

WEST OF THE SUN
A Social Story
by JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

SYNOPSIS
The story thus far Virginia Anne...
CHAPTER XI
A woman entered the hut bearing two earthen bowls. Virginia sat up and watched the woman with frightened eyes. The bowls were placed before her, and the woman stepped back to stand watching her with dark, curious eyes. Behind the squat form, at the back of the opening, crowded a group of bright-eyed children. Virginia looked at the bowls. One contained water. She lifted it and drank. The other held a pasty food made of ground mesquite bean. She did not touch that.

Shortly, two men entered. One was short, wiry, his skin not white, not copper. His coarse features, flat nose and impassive expression suggested Apache. But his eyes were light in color, a bright blue. He was a half breed. He wore mixed apparel; shirt, trousers, both incredibly dirty, and moccasins and a red headband to hold back his stringy black hair. He squatted down before Virginia.

The second visitor was Natchi. Virginia remembered his broad, flat-faced face, his natural air of dignity, his cruel brown eyes, his wretched lips. Natchi, the marauder, who had attempted to capture Jim Randall, whom he hated.

Natchi sat down cross-legged and regarded the white girl with glittering eyes. He remained as still as a statue for the whole of five minutes. Then he spoke gravely, his eyes dropping to the turned-up toes of his moccasins. His words were quick, loose, without coherence for Virginia. But when he finished, the half breed interpreted.

"Natchi say white woman stay here. No harm. Maybe day come you go back to white husband."

"Why was I brought here?" Virginia asked; courage returned with a rush. She would come to no harm, Natchi had said. To force the release of Natchi's imprisoned son.

"Your wife of white soldier with blue eyes, Natchi say. White soldier capture Natchi's son. Natchi capture soldier's wife. White soldier value wife much. Like Natchi value son."

Virginia's new-found courage vanished. They thought her Jim Randall's wife. They meant to hold her as a hostage—to force the release of Natchi's imprisoned son. Despair rose in her.

Bricklaying Made Easy—The "first real improvement in five centuries in the method of laying bricks" is demonstrated by co-ed Kitty McGivern. The device, invented by engineers Paul H. Sommers and John S. Hodgson, is said to speed bricklaying four times the normal pace. Acceptance by the building industry could mean great savings in construction costs—especially in the building of low-cost homes.

ANNE HIRST

Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: if one fault were cleared up, we would be the happiest couple on earth. I'm 17, and married to a fine young man. He has been extraordinarily good to me, and since he learned we are soon to have a baby, he has been very understanding. But—"

"He has no sense of responsibility. He hasn't provided a cent toward the baby's coming. All I get is promises! He is the type who will treat his friends to cocktails when he hasn't five dollars to his name. I know of his extravagance when I married him, but I thought the baby would bring him to his senses. Perhaps he is too young to realize what it means?"

"I have tried everything, from angry protests to tearful pleas. Nothing does any good. I love him dearly, and I would hate to break up a happy marriage because of this. If you can help me, please do."

The Hard Way

At this time there is nothing more you can do to convince your husband of his responsibility. He will have to learn the hard way.

When the bills come in, they will have to be paid—obviously. That is your husband's business. He will be embarrassed and (I hope humiliated) but he has not saved his money toward this. He will have to deal himself with the hospital authorities and your physician. He may have to borrow the necessary money, and he will find out how hard it is to live on the reduced income which will result. He will not be able to buy drinks for his friends for quite a while to come, and in other ways he will have to sacrifice the indulgences to which he has accustomed himself. He will not blame. During this trying period he will be hard to live with, and you will have to use all your patience to keep up his spirits. Just when

FAN TANS are festive!

Recipe
Measure into large bowl, 75 c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar, six small eggs in shells. Beat fan-tans slowly with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes. THEN stir well. Scald 1 c. milk and stir in 5 lbs. granulated sugar. 2 beat until smooth. Add to yeast mixture and stir in 3/4 cup lukewarm water. Beat 3 c. one-cup sifted bread flour; beat well. Beat in 4 the melted shortening. Work in 2 c. more one-cup sifted bread flour. Knead until smooth and elastic; place in greased bowl and brush top with melted butter or shortening. Cover and set in warm place, free from drafts. Punch down dough in bowl. Grease top and let rise again until nearly doubled. Punch down dough and roll out half at a time into a rectangle a scant 1/4" thick; lift dough, cover with cloth and let rest 5 mins. Brush with melted butter or shortening; cut into strips 1 1/2" wide. Fill 7 strips together; cut into 13 1/2" pieces. Place outside up in greased muffin pan; separate slices a little at the top. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in hot oven, 400°, 15-20 mins.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. What are the bridegroom's expenses for a wedding?
A. The marriage license, a wedding present for his bride, a personal gift for his best man and each of his ushers, the bride's bouquets, the wedding ring, clergyman's fee, and the expenses of the honeymoon trip. If he desires, the bridegroom may purchase the bouquets for the bridesmaids, but he is not obligated to do so, and these are usually the expense of the bride or her parents.

