WRATH IS INVOKED—When the weather fails to cooperate for the Victoria Day Celebration it only means a lot of added work for the sponsor, but it also means a disappointing day for the boys and girls who always look forward to the occasion with great anticipation. We found that the young members of our own family took a dim view of the weather.

of our opinion that the show must be cancelled off but no dire threats were involved. Such was not the case with the President of the Lions Club. When his son and heir heard him announce the celebration would not take place he informed his father if he persisted in that decision he would get the Government after him!

AVENGES—The speaker was in the educational end of the United Nations organization. He was telling of the difficulties that no face in getting the inhabitants of the globe to understand their own language. How can they, "when How many do you know who go to not hungry every night of their lives? Let half the people of the world went to bed or to what passes for a bad dinner last night!"

CORONATION SUPPLEMENT

Taxpayers Don't Bear Royal Household Costs

Income From Duchy Of Cornwall Greatly Exceeds Annual Expenses

The Civil List—as the authorized payments to the Royal Household are called—provide an annual sum of $475,000 to meet the cost of what is probably one of the most complicated "organizations" in the world.

It looks like a lot of money, but since the value of the pound has more than halved since the days of King Edward VII, who received $470,000, it is clear that the present Sovereign must make do on half the original income.

The next point to be perfectly clear about is that this sum is not personal income. It maintains not simply a royal household but a complex, smoothly-running organization which is a vital and valued part of the Commonwealth.

"Her Majesty's Household" is a broad, general term which encompasses the state and constitutional machinery that recently reported on the scope and burden of the Sovereign's duties. Royal visits within Britain are an enormous expense. The number of public functions increases. There are more official visitors to receive, for instead of only one Commonwealth Government there are when they visit Britain. The number of Ambassadors accredited to the Court of St. James grows larger every year.

George effected many economies, and the Select Committee of the Royal Household run with an economical efficiency which some business houses might well envy, but considering its complexity and heavy responsibilities, it costs extraordinarily little.

It is far less than the cost of a battleship. It costs less in a year than the British people gamble in a single week. Dukes, and a mere pittance compared with the personal incomes of some Eastern potentates whose names are not even known to the man in the street.

Her Majesty's Household does not pay a penny toward the expenses of the Royal Household. The Queen, who is entitled to the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, foregoes that income, presenting it to the Sovereign and receiving instead a grant by way of the Civil List.

Now the income from the Duchy of Cornwall, amounting to a total of $12,000,000, far from costing the nation $475,000, in fact makes the nation a creditor for the very much more than that.

How does the money go? The estimates are:

Her Majesty's Privy Purse	60,000
Salaries of Her Majesty's Household	185,000
Expenses of Her Majesty's Household	121,800
Royal Bounties, Alms and Special Services	13,200
Supplementary provision	96,000
Components of "Household"	20,000

Of what does the "household" consist? One can hardly define it precisely, because some of the Sovereign's servants, while an important part of the entourage, do not actually live at the Palace; others hold office by tradition but in practice have little connection with the Court.

"Household" for instance, includes the Keeper of the Jewel House at the Tower of London and the Yeomen of the Guard are equally Royal servants.

Broadly speaking, the Royal Household consists of a number of departments, each with a head. Some servants whose office is of extreme antiquity and who figure in the most important of functions are not paid anything but a nominal wage. The Herald, for instance, whose office goes back to Pre-Roman times, and who figures in Parliament and the State opening ceremony, receive for their highly decorative duties only a few pounds a year—less than an energetic charwoman can earn in Britain nowadays by scrubbing floors. Similarly, many "servants" give their services free and are proud and glad to do it.

Treasury Expert—Sir Ulick Alexander, recently appointed Treasurer of the Privy Purse and Treasurer to the Queen, has held the post since 1936, and has served the Royal Family in various capacities for over 20 years. Looking always immaculate and

Warriors Will Escort The Queen On Entry Into Westminster Abbey
 By Peter Whitehead (London Daily Mail)

The men who led Britain's fighting forces in the war have been chosen to walk beside the Queen when she enters the Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day.

In January the Earl Marshal announced the names of those who have been chosen for the Queen's Procession of France, of the Western Desert, in the air, and at sea.

The chief honour, of walking in front of the Queen carrying the St. Edward's Crown, has been given to Admiral Sir Charles Cunningham, war-time Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean and First Sea Lord. His appointment as Lord High Steward is made for Coronation Day alone.

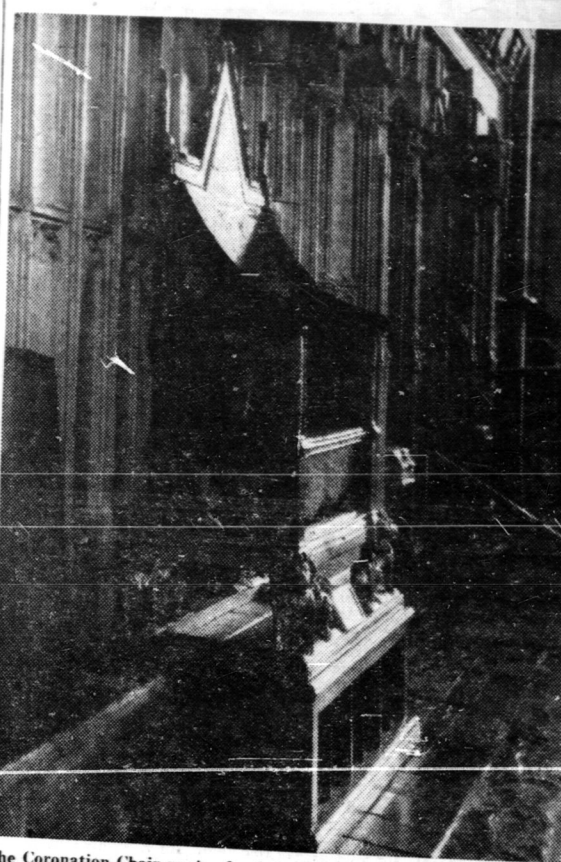

Field-Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein will carry the Royal Standard. The Sceptre with the Lion, which contains one of the largest diamonds in the world, will be borne by Marshal of the R.A.F. Viscount Portal, who was head of Bomber Command and Chief of the Air Staff during the war.

The office of Lord High Constable of England, which Duke of Wellington, at three successive Coronations by the great Count Alanbrooke, the war-time Chief of the Imperial General Staff, will be held in the procession by the Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk.

The Standard of Ireland
 The Orb, a golden globe surmounted by a jeweled cross, will be carried into the Abbey by Field-Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, or at the end of the war.

Others in the procession who have distinguished services to their country are Lord Dufferin and Dudley, V.C., who will carry the Standard of Ireland; and three holders of the Standard of the Military Cross: the Earl of Derby, Viscount Alsenale, and Earl Forbes. The Standard of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will also be part of the procession.

The Union Standard will be borne in the procession by Captain J. L. M. Dymoke, whose ancestors have taken part in Coronations since the 14th century. Up to the Coronation of George IV the head

The Coronation Chair made of oak in 1300-1301 has been used at every Coronation for the Crown. It is the oldest of the Monarch since the first made was erected with oak in 1217 and 18th century decorations and glass mosaics.
