"They suggest that night haress-racing can be operated on any ntario track, exclusive of the seven major running-horse tracks men-tioned earlier in this review. The truth of the matter is that pariutuel wagering is administered by the federal government, under the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada. In other words, no NIGHT harness-racing meeting could be operated in Ontario unless the sponsors (be they in Clinton, Stratford, or Markham, etc.) are in possession of a charter issued prior to March 20, 1912. "It is essential that this point should not be forgotten when the subject of harness-racing is under discussion.

. . . "I am quite satisfied that the in troduction of night harness-racing to Ontario would triple the value of Standard Breds in this province. "As an example; at one United States sale last year 431 yearlings were auctioned at an average price of $1210. I must emphasize that these yearlings came from all types of farms—large and small.

"In this machine age, when work-horses are being slaughtered for dog-meat, all the horse-power that is required on a small farm still would be a pair of Standard Bred mares. If the farmer raised five charming designs in this year's greeting cards being sold by UNICEF—the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund—for the benefit of needy youngsters throughout the world. They are only one colt each year and could sell it for the above-mentioned price of $1210 it would prove very profitable.

Eagle Carries Off Farmer's Baby

The terrific power in eagle's talons was grimly demonstrated re-cently when a Highland shepherd, bending to look at an eagle which had been shot and wounded, was attacked by the bird. It fixed one set of its talons in the shepherd's neck and would not release its grip until its foot was shorn off. Hares, wild cats and rabbits die quickly from the constriction of the eagle's talons alone. The grip is a locking one. When the bird bends its legs to take a hold, a ribbon-like muscle at its knee locks its grip, which can only be relaxed by the extension of the bird's limbs. the extension of the bird's limbs.
