

AUSTRIA There is still probably a lot of hard bargaining ahead; but it looks as if the conclusion of a Peace Treaty between the Big Four nathe other, is much nearer realization than it was just a month or so point to this: (1) The four deputy foreign ministers have agreed to hear a representative of Yugoslavia if he will come forward and state that country's claims against Austria. that the talks broke down last May (2) The Yugoslav Deputy Fordicated that he is willing to put forward compromise proposals and that he is in a mood to bargain. He is expected to water down Yugoslavia's previous claim to a slice of Austrian Carinthia, in addition to $150,000 millions worth of (3) The Soviet delegate has sai millions, in convertible currency, as lump-sum price of relinquishing its claim to German assets in Austria. But it is definfiitely believed that Russia is prepared to bargain on this point — that is, if the Western Allies will make the first offer. There are other developmnts, too lengthy to mention here, but altogether the atmosphere is much more favorable of a settlement of some kind soon. Russia is believed to be ready to quit Austria, because the longer it stays the more the Kremlin boys want to extract as big a sum as possible as the price for leave taking. Hence the Russian claim for $150 millions; in lieu of German assets, to be paid by Austria within five years. It is obvious that the Russians know that Austria cannot scrape up any such sum. But it is just as ous that the Russians expect that the United States is to pay the bill, if only to get the Stalinites' out of Austria. And the chances seem to be that they are right - although the price will probably be scaled down a bit when the final settlement comes.

HUNGARY

Once he got clear of that country, the United States Minister to Hungary didn't mince words about conditions there. On his way home to report to Washington regarding Cardinal Mindszenty case, Selden Chapin told newspapermen that it was "a wonderful feeling to breathe the free air of France." "As far as conditions in Hungary are concerned," he said, "I would like to say this much: That no one League. today, except the blind and twisted, can fail to see that the Hungarian people are under the complete, toal domination of Moscow-trained nmunists whose sole allegiance is to the Kremlin. "I can say this," Chapin added, "that unless a person has actually lived in Hungary or any of the "curtain" countries and learned from personal observation the facts of life, he or she cannot possibly conceive what that life is like Somebody asked Chapin what he thought would be the result if free elections could be held in Hungary tomorrow. "I think anti-Communist majority would be overwhelming. The percentage of Communist votes would probably be less than in many Western European countries."

GREAT BRITAIN

Whale oil - and whale meat have come to play a big part in British economy—the oil, espe-cialy, being a very considerable factor in maintaining the United Kingdom's soap and fat rations. So it was really good news when the Whale Meat Advisory Bureau reported recently that the latest British expedition to the Antarctic had enjoyed the best whaling season, in oil yield, since the war. In London, Prince Philip recently did a bit of kidding at the expense nevolent Association at Grosvenor House, the Prince heard himself

"Every man would probably like to start a fashion," he said, "but most men have a tailor, and the greatest enemy of starting a fashion is a man's tailor. Imagine if I were to go in been an actual decrease in the deat and order a coat of many colors or stripes. Would any of you gentlemen make it for me?" The Prince, we think, should really pay a visit to Canada, if that's the way he feels. From the looks of many of the more youthful males, as they walk down the streets, it would appear as though tailors on this side of the water would be willing to make a coat or suit out of red, white and blue bunting, or any other material that if there is one commodity regarding which there exists no shortage or scarcity, it is these Annual Award things. We have yearly the best undressed-we mean the most attractively undressed female, the champion spuds grower, the kin with the greatest crop of reckles, the least ungentlemanly hockey player, and so on, and so on, Award without end, Amen!

Still, in spite of this plethora-(we hope that means what we think it does)-of Annual Awards, we personally feel that there should be still another. It would be for the "Most Sympathetic Man of the Year" or maybe "The Man Whose Heart Bleeds Most Readily for Down Trodden Humanity" would be choicer phrasing. And if any reader of this column would like to chip in with a few dibs to finance a suitable Trophy-then the readers of this column are nuttier than even we suspect.

Anyway, we are not only willing to suggest such an award; we are also champing at the bit to put on the ballot the first nominees. And not to make too long a story of it, they would be the six gentlemen who carry the heavy burden of sponsoring the six teams which constitute a benevolent organization, of which you may have heard rumors, entitled The National Hockey

But now it seems we had the poor hockey moguls all wrong. Everybody knew that they were flirting with the idea of adding still further games to their schedule. (Every-body, that is, except Dumb Davey, whose last lucid memory is of the 12th of July when Debby Doyle

NO REAL INCREASE

There has been no real rise in heart disease among Americans beyond what is to be expected from the increased proportion of older persons in the population, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolital Life Insurance Company. To him the increasing proportion of deaths from heart dis-ease reflects mainly the large in-crease in the number of older persons and the reduction in mortality from acute infections among them He even goes so far as to say that "when due allowance is made for the various factors affecting the statistics, it is found that there has rates from heart disease at every age. The number of premature deaths from heart disease is being constantly reduced, and the average steadily increasing." SAD "Why so down in the mouth?" "Lost my new car." "Why don't you report it to the

The King's 'Orses

There was a time when "the king's 'orses" was a phrase which conjured up a picture of a troop of Household Cavalry-fine, black horses bearing stalwart men clad in scarlet and steel. Or perhaps the sporting element might think of His Majesty's entry in the Derby, a royal concession to a national pastime. But the Labor Government has put the King's 'orses on a different footing-more prosaic, per haps, when viewed from the standpoint of the Royal Enclosure at Ascot, but almost raffish when considered in the light of the intensely serious and ascetic men who make up the Labor Cabinet. For stud horses in the possession of the Ministry of Agriculture—which is

It is explained that the Ministry leases horses to private owners, who may then enter them in races paying back one-third of each horses's winnings. The system sug-gests some fascinating possibilities. ment decided to try for all the winnings, by organizing its own stable. Imagine the feelings of some apoplectic Conservatice peer, whos entry lost to a Labor nag. Imagine the consternation if the Governmen proceeded to take another logica step and nationalize all horses, eliminating competition (in true Labo fashion) and awarding purses to each animal on the basis of it needs, co-operative attitude and importance to the national welfare. Imagine the throng at Epson Downs, studying parliamentary blue books instead of tip sheets. Imagine all these things in the hand of the Derby—but don't breathe a word of tuem to an Englishman.
