• For some reason or other we've always been on the side of the underdog, no matter what the sport. You would hardly call Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox home-run hitter, an underdog, especially if you recalled his salary. But we were griped, on occasional visits to the Boston bail-park, by the almost vicious fashion in which Williams was greeted when he flelded a ball, or came to bat. We never understood why such a truly-great athlete should receive such seurcy treatment, and felt it a tribute to willhams' courage, and tenacity, that he should continue to star in the face of such mysterious hostility.

Perhaps it will be different in coming seasons for the splendid Splinter, as the tall, slim batter has been termed,

When told Williams was on that plane, a serviceman is said to have cracked: "I know who'll be in one of those bunks when the plane lands."

After the plane landed, a sports writer picked up a hitchmg sailor who had come from Hawaii on the same plane
"What sort of man is Williams?" the writer asked.

"What sort of man is Williams?" the writer asked.

"A completely right guy," was the answer.

"What did he do?" prodded the writer.

"Well, he came aboard with an armful of magazines and dropped them around for us to pick up and read."

"Where did he sleep?"

"He just piled on the floor with the rest of us."

And from Washington, D.C., we got another Ted Williams story that belies the claim that he's indifferent to requests, gruff and disobliging.

A baseball fan named Jim McNally, a great admirer of Williams wrote Ted asking for a couple of autographs for Williams wrote Ted asking for a couple of autographs for

A basebail fan hained of McNaily, a great admirer of Williams, wrote Ted asking for a couple of autographs for himself and his son, Jim Jr., former Washington-Lee High School sports star. Ted replied with two signed photos just three days after the request. Like Ted, both the McNailys are ex-Marines.

Williams was Captain Williams of the U.S. Marines. He took no more, as he flew back from the battle-front, than was available for all others, enlisted or otherwise, so we feel pretty sure we're not alone in hoping that Captain Ted Williams regains his eye, his swing and his speed quickly enough to hit .400 for the Boston Red Sox in the years to come, a hope that seems well grounded, for he was clipping off home-runs in his former brilliant fashion, soon after rejoining his club. These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter.
