Kitty, to think I saved you when you were small and then to have you die like this." However, I kept on rubbing—and Mark kept twitching. And then he opened his eyes!

Then he started to breathe very noisily—like something being rattled around in a tin can. By that time I had begun to hope and—to cut a long story short—my hope was justified. Mark actually did recover but for the rest of the day he couldn't walk properly, didn't eat and couldn't raise his hind leg to scratch his ear. He breathed noisily all day and was so scared all he wanted was to get out of the house. That I couldnot allow—you know how an animal will crawl away to a dark corner

Think I had been making excluses and did not want her to come. But I needn't have worried because the paper on Monday morning had all kinds of stories about traffic tie-ups, as you very well know. Sometimes it is hard for people in the city to realise how different weather conditions can be in the country. So why beat about the bush? Better risk giving offence to someone than to risk life and limb on dangerous roads. Explanations can mend hurt feelings but explanations won't mend broken limbs.
