SHORT STORY

Understanding Always Helps
By ANNETTE VICTORIN

Ardeh Haines listened as the band played at the Fair. The tune was gay but not for her. Frank, her husband, was listening, too, at the other end of the field. They had quarreled. They should have been together, holding hands, not apart nursing anger. Was it her fault if she was thrifty? Why did Frank have to blow up when she hinted at his extravagance? She was only thinking of their future and of the house they dreamed of owning.

That morning she had found him in the garage. "Isn't it a honey now?" Frank had asked pointing to the portable radio on his work bench. "It works like a top since I put in the four new tubes." "Four new tubes?" Ardeh gasped. "How could you when you know how much I wanted new dishes?" There were angry tears in her eyes.

Frank grabbed the radio and threw it into the corner. She stalked out, hurt and defiant. Later, when Frank asked: "What about the Fair?" she answered, stubbornly, "I'm going, but I'm going alone." And the way she said it made Frank dash out of the house and slam the door.

Suddenly there was a fanfare and Mr. Getty, master of ceremonies, announced loudly: "This is the moment you have been waiting for. For weeks we were fine-combing the community for the happiest married couple. Folks, here they are, Mr. and Mrs. James Pratt. Married twenty-five years and happily!" Mr. Pratt was holding his wife's hands and looking down into her face. Mrs. Pratt was beaming. Ardeh looked at Frank but he was standing straight ahead.

Mr. Getty talked into the mike. "We can all pattern our lives after this happy couple." He shouted them with gifts; furniture, groceries and a house. As Ardeh watched them walk off, she wondered about their recipe for happiness. Twenty-five years! Surely, Mrs. Pratt would be glad to help out a broken-hearted woman!

The next morning was Sunday. Frank ate breakfast in silence and disappeared into the garage. Ardeh walked over to the bus. It wasn't a long ride. She was surprised to find the Pratt's house smothered in bushes and trees. It certainly symbolized happiness. A dream house! She ran up the steps with a lightened heart. She pressed the bell but no one answered. She could hear the radio and knew someone was at home. If they didn't answer the front, perhaps they would the back door. Walking around, she heard loud voices in the basement.

"Is that so?" yelled Mrs. Pratt. There was a blasting noise and Ardeh heard falling glass. Then another voice. "How in the blazes was I supposed to know you used the pan for that?" Mrs. Pratt crashed. "My aim is as good as yours," the first voice screamed. "If you crave to throw, I'll throw something, too."

Later on, when Ardeh had been invited in, Mrs. Pratt said: "So you came to me for advice?" She patted Ardeh's shoulder and said: "Pep, haps I can give you some at that." She offered Ardeh some homemade cookies. "We're happy. Quarrels don't matter, every normal couple has them. But you can't change a husband. You've got to accept his shortcomings as he must accept yours. . . . There isn't any recipe for happiness. But you can overlook many things in life."

When Ardeh got home Frank was still in the garage. She went straight to him. "I'm sorry about the tubes, Frank. I'm an awful tightwad." Frank's eyes brightened up like sparklers. He reached to a shelf. "I got you this at the Fair," he said, handing her a huge box of decked box of candy. It looked awfully expensive, but Ardeh remembered about the overlooking part Mrs. Pratt had mentioned, so all she did was to look into Frank's eyes.

ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"DEAR ANNE HIRST: Some months ago I met a man, and have been having dinner with him several times a week. I am spending Saturday afternoons together. We both are married. My husband knew of this, but as he works at night, he has nothing wrong.

"Now this man's wife has found out. And she doesn't like it. I called her up, and tried to explain to her my friends. She refused to see me. She has made it look so bad!

"I don't think she should try to keep her husband home all the time. He likes his freedom — and she is spoiling our fun. They have children, but he doesn't like being tied down.

"Now he is trying to keep his wife from leaving him—and he refuses to see me.

"Is it wrong to have men friends after one is married? Mrs. W. K."

This Is Wrong

Just For Fun
The five-year-old "momma's darling," taken calling by his mother, was looking through a copy of an old book about the Christian martyrs, filled with highly colored illustrations. When he came to the well-known picture of the lions in the Roman amphitheatre he burst into tears.

"My little Percy is so smart, and so sensitive," said his doting parent. "Just look how touched he is by the suffering inflicted on the Christians by the barbarians."

Percy continued to sob, and when they tried to comfort him he said, "Just look at that poor lion over there. He hasn't got even one Christian."

object to an old friend giving his wife a pleasant evening now and then. But if the incident became a habit (as yours has) and if it had to be clandestine (as yours has) these husbands certainly would sing a different tune.

• THEY CERTAINLY would not consent to their wives dining with married men, and risk the possibility of their becoming involved in a divorce suit.

• YOU ARE wrong to resent this wife's attitude. All these months she has been trusting her husband, believing whatever excuses he gave for not coming home.

• And now when she has found out the truth, how can she regard his friendship with you as innocent?

• She has her own ideas of loyalty between husband and wife, and he has betrayed them. What would you think in her place?

• DID IT ever occur to you to question whether she would object to his seeing another woman?

• Or did he deny that she would? HE DOESN'T like being tied down? His wife may not refresh it any better. But she must stay home, alone with the children, while he enjoys his stolen freedom. And all you can say is that she is "spoiling your fun." Isn't that reaction adolescent?

• YOU ARE presumably a mature woman, and a wife. I don't know how you were brought up, but you should have learned that one must avoid the appearance of evil.

• THIS MAN is fortunate indeed if he can convince his wife that he has been innocently occupied during these months he has neglected her. I hope the experience has taught you, too, that however guileless you both were, one must honor marriage per se, or take the consequences of disobeying the social laws of the world we live in.

YOUR HANDWRITING and YOU

This week's illustration shows graphic signs of tactfulness and gives an interesting study of personality. Intuition is the basis of a tactful personality and this is shown in the scrip by the breaks between the letters where the pen was lifted.

Compactness of the letters clearly indicates that much feeling is put into the writing, and the sharpness of most of the letters is a sign of the rapid mental activity. The capital letters convey independence, but not vanity. The strokes of the letter "r" show humor and tenacity.

To sum up, it may be said that there is sensitiveness of feeling for others in the slope of the writing, with intuition to sense the important features of a situation. There is humour, alertness of mind to meet new and varied conditions, and tenacity to hold to principles and ideals.

Contrary to common belief, good end under ordinary conditions does not cause hay fever, according to a Cornell botanist.

Christmas your benefit

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren

Timothy performed a very useful ministry. Religion is not inherited, but the influence of godly parents and grandparents is of untold value in assisting children and youth to choose the way of discipleship of Jesus Christ.

Timothy had a good start in life. From a child he knew the scriptures and grandmothers of untold value in assisting children and youth to choose the way of discipleship of Jesus Christ.

Timothy heard the Gospel on the occasion of Paul's first visit to Lystra. He saw this messenger, first offered worship as a god and then stoned, dragged out of the city, and left for dead. Doubtless he later heard the apostle's exhortation "to continue in the faith and that we should through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."

When Paul returned to Lystra on his second missionary journey Timothy's Christian influence had already spread abroad. Paul invited him to accompany him in missionary work.

No Opinion. A road-hog known for his going at great speed one day behind him. He turned around just on his wheels, a big grin on his face. He was driven by a wild-looking man down next to the accelerator and up rambled the speedometer. Seventy — eighty — ninety — continued, but still the maniac slowed down and the side of the road. "Come on, then, if you pass," he cried. "I'm sorry," said the driver of the baby car, "but I'm looking for a place to stop."
