It's rather hard for the dairy farmers to accept the fact that Canada one of the great cheese producing countries of the world, last year imported cheese worth more than it exported.

Mr. Cy Parker, an economist from the Canada Department of Agricult ure predicted rather a dismal outlook for 1956 for Canadian farmers when he announced there would be little change in the farmer's cash income from 1955 expected. There probably will be 5 per cent, greater cattle marketings but no change in price. The wheat curryover in Western Canada is the largest on record and might be relieved by factors such as crop failure and the growing of other crops such as flax and macaroni wheat.
