ASSIST TO NATURE — —

THERE ISN'T A SCHOOLBOY who hasn't heard of Niagara Falls, one of the modern world's scenic wonders. Grownups know of it, too, as a source of hydro-electric power, of its attraction for honeymooners to say nothing of stunt artists from all over the world.

But only those who have visited the cataract have a full appreciation of what the Ontario government has accomplished in preserving the historic and scenic areas above and below the Falls.

Less than a century ago the vicinity of the Falls had taken on the aspects of a colossal carnival. Peddlers hawked their wares and sideshows were filled with freaks brought from far and near.

Today the Niagara Parks Commission administers parklands bordering the Canadian bank of the Niagara River from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, a distance of 35 miles.

United States visitors come to the Canadian side for a panoramic view of the cataract. They stand to wonder at the beauty of the park lands along the splendid Niagara Boulevard which follows the entire length of the wildly-rushing river from the Falls to Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Right at the Falls is Queen Victoria Park, saved from exploitation nearly 100 years ago. Nearby, the Oakes Garden Theatre, four acres of rock-gardens, lily ponds, terraces, promenades, flower beds, shrubbery and an amphitheatre, overlooks the American cataract. It was given by the late Sir Harry Oakes and has been called "man's offering to the majesty of Niagara."

But all allong the winding gorge highway to the historic shores of Lake Ontario, once the scene of North American warfare, are evidences of the commission's inspired planning.

There is the natural beauty of the Niagara Glen with its rare plants, ferns, trees and flowers. In a beautiful park setting at Queenston Heights is the towering monument to Sir Isaac Brock, hero of the war of 1812.

At every turn the visitor is fascinated by the magnificence of nature and by the historic sites of one of the oldest continuously settled parts of Ontario.

THE NEWSPAPER EDITOR—

The newspaper editor stood at the Pearly Gates
His face was lined and old,
He stood before the man of Fate.
For admission to the fold,
"What have you done ?" St. Peter said,
"To gain admission here."
"I've been a newspaper editor," he replied,
"For many and many a year."
The Pearly Gates swung open wide,
St. Peter rang the bell,
"Come in and choose your harp," he said,
"You've had your share of Hell."

"Teen-age girls, screaming and clapping their hands, gathered near the North York Police Station and chanted "we want Boyd." Constables dispersed them with some difficulty."

The paragraph above was taken from a G. & M. story on the recapture of the Boyd gang. We wish we had a better understanding of humanity.

Otto King writes a story in the Simcoe Reformer this week telling about a telephone call from George Drew in answer to one he had placed in August 1948. Apparently the message on the Leader of the Opposition's desk had the time and the date but not the year and somehow turned up in a current file. All very interesting indeed. But we fail to understand the point of Otto pointing out in the story that he is not of the same political affiliation as Mr. Drew. It shou'd illustrate to him, however, that the affairs of the nation would be in good hands if entrusted to one who gives such attention to detail.

In spite of the nice educational programme the Bell Telephone Company conducts to train people in correct telephone procedure, says the Alcan Ingot, far too many people act like complete nuts when a telephone is placed in their hands.

They scream into it or mumble into it, they slam the receiver down in your ear. they let it ring and ring be. fore answering it, they get a wrong number and hang up on the poor unsuspecting guy who answered the phone without so much as an apology.

In short they do the very things they would find unbearable in others but never give their behaviour a second thought — just because its a telephone they have in their hands.

Canadans don't seem to be a willmaking people. In fact, the reports of ons large Insurance Co. indicate that only one Canadian in nine has drawn up and signed a testament to assure that his property will be disposed of as he wishes. Of course, a large number of Canadians are under twenty-one and are therefore not able to make a will legally unless they are members of the armed forces. But that still leaves a lot of people who are inviting confusion and even trouble for their heirs.

ON THE FARM FRONT

— By Haldimand Harry —

(Intended for last issue)

Preliminary estimates for the yield of the 1952 winter wheat crop in Haldimand would seem to indicate a somewhat reduced acreage but a slightly higher yield per acre with the net result that the 1952 crop was up by about 20,000 bushels. The 1951 figures show a total area of 28,741 acres with an average yield of 22 bushels per acre giving a final total yield of 633,800 bushels. On the other hand the 1952 estimate shows 24,200 acres, average yield of 27 bushels and total yield of 653,400 bushels.

