The Future of Life John 5:25; I Cor. 15: 20-26; I Cor. 4: 16-5:1.

Golden Text: But now is Chris the first fruits of them that slept.

While preparing a grave on point jutting into one of the numerous lakes of the Ottawa valley the workers came upon the skeleton of an Indian who had been buried there many years before. With the bones were arrowheads and other trinkets. There was mute evidence of a belief in a future life. Such a belief is well-nigh universal. Man has an instinctive longing for immortality.

Cicero, the great Roman orator said, "Yes, oh yes! But if I err in believing that the soul of a man is immortal I willingly err, nor while I live would I have the delightful error extorted from me; and if after death I shall feel nothing, as some philosophers think, I am not afraid that some dead philosopher shall laugh at me for my mistake.

The rising of Jesus Christ from e dead is the most triumphan event of all history. A spear had been thrust into the side of his lifeless body as it hung suspended from the cross. Blood and water gushed forth. The body was laid in a tomb on Friday. A large stone was placed at the cave's mouth, sealed and guarded by Roman soldiers. But Sunday morning all powers, includ-ing that of death itself gave way before the mighty conqueror. "He arose, Hallelujah, Christ arose." This is the pledge that we too shall live after death.

This life is very brief in comparison with the life to come. How important that we should lay up treasure in heaven. This life is just the place of preparation for the great eternity beyond. "Sow a thought, reap a word; sow a word, reap and act; sow an act, reap a habit; sow a habit, reap a character; sow a character, reap a destiny.

Not long since, American GI's began hearing Germans greet them with the cry, "Heil U. S. A.!" This seemed very nice, the story goes, until Army Intelligence came up with the news that it meant: Unser Seliger Adolf!"—Hail Our St. Adolf!

At the barn spring has already arrived — my menfolk have six calves to wrestle with now. Of course with extra cows to milk we are getting quite less money. Need I say why? Margarine . . . of course. We ex-pected that, as you know. What we can't figure out is why butter should be down and milk up. It just doesn't make sense. If farmers are there should be plenty of milk.
