in miles was indeed little. All of a sudden, Bang! A trailer tire! We made a right turn off the busy high-way. No open spaces were in sight where we might park and change our flat. To my horror as I step-ped out of the truck to inquire about an open space, I discovered two things at once. Beehives had been dropping off the trailer over a broken rack and I had lost my helper who had stepped out of the truck after nee but without a veil. It was hope less for me to try to overtake him. The absence of cracks in the build-me, but without a veil. It was hope less for me to try to overtake him. The absence of cracks in the build-me build well fitted to run. He was making the most of his adaptation. My dut ty was clearly to get the major group of bees away from people. Even slow movement forward would keep ithem in their hives if they were still aboard.
