BollDEN TEXT: Ye shall seek me, and find Me, when ye shall search for Me with all your heart.

Jer. 29:13.

Jeremiah's prophecy came true, Jerusalem was taken by Nebuchadnezzar and many of the people were carried away to Balfylon. The substance of a letter sent by Jeremiah to these exiles forms the main part of to-day's lesson. He urges them to be content in the land and to multiply. "Build ye houses, and dwell in them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them." He also counselled, "Seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray unto the LORD for it; for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace. This was a high standard of ethics and would be in their own interest. At the same time he predicted their return to Jerusalem after seventy years. This kept alive their hope. One of their songs was, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my their return to Jerusalem after seventy years. This kept alive their hope. One of their songs was, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning: If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." Ps. 137. During the exile the people became more spiritual in their worship.

They learned that God was everywhere. They had known Him in the beautiful temple in Jerusalem with bears on this.

One day a French doctor, who was a sceptic, was taken by a religious friend to the celebrated faithhealing shrine at Lourdes. He was shown a grotto stacked high with the crutches of the cured.

beautiful temple in Jerusalem with the ark and the golden candlestick and all. Now they saw Him in the fiery furnace and the lions' den at Babylon. "God is a Spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." Jn. 4:24.

C. G. Finney, the young lawyer his eyes closed and came out with them open.

The evening papers carried headlines: "Blind Made To See."

The soldier had not been able to see. He believed. There was a laying-on of hands, anointing with oil. He saw.

Such was the sequence of events. The facts were not denied. The man's record was on the Ministry of Pensions file. The question is:

The doctor shook his head. "One wooden leg," he replied, "would be more to the point."

The doctor shook his head. "One wooden leg," he replied, "would be more to the point."

When many wooden legs appear at the great shrines, when one finds pyramids of artificial eyes and stacks of artificial arms, then one will have to re-examine the whole position.

In thousands of cases in armies, navies and air forces such symptoms develop when the thought someone was approaching. He was ashamed to be seen praying. Then came to his mind stacks of artificial arms, then one will have to re-examine the whole position.

Meanwhile, the sensible man will look very closely at every claim made for miracles of this kind, for made for miracles of this kind.

man's record was on the Ministry of Pensions file. The question is: how are the facts to be interpreted? There are two diametrically-opposed explanations.

This is what the faith-healer says: Christ definitely promised to his Disciples that they should possess the power to heal by the laying-on of hands. That power belongs to all who are true disciples of Christ. The essence is faith—faith in the healer; faith in the patient.

Now, blindness is caused in two ways. Firstly, by a physical cause. For example, destruction of the optic nerve. Secondly, by a non-physical cause. For example, in-

For example, destruction of the optic nerve. Secondly, by a non-physical cause. For example, intense fear. This is known as functional blindness. It means that the eye, though perfect, will not do its job.

It is equally safe to claim that whose optic nerve has been destroyed by faith-healing methods.

It is equally safe to claim that many cases of functional blindness, like that referred to above, have been cured by faith, writes John England in "Tit-Bits."

Lurking Fear

From this example one may lay

So much for functional diseases, and how they can be affected by the faith-healer. What about organic diseases, such things as cancer, tuberculosis, Bright's disease? In all these there is a physical defect, or a failure of the machinery of the body to do its job.

Such diseases are, roughly, of two kinds. There is the organic disease, which comes because of a morbid growth or the invasion of the body by some tissue-destroying paraste. For example, cancer is the multiplication of primitive cells; tuberculosis is the invasion of some part of the body, often the lungs," by a when we understand how such a story get into circulation?

What about organic diseases, and how they can be affected by the faith-healer.

After days spent in tracing the persons who could give first-hand accounts of the matter, the whole story vanished in thin air.

The vicar in whose church the "miracle" had been wrought thought the verger knew more. The verger said if the vicar didn't know, was he likely to? Not even the name and address of the woman alleged to have been cured could be ascertained.

HOW TO CARVE YOUR TURKEY-Carving a turkey, o any other fowl, looks harder than it really is. As long as your knife follows the bone structure of the bird, and you keep your slices thin, you're safe. First of all, be sure your knife is sharp enough to cut cleanly with a minimum of effort. Then remove the legs and wings. In the side method of carving, (illustrated here) this is done by placing the bird on one of its sides and removing first the tip and first joint of the wing by cutting straight through the joint; second, the remainder of the wing; third, the leg. Then the meat is carefully sliced thinly from the back and breast, and the bird turned over on its other side.

breast, then dark meat from the farther back — following the bone structure at all times — until one side of the "critter" is bare. It is then easy to cut open the thin, skin-like tissue and spoon out the stuffing.

The carver can then start serving the slices — that is, unless you have such a crowd present that one side of the bird isn't enough to go round. In that case, of course, he should just turn the turkey over and do a repeat performance on the other side.

I honestly think that you'll like this method, once you've given it a trial. I'll bet that famous vandeville comedian wishes it had been well as transparent to the sure at the proper heat before starting to fry. Test the temperature of the fat frequently during the frying.

Put only enough fat into the kettle to heat—that will fill it only a little more than half full.

Slip the doughnuts cautiously into the kettle. Don't try to cook too many at one time, because the fat will become overcooled.

The moment the doughnuts rise to the surface, turn them with a long-handled fork, being careful not to pierce them with the times.

Remove with a fork, a spoon or a perforated ladle, and allow the
