Pen, Scissors and Pastepot

There has been so much painting done around the Village this past summer we have been quite unable to keep up with the scores. It might be better to report that practically every house and place of business in the whole Village has been retouched in some respect. It beats all what the Board of Trade can accomplish when it puts its heart to work.

There isn't much happening these days that doesn't pertain to the Centennial Celebration. While there are still a few who regard it as just another event in the scheme of things, the great majority recognize it as a great historical birthday and have entered into the spirit of things with zest. Jarvis has been lucky to have the guidance of Art Blight as general chairman. He has the ability to grasp the significance of an event of this sort and also the ability to mastermind the thousand and one details that must be looked after to guarantee success. The community is indebted to him.

We never knew that our old friend Clyde Corrigall, practiced the art of masonry in his younger days. The other evening we saw a picture of the teacher and pupils at S.E. No. 17 out that Clyde was the teacher. It was one of his former pupils that showed us the picture and he also let us in on one of the secrets of Clyde's popularity with the students. It seems he did a bit of trapping along the Nanticoke Creek and if his traps brought forth a fairly good yield, it would sometimes delay his arrival at school in the mornings. We have no evidence to show, however, that it proved in any way detrimental to the future success of his students, and at the same time it probably provided a needed supplement to the salary school teachers received in those days.

In our efforts to dig up historical lore it has been significant to find from the text "And ye Would have turned up about Jarvis. It is the Jarvis Bins who made a name for themselves in the year 1950. It is only a prediction of course, at this time, but it would appear very likely they will capture the Ontario Championship before snow flies this year. They are exhibiting a marvelous team spirit and that's what it takes to make a championship nine in softball.

When another Centennial rolls around those who are concerning themselves with events of the past will probably have something to say about the Jarvis Bins who made a name for themselves in the year 1950. It is only a prediction of course, at this time, but it would appear very likely they will capture the Ontario Championship before snow flies this year. They are exhibiting a marvelous team spirit and that's what it takes to make a championship nine in softball.

one of their other players is also not in the lineup.

The old proverb that "a stitch in time, saves nine" was practically proven at a recent game in Jarvis. Just when we had a chance to be a hero or something, we discovered we had left our sewing kit at home. Oh well, she probably didn't want our help anyway.

What's the matter with the Jarvis Juveniles? Just when we figured they should win their league championship, they go into a tailspin. Since we wrote the league standings they have just taken another defeat from their rivals. However several people have predicted this would happen (ourselves included) as soon as the other teams started to play better ball. Come on, boys you can still win the title.
