriting and You
 By Alex S. Arnot

An interesting letter comes to me from one of our Ontario readers and she writes in part: I never miss reading your interesting articles on handwriting analysis and I look forward to them each week with much interest. Although I am 59 years old and not able to get around like I used to, I would like to have my handwriting analysed so that I may know my faults and begin to correct them.

In reply to your request I may say that you are to be commended for your style of writing at such a late time of life for there is clearness and exactness with your control over emotional feelings shown in the script. As you point out in your letter that a little insight into your character might have brought different results during your life, I think you are referring to temper, the strongest of all your characteristics. This trait is indicated in your writing by the flying "h" bars which are heavy and spiculate, darting off into space without touching the stem of the letter "h". Fortunately the length of the bar is short, indicating that the temper is short lived. You are apparently aware of this and I might add that you do not hold a grudge for very long, being ever ready to forgive and forget after your temper has cooled down.

Look at the strokes which begin and end all your words and you will find another interesting trait of character in your writing. These strokes have what is commonly known to graphologists as a small "fish hook" and this sign is conclusive evidence of your desire to hold on to favors and purposes. It is indicative of a characteristic that makes you set in your ways and opinions, as you do not accept new ideas or principles readily but must be convinced by experience of their merits.

Instantly Michael Valdez's body stiffened. Train Carter! The man whose name was in the revealing letter still in Valdez's pocket, the name that seemed to be leaping out of it to rear Michael Valdez's skin.

Valdez's eyes raised slowly, and he scanned the faces in the back bar mirror. Coldly he picked out the cruel face that he knew must be the face of Train Carter, one of the men who had been the murderers of Valdez's mother.

The Personal Witness Of The Christian
 Acts 8: 26-29.

Golden Text — Then said Jesus to them: "Gain, peace be unto you; as my Father has sent me, even so send I you." — John 20: 21.

Philip was one of the seven men chosen to look after the daily ministrations of the people of God. But he did not stop with doing this work. He went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them. A notable work was done and there was great joy in that city. Then Philip was told by the angel of the Lord to go toward the south of the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza. This is a desert road. This assignment was certainly different from preaching in the city of Samaria. But God never errs.

There was an Ethiopian of great authority returning from worship at Jerusalem. As he sat in his chariot he was reading the Scriptures. Though we travel much more comfortably today by plane, train and bus, it is not often that the Bible is being read. Magazines and books have a decided popularity over the best Book. Philip explained to the man the meaning of the Scriptures and he was baptized in token of his faith in Jesus Christ as his Saviour. The Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip and the eunuch went on his way rejoicing.

Jesus said, "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." It is the responsibility of every Christian to bear personal witness of Jesus Christ. The individual witness can be very effective. Jesus spoke personally to Nicodemus, the woman at the well, Zacharias and almost 25 per cent of Denmark's population is occupied in agriculture.

Q. Is it correct for people to wear deep mourning for a child?
 A. It is not customary to do this. Deep mourning does not seem suitable to express grief caused by the loss of a child, whose innocence and tender memories are better expressed by flowers and bright colors.

Q. Is it all right to place flowers on the tea table at an afternoon tea?
 A. Yes, this usually makes an effective decoration.

Q. What is an appropriate toast to offer a bridegroom?
 A. Here's to the health, wealth, and happiness of the bridegroom. I'm leaving you for a happier life, but we shall never leave him.

Q. How can a girl dismiss a man without causing ill feeling if he takes her home in a taxi and she sees that he expects to be invited into her home?
 A. By being very prompt to bid him goodnight before he has had time to dismiss the taxi.

Q. Should the bride always introduce a guest or lady by his title?
 A. Yes, certainly, "Doctor Smith" or "Judge Brown."

How Can I?
 by Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove a stamp from an envelope?
 A. Soak a blotter in water, then place it over the stamp and hold for a minute.

Q. How can I prevent rubber boots from cracking?
 A. Rubber boots will not crack, and the air will be permitted to circulate freely through them, if the boots are held erect, with rolls of cardboard when they are not in use.

Q. What is a remedy for goldfish when they do not appear as lively as usual?
 A. It will often help them if one teaspoonful of salt is added to each quart of water.

Q. How can I make a pie crust nice and brown?
 A. Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the pie crust. It will not be noticeable to the taste.

Q. How can I prevent starch from sticking?
 A. Starch will not stick if a drop or two of kerosene, or a little lard, is added to a small basin of starch and then allowed to come to a boil.

One of Canada's most well-known editors once told me, by way of advice, never to be too much in an article; that if I would soon have no readers at all. Today's theme is not the preachy type, but we thought that you teachers and your parents might be interested in what we found in a short time ago from an authoritative source.

It is a sad story of a child who had a shadow of a doubt concerning his parents and their love for him. He was a child of ten years, and his parents were not very young. In the next day the sun shines bright and warm, birds come hopping around the garden picking up the odd seed and berries that have been exposed by receding banks of snow; and we don't mind when the area of bare ground increases in size as the cold snow melts under the warming influence of Old Sol's rays—just as cold looks and hurt feelings of some people vanish when faced with the persistent cheeriness of some other person who realizes that this old world in spite of its shortcomings and inconveniences—such as power outages and gas and water shortages, is still a good place in which to live.

As to the power shortage—that may be the biggest hardship that we, as a people, have been called upon to face. And who is responsible? Some say the Hydro Commission, some the Government—but isn't it possible it might be the Chief Engineer of the Universe? Could it be that He has come to the conclusion that His people are becoming too dependent upon mechanical forces, forces which have been invented and perfected from the natural resources which He created, and without which we are powerless—that, by the way, was not meant as a pun. By and large, it all boils down to the fact that we are still absolutely dependent upon natural resources—less coal, less water, less water, less electric power; and since practically all our industries depend upon hydro power in some form or other the outlook is not bright. Raisin Nut Bars
 3/4 cup seedless raisins
 3/4 cup broken walnuts (or other nutmeats)
 8 squares (8 ounces) Dot Chocolate
 Wash raisins in hot water and dry thoroughly.
 Line bottom of loaf pan 8 x 4 inches with waxed paper, letting paper extend 2 inches tabs at each end. Sprinkle the raisins in the lined pan, then add the nuts.
 Heat Dot Chocolate over boiling water in double boiler until partly melted; then remove from boiling water and stir rapidly until melted. Pour chocolate evenly over the raisins and nuts in the pan. If necessary, tap pan several times to settle chocolate. Let stand in cool place to harden. Lift entire chocolate block out of pan, using the paper tabs. Cut in bars, 1 x 2 inches. Makes 16 bars.

Chocolate Dessert Cakes
 2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
 3/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon soda
 4 squares Unsweetened Chocolate
 3/4 cup butter or other shortening
 3/4 cup boiling water
 2 cups sugar
 3/4 cup sour milk or buttermilk
 2 teaspoons vanilla
 2 eggs, unbeaten
 Sift flour once, measure, add salt and soda, and sift together three times. Combine chocolate, butter, and water in top of double boiler; place over boiling water and cook until chocolate is melted, stirring constantly. Cool thoroughly. Add sugar and stir until smooth and blended. Add half of flour, then half of milk, stirring until blended; repeat. Add vanilla and eggs and beat 2 minutes. Bake in greased large cup-cake pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Remove a shallow cone-shaped piece from center of each cake, and pile centers high with sweetened whipped cream. Sprinkle with chopped pistachios or other nutmeats. Makes 16.
