THE LIARS' BENCH

By Lewis Milligan
LIKE MANY good, had and indifferent Canadians, I went a-fishing on my holidays, and have returned with the usual fish stories which my friends insist upon my relating. This curiosity on the part of friends, and even strangers out on the lake, is a peculiar thing. Your friends will look you in the eye and say: "Well, how was the fishing?" You feel that the question is put in the form of a challenge, as much as to say, "Now, come on, tell the truth: none of your fish stories." One hates to disappoint them, or to admit, if the fishing has been no good, that one has spent two weeks dangling a hook or casting a plug in mysterious waters and has caught little or nothing. The temptation to lie is irresistible and the best one can do is to tell the truth with a little elaboration "intended to give artistic verisimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative."
I would not go so far as to say that all fishermen are liars, but they all have a tendency to exaggerate or romance a little, and even loyal members of the angling fraternity, when they foregather, accept each other's stories with more than the proverbial grain of salt. I am reminded of a cartoon which appeared in Punch many years ago, depicting an angler returning from a fraternal dinner along a country lane at dusk. He had evidently dined unwisely and too well and was peering through the gloom at a scarecrow with arms outstretched over a fence. "Liar!" he said.

Socrates said this in 436 B.C.: "When I was a boy it was considered honorable to create an estate, but now one must apologize for any success in business as if it were a violation of the moral law. So today it is worse to seem to be prosperous than to be an open criminal!"

Somewhat like the pious description of the Southerner who told us that his town "is one of the oldest places in the country."

A bit of news from south of the border is that 3,832 persons drawing more than a total of $17,000,000 a year in federal salaries are being listed in the "White House" and Public Relations." This may have prompted an inquiry from a friend, who asked: "What are Public Relations?" People on Relief?"

Having written of the salomanity of Larry B. Pond a few months ago, we are among that growing body of people who get their entertainment from the relaxing atmosphere of their own hearts. We can't say we have ever regretted being influenced by the graduate of the Ryerson Institute of Technology. Our opinions of Television have been formed, to this date, by the offerings of a couple of U.S. Stations. However, in the near future, we expect to be able to judge on the offerings of the Canadian Talent emanating from the C.B.L.T. studios, at Toronto, for a reported yearly fee of $1500.

In the meantime we have greatly appreciated the U.S. program which our friendly neighbors to the south have been slipping in from the "tube." We suppose, however, that the "honey-moon" can't last forever.

In view of the fact we will probably have to pay for our Canadian entertainment through the medium of the television set which we have accepted the invitation last Monday for a preview of the new Television outlet at C.B.L.T. in Toronto. The preview was arranged to let the "Press" know just what has been

Hands Across the Border
The United States and Canada exchange more products across their 3,000-mile border than any other two countries in the world. The large share of that trade is in farm commodities, and it has been a fairly even exchange.

Total agricultural trade with Canada increased from about $100,000,000 in 1935 to $635,000,000 in 1951. Cotton is the leading export item.

Most animals and plants have constituted a large part of our imports in past years but these imports have been drastically cut this year because of the ban resulting from outbreaks of hoof-and-mouth disease in Canada.

HOLSTEIN TO CHLE
Eleven Holstein bulls were loaded at Malton airport near Toronto for shipment to Chile in a big Canadian cargo plane this week. It was the first shipment by air of Canadian cattle since last February's embargo, imposed due to last winter's outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

The bulls were purchased by the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, a joint project of the Chilean and U.S. governments. The animals were selected by Ishmael Jordan of Santiago just before the Canadian National Exhibition, where some of them won ribbons.

FROST ON TOBACCO
First report of frost damage in Ontario tobacco-growing areas came this week from Princeton, near Simcoe, where farmers estimated loss in thousands of dollars. One farmer reported loss of the equivalent of nine kilos of tobacco, and another farmer said the equivalent of four kilos was destroyed.

INDUSTRIAL ATOM
Ross Strife, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission said at Edinburgh this week that Ontario will be harnessing atomic power for industrial purposes within 10 years.

Mr. Strife told a meeting of the district Municipal Electric Association that atomic power had high potentiality in hydro's plan for the future. Hydro's plans were first power development along the Niagara River; second, the St. Lawrence power project, and third, harnessing of the atom for industrial uses.
