The Yankees, for instance, although they went into the series badly handicapped physically, were generally believed to be a "smart" club—one that knew all the answers.

So what do we find them doing? In the fourth game singles by Phil Rizzuto and Tommy Henrich—the old reliable—put Yankee runners on first and third. Yogi Berra trickled one down to Minko and Rizzuto, trying to duck Campanella's tag, stepped off the baseline, something which even a third-grade schoolboy would know.

Field must do something to even smart ball-players. Still, if it had been Babe Herman, or some of the famous demerits of old, that indulged in that sort of base-running, it would have gone down in the books as still another example of Dodger dumbness.

So the ultra-smart Yankees, in that one frame, had a total of two walks and two hits, yet nary a run. Of course it happened in Brooklyn.

Do You Know... where the name "hockey" came from?

The word 'hockey' is derived from the 'hooked stick' with which the game is played, from the Old French word 'hoquet', meaning 'shepherd's crook'.

Do You Know... that the general idea of ice hockey is not original with Canada? Many 16th and 17th century Dutch paintings show a game something like hockey being played with a stick shaped like a golf club.

Do You Know... that there are sharp differences of opinion as to exactly when and where the first ice hockey games were played in Canada? Although Kingston, Halifax and Montreal are most often mentioned in this connection, available records seem to suggest that the first organized games were played around 1881, between the Victoria Hockey Club and McGill University teams, in Montreal, and in Kingston between the Royal Military College and Queens University.