-oOo-

Butter production in Haldimand increased by over 40,000 lbs. during July as compared with the same month last year. This is rather surprising at first sight and especially in view of the dry pasture condition that prevailed. The only explanation that can be offered without knowing the facts is that some cream must have been diverted from some other part of the industry, most likely because of restricted markets. In any case the butter production for July was 159,195 lbs. as compared with 113,180 lbs. during the same month of 1951.

-oOo-

The grade of hogs produced in Haldimand during August took an awful beating. About 500 more hogs were sent to market last month than during the corresponding month of 1951 but the percentage of top grade hogs dropped from 36.57 per cent down to 28.97 per cent. This is another new low for Haldimand County. A total of 1557 hogs went to market but only 451 were in grade A. A year ago 1039 hogs were sold but 389 of them fell into the top grade. On the other hand 42.05 per cent of the hogs sold in August were in grade B1 whereas this year 48.23 per cent were in this second grade. There were, however, almost four times as many hogs in the C grade this year as there were last.

-oOo-

September is always considered one of the worst fly months of the year and unless something unforseen happens, 1952 is not likely to be any exception. Unfortunately most of the newer types of fly control seem to have lost their "magic". This does not necessarily mean that we should drop the use of insecticides entirely but we should not depend so much on them taking the place of other good practices. It is feared that this has been the case too often. One of these practices is, of course, good sanitation.

-oOo-

In reality there can be no real effective fly control without a corresponding clean-up around the premises. The breeding places must be destroyed in order to reduce the population to the limits where insecticides can take over. Where farm operations will permit, manure should be taken out at least once a week and spread on the land. Fresh manure should be taken out first. Spraying the manure pile is not recommended as this tends to build up the resistance of the flies more rapidly and to a greater degree.

-oOo-

With pastures in Haldimand pretty well dried up there is a possibility of the aftermath of alfalfa looking mighty tempting during the next six or eight weeks. This is just a warning to give those alfalfa fields the best possible chance this fall if you expect to get top production next year. It is generally recommended that to maintain vigorous alfalfa stands all pasturing and cutting should cease shortly after the reserves in its roots in order to carry it through the winter and to get the first killing frost which will off to a good start next spring. Fall atop growth a limited amount of pasturing unless it is very carefully pasturing may be permitted. Alfal done will prevent this and damage fa needs a period for storing food is likely to result.

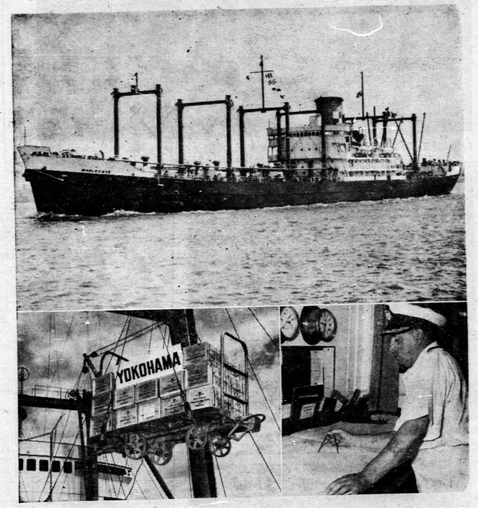
★ FAR EAST BOUND ★



To the Canadian Pacific Steamships' 10,000 ton cargo vessel Maplecove goes the honour of being the first company ship to return to Pacific service since World War II. The ship, which sailed from Montreal recently, is headed for Vancouver, where she will take on the balance of her cargo. The route for the new service will be between Tacoma, Seattle, Vancouver, Yokohama, Kobe, Manila, Cebu, Hong Kong and Nagoya, and late in September the Maplecove will be joined by her sister ship Mapledell, to offer a monthly service between these ports. Formerly the Beaverdell and Beavercove, both these vessels were on regular C.P.S. Atlantic service before the changeover. Lower right shows Maplecove's skipper Captain R. A. Leicester, of Vancouver, in the chartroom of his ship, studying the route the vessel will sail, while lower left shows a cargo sling with a load of Canadian produce bound for Yokohama, Japan being loaded on the ship at Montreal. All-Canadian crews will staff the two ships.
