ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: A dozen years ago I married the only son of middle-aged parents. At first they resented me, and only through my thoughtful consideration for their comfort and enjoyment have I finally won a place in their hearts. We all love each other dearly. . . . But now his parents are really old and not well. We are very much concerned. They need extra care that I'd be glad to give, if they would make it a little easier.

"They still live in the family home, three miles from the herd road and a mile from neighbors. It is lovely in summer, but during bad weather it is almost impossible to get in or out except on foot. They still farm with old-time tools and methods, and though it is an 11-room house they live in the most primitive fashion.

TOO FAR AWAY

"Some years ago they wanted us to remodel a barn they have on their place and move there, so we could help make the farm pay." They would have meant my husband's giving up a fine position he had held for nine years, and out two miles would have had to walk to the hard road and ride miles to a consolidated school.

"It is selfish to want them to move closer to us? Or is that asking too much? They insist we are young yet, and can start over again after they are gone. They only want to be let alone to live their remaining years at home, and walk the distance for help, and need extra hands. . . . It is a heavy worry, knowing that next winter they will live under such handicaps, so far away from anybody in case of emergency.

"We are hoping you will give us an unbiased view of a too-close problem. . . . I have often found your advice so useful, though it has been directed to others."

WORRIED READER

I do not wonder that you and your husband are so concerned with his family's welfare. If either or both his parents were taken ill during bad weather they could not walk the distance for help, and it could mean the difference between life and death; considering the danger, any other considerations seem insignificant. If it is possible to move them nearer to you, even considering the higher cost of food and living expenses, their lives might well be prolonged and certainly made far more comfortable.

The only other solution would be to pay someone to stay with them, and since they have no modern conveniences that would be very difficult to arrange.

It does sound cruel to uproot two elderly people from their home. I understand what a wrench it would mean for them to leave it; there they are surrounded by all the precious belongings they have accumulated through the years. Yet for their own safety, and the promise of more years together, I hope your husband can persuade them to move.

Surely they should not expect your husband to give up his career at his age, and take up farming, for which he is neither fitted nor capable. The children's difficulties in attending school could be faced, but to set them down in such an isolated spot would separate them from all their young friends and deprive them of the social life so essential to growing girls.

Loving consideration for the aged is a mark of breeding and character. Problems do arise, however, that require all one's tact and practical sense. If you are facing one, let Anne Hirst's really believe. Write her at Box 1, 123 Eighth Street, New Toronto, Ont.

PICASSO'S FAVORITE—Sylvette David, 19, holds a portrait of herself sketched by famed artist Pablo Picasso. She has posed for Picasso's last 13 paintings, which are currently on display in a Paris art gallery. Sylvette lives in Vallauris, France, where her father directs an art gallery.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM Quadrangle D. Clarke

Last week was just one thing after another. Monday morning when Partner went down to the barn he found a neighbour's three-year-old bull in among our cows. To get the cows in the stable and keep the bull out, without being sore in the attempt, was a nice little problem. That was the opportunity. Partner let Tippy go and let the bull in. At one time the bull and one or two heifers wandered through the gate into the back lane. That was the opportunity. Partner let Tippy go and she immediately started the bull could be higher cost of food and living expenses, their lives might well be prolonged and certainly made far more comfortable.

Thursday afternoon I spent a considerable amount of time trailing back and forth to the mailbox for a paper that wasn't there, which didn't please me.

ODDS and ENDS . . . --- MOSTLY ODD

CROCODILE TAKES OVER BANK GUARD

Many and varied are the gadgets and burglar-proof devices designed to prevent money passing out of banks during non-business hours, but unique is the night "watchman" attached to the bank in Darwin, Australia.

Each night the caretaker escorts his charge, a full-grown crocodile, from its pen and secures it by a chain beside the vault. To date no burglaries have been attempted.

MISSISSIPPI STILL AT WAR WITH AXIS

In World War II Mississippi declared its war on Germany, Italy and Japan, and officially is still at war with these countries.

And now, rather belatedly, a bill to end the state of war that was passed by the legislature in 1945. Delos Burke, a state legislator.

TATTOOS SAVED HIS SKIN

Exploring a tropical island back in the 1920s, Mr. W. D. Wardlaw was captured by ferocious head-hunters. As a preliminary to beheading him, he was stripped of his clothes — and gazed in awe and wonderment at the marks of the passing of the centuries.

WASTE NOT . . .

An elderly woman was washing the windows of her first-floor flat, when she fell backwards and landed in an open refuse bin below, thoroughly jamming herself.

TOO OFTEN UNMARRIED

"This is your final decree in this court," Judge Douglass informed either of us less than two to spend a day trailing around at the Exhibition. Later we may think differently. At present we are looking forward to Sunday and a visit from our grandson and his parents, of course.

WHY MUSIC?

Irving Thalberg, the film tycoon, tried hard to persuade the composer Arnold Schoenberg to write the score for the film "The Good Earth."

SHOCKING TALE

There is a possibility that danger lurks in the uniforms of the pretty young nurses who rustle into the wards of Canadian hospitals and the Canadian Standards Association is investigating.

Strange Beliefs Of 200 Years Ago

Look back 200 years and it will astonish you to learn of the strange beliefs current in Britain in 1744.

The man or woman who drove nails into an oak tree was believed to be considered innocent from toothache.

Nightmare could be forever banished by means of a holed stone hung at the head of a bed.

If you could obtain a chip of a gallows on which half a dozen people had been hanged and wear it round your neck in a muslin bag, you would never suffer from ague.

A ring made from the hinge of a coffin was said to be a complete cure for cramp, when worn continually for a week.

When a mother wanted to keep witches away from her child she sewed a nail, or any piece of iron or steel, into the youngster's clothes.

HER MAJESTY 'RAINS'

When film crews are shot in the streets of Italian cities, the traffic stops and everybody down town to watch — or better still, join in.

A location unit in a busy place has to do its shooting after dark, so as not to interfere with traffic and normal life. Yet at the very height of the tourist season, the ancient city of Venice allowed itself to be "occupied" for months by an Italian film director, who thinks nothing of putting a dozen restaurants out of business for a few nights or locking three trainloads of travellers in a railway station for hours.

Q. Would it be good form to begin a letter "My dear Sir," and close it with "Cordially yours?"

A. No. The beginning and ending of a letter should show the same degree of formality. "My dear Sir" is your most formal salutation, and it would be better to lose that letter with "Respectfully yours."