Q. Is the correct form of introduction, "This is Mr. Smith, Miss Brown," or "Miss Brown, this is Mr. Smith?"
A. The latter form is correct, as the woman's name should always be spoken first.

Q. Should the escort of a woman acknowledge the courtesy if, when entering a crowded streetcar or bus, another man gives up his seat to the woman?
A. Yes, by all means. He should lift his hat in acknowledgement, or if he is not wearing a hat, he should nod his head and say, "Thank you."

It's so different today

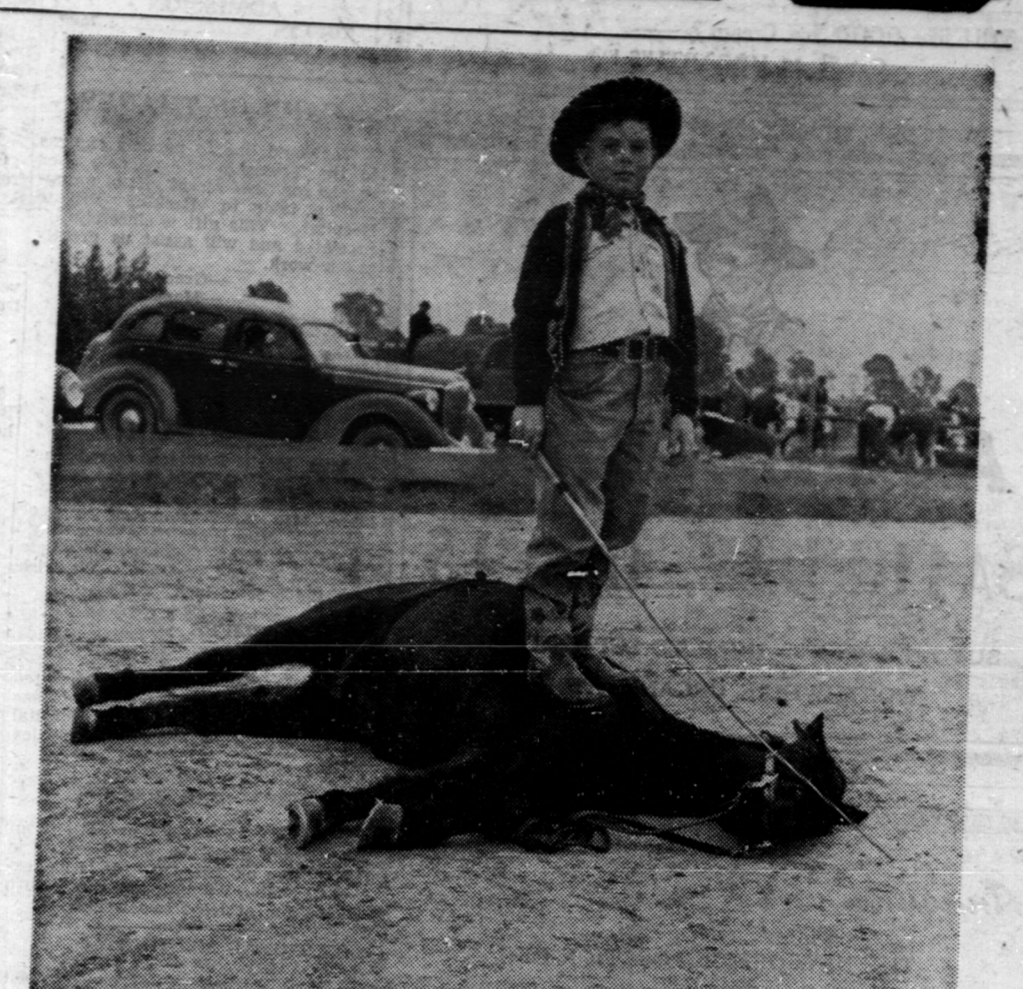

Time was no object to Cleopatra when her slave attendants served breakfast. The Cleo of today must be quick off the mark. So no wonder Mother makes the cereal-lazy, eat-up-right, Made with two grains—wheat and barley—to give you that glorious Grape-Nuts flavor in crisp, golden flake form. Ask your grocer for Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes.
