We're always intrigued by those stories of athletes who have devoted their lives to perfecting technique in their favorite sport, and a young man named Ernie McCulloch, native of the little Quebec city of Three Rivers, undoubtedly comes in that category. Here, we believe, is one of the really great Canadian athletes of our time, and even though warm suns are shining on the grass and the trees are in leaf, we feel we should devote a column to

McCulloch climaxed a brilliant career last winter when he McCulloch climaxed a brilliant career last winter when he captured the ski-ing "Grand Slam," never accomplished before by Canadian, American or European for that matter.

His plenomenal feat began when he captured the National Giant Slalom at Alta, Utah, followed with a smashing victory in the Aspen North American championships. He went on from there to capture top honors in the National Downhill championships at White Fish, Montana, and his final triumph was in the Harriman Cup at Sun Valley.

When you consider he was competing against the very best in North America, and a field that included a sprinkling of former European champions, you get a quick vision of his greatness. When McCulloch began his ski-ing career at the ripe age of the years, he started practice jumping on a hill behind his me, and by the end of his first season, was jumping 40 feet.

By the time he was 13, he had already captured schoolboy jumping meets in Montreal, Toronto, Quebec City and Ottawa. The long, lean youngster already had made a name for himself in the Three Rivers Ski Club with a record jump of 114 feet. At this stage of the game, McCulloch began slalom and down-hill work. At 15 he entered the downhill race in the Quebec City championships and finished second.

There's no such thing as ski-ing cautiously with Ernie. It's go-go-go from start to finish. His record of 56 seconds down the precipitous slopes of Mount Baldy in Sun Valley, is still a challenge precipitous slopes of Mount Baldy in Sun valley, is suil a chairinge for other stars. One young racer who completed the gruelling grind in a little over a minute remarked: "I don't see how anybody could possibly have gone faster than I did today without breaking his neck." Ernie didn't break his neck but was a full four seconds better than the aspirant to his title.

In 1949 Ernie rode to International glory on specially-designed, self-constructed skiis. He beat the entire French team, consisting of Henri Creiller, George Panisset and Coutet. McCulloch won the Harriman cup again this year and if he wins again, becomes the only skier in history to take the award

All this being so, we thought we'd write a column about a great Canadian athlete who has been overlooked.

The team prospered-and so did and a new generation discovered the club. It was a decade of loose the little man with the rasping money and racketeers. "To pre-vent gunplay on the premises," records Gene Fowler in "Schnozzola," his biography of Durante, "Clayton made it a rule that all marksmen had to turn in their side arms on entering the room." But there were frequent brawls, and peace-loving Jimmy would disappear to all-night cafes, waiting till things had quieted down. Several times in his money making career Jimmy was threatened by gangsters, but Lou Clayton knew the underworld and saw that the comedian was well protected. During Prohibition gangsters weren't the only people after Jim-my. The police arrested him for selling liquor, but sentence was suspended with the warning that if ever he was caught serving another drink, he would have to go to jail. Jimmy never erred again. Clayton, Jackson and Durante split up when Jimmy was offered a personal contract in Hollywood nearly twenty years ago. Clayton became his manager and Jimmy began his film career. But he made a series of bad pictures which did nothing to enhance his carrer, so he decided to return to the stage for a while.

"What Elephant?" In 1935 he opened in a Broad-way show which was a smash hit. Jimmy recalls that before the first night was particularly worried about one line that he had to deliver. On stage with an enormous live elephant that he was supposed to be stealing, a sheriff walked on and when N. R. Crump (right), now vice-president of the C.P.R., was studying for his Bachelor of Science degree at Purdue

University, Lafayette, Ind., and was renewed in 1936 while

Mr. Crump was locomotive foreman at Moose Jaw, Sask., and was working on his thesis for his Mechanical Engineer's degree. His subject, "Internal Combustion Engines in the Railroad Field," was one that required a study of facts that were almost unobtainable at that time. Mr. Crump turned to the reports of Dr. George Vladimir Lomonosoff (lefi), a Russian mechanical engineer who had designed a diesel locomotive as early as 1909, and had one in operation in 1923, to get the information he needed. The 76-year-old Dr. Lomonosoff, whose son is a resident engineer with the Montreal Locomotive Works, has been living so quietly in Montreal for the past two years, that it was only recently that Mr. Crump learned of his presence in the city and arranged an interview. Modern C.P.R. diesel

Langley, Wash, drive into his lavcultivator, and stir the litter in a pen 36' x 100'. It took him just 10 minutes to make two rounds around the island, and the job was done. He didn't have to move a feeder, or dodge a waterer.

What happened to the 1,500 hens in the house? They just ran ahead of the tractor, or jumped up on the island. Peterson does the chore once a week, and the birds are used to him. Another poultryman using an
