IN THE MONEY—

THE EXPRESSION "Be a Sport" is gradually taking on a wider meaning. The old call to sportsmanship had an idealistic ring about it, but in these big money days it means more than the glow to be gained from a hearty "Well done, sir."

Today the purist would hardly recognize the old expression. Nowadays, to "be a sport" often is to become a big shot in the late teens, to earn more money than some leaders of industry and government at an age when the scholarly-minded still are in classrooms.

The tempo of the changing sport picture was set of course in the United States. Baseball has always rewarded its heroes on a par with presidents. Lucky for President Truman he got that recent raise or the president would have been left behind by such men in, or near the 100,000-a-year class as Cleveland's Lou Boudreau and Bobby Feller, New York's Joe DiMaggio and Boston's Ted Williams.

Here in Canada, sports salaries fall somewhat below these figures (and so does our prime minister's). But a National Hockey League big timer can still earn as much as $20,000 for six months work. And Canada can't send its best amateur hockey team to a world tournament because the amateurs are too busy making money to take time off.

Football, Canada's other big-time amateur sport, has shown it too is no piker in the pay-off department. Recently, Frank Filchock, an American barred from playing in his own country because of a gambling scandal, was acquired by Montreal Alouettes at a salary reported as $10,000 a year. This is nearly as much as Flinging Frankie made in his best years in the United States. In fact, it's more than it cost most Canadian clubs to operate a whole season before the war.

The moral of the story seems clear. Buy your six-year-old boy a football, a pair of skates, a baseball mitt and a geography book. Leave him alone with them all day, every day. If you come home from work and find him thumbing through the geography book...well, better start doing your own saving for your old age.

MARGARINE IN OUR ECONOMY—

A PROSPEROUS AGRICULTURE is essential to a prosperous economy for all Canadians. No one will deny that. The question therefore arises - "what will the introduction of Margarine do to the general prosperity of Agriculture?"

Margarine is a substitute for Butter. Butter is the basic product of the great Dairy Industry, and represents nearly thirty-five per cent of the total value of all products produced and sold by this industry.

What constitutes it? It is a closed corporation controlled by a few men? The answer is definitely no. It consists in the first instance of approximately 430,000 farmers who, with their wives and average number of children, represent a million and a half Canadians. Nearly 5,000 fluid milk plants, Creameries, Cheese Factories, Manufactured Milk Plants and Ice Cream Plants process the primary product - milk - which these farmers produce. Employed in these plants are approximately 100,000 people who, with their wives and families make up another 350,000 Canadians. In all nearly two million Canadians are directly dependent upon the Dairy Industry. How will Margarine affect the prosperity of these Canadians?

Already the sale of margarine has placed butter in surplus supply with the result that butter prices have dropped. What happens then? The price of milk and butter to the producers drops also - his income is reduced - he has less dollars to spend in his local stores and so it goes all down the line.

Will the introduction of margarine replace this lost income to the agriculturist? If it will it certainly is not apparent at the moment. Margarine is produced by relatively few large corporations and is made primarily from imported oils and fats. Margarine is produced, not by a million and a half Canadians who depend on it for their living and sell their products to nearly 5,000 buyers throughout the length and breadth of the land, but in such a way that matter of price can be regulated to suit the peculiar circumstances that may at the time exist.

It is a broad question and viewed from principle only, may be sound. But it may be that Canadians are being deluded in the thought that it is a good thing to be able to buy a cheap substitute for butter.

THE REASON WHY—

PROFESSORS, ECONOMISTS and others are given to deploring the shortage of school teachers. They cannot understand why this most influential of professions fails to attract the right type of men and women in sufficient numbers.

The other day, the answer turned up in the classified section of a daily paper. A public school board placed two advertisements on the same day. The first was for a teacher to take charge of Grades five and six; salary $1,500 per annum. The second was for a janitor for the same school; salary $1,800 per annum.

Pen, Scissors and Pastepot

Have you seen the new Income Tax forms? The man on the radio just asked that question and said the forms are available at the local Post Office now. Just call around and get one free. They are a part of the Government's social security program. The important part that really makes the program function.

All publishers at times receive curious letters from their readers, but the following written to the Christian Science Monitor stands out as the gem of the year. "Dear Sir: When I subscribed a year ago you stated that if I was not satisfied at the end of the year I could have my money back. Well, I would like to have it back. On second thought, to save you trouble, you may apply it on my next year's subscription."

One of our favorite columnists is always crying about the high cost of living as it relates to his poor city readers. Quite naturally he is in excellent spirits since the introduction of margarine and the possibility that the price of butter is going to slump.

One of our local farmers asked us last night what the price of food would be for the forty-hour per week folk if the farmers adopted a team work week? We know what it would be and are going to take the trouble some time to write to our favourite columnist and then wait with amused anticipation his possible theories on the subject.

"Video" means "I see." Somebody intimated we were awfully dumb not to know that. They didn't take into account however, our limited study of Latin. Had they enquired of Fred Archibald, who taught High School in Jarvis about twenty-five years ago, they would have been clearly informed that Latin was not one of the editor's best subjects. In fact it was indirectly responsible for his premature separation from the local seat of learning. We still think it is rather a ridiculous handle to apply to Television, particularly after watching that warty Brooks set in operation on Saturday night. While remarkable in many respects there really isn't very much to "see" up to this stage of development. We are going to turn our job in for a standard receiving set.

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning to Make Plastics

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, as in the pictures shown here, every effort of Ontario's newly-skilled plastics workers will mean better plastic products - will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

Your banker works For You

As a depositor or borrower, you value privacy in money matters. Your banker protects that privacy. Your banking transactions are not open to the eyes and ears of your competitor, your neighbor, your community.

In other words, the manager of your branch bank and his whole staff are working for you.

Contrast this Canadian way with conditions in lands where freedom is denied—where every bank is a political tool, every banker a public official working for the State! State monopoly of banking, proposed by Socialists here, would open your banking transactions to political intrusion.

SPONSORED BY YOUR BANK
