

Although the weatherman predicted showers for the Dominion Day Holiday on Monday, it turned out that nature provided ideal conditions for folks who got in the celebrating mood around July 1st. Port Dover, Delhi and Solihik, held celebrations during the day, and of course, the annual Caledonia Garden Party was held in the evening. No end of places to go and from our observations most everyone went.

We were happy to see that Jarvis Softball Club did their part to make the celebration a success. The local nine came home on the short end of a 2-1 decision in what must have been a thrilling ball game. Two home runs added to the excitement. One went to Johnny Edwards and John Lindsay belted the other for the winning run. These two teams met again on Saturday night of this week and there should be not less than 500 fans on the park bleachers to see this game.

Now that we have given up the oxen to weed known as cigarettes we fully expect great things to happen to make life more enjoyable. We have it on the authority of one of our fellow citizens that segregation from the weed produces amazing results. One of these is the development of the human physique. Not being one of the cult known as "the body beautiful" we fully appreciate that in our own case there is room for improvement. The fellow who is promoting this non-smoking phase in our life assures us that within two months we will have added much needed pounds and that life for us will again become that zestful, exhilarating experience that was a part of our existence a quarter of a century ago. We wouldn't be putting too much confidence into this prediction of our friend, save for the fact that he is a new man since giving up smoking a few short weeks ago. If we were not familiar with the true facts of the case we would say that he has found the fountain of youth. If dis-association with the old weed will do the same thing for us we're willing to give it a try. But we've got to have results within the prescribed time, else we are going to resume the costly habit.

C. D. Howe, the central figure in Parliament's bitterest fight as much as a kid in a football game.

In the current issue of Maclean's magazine, Eric Hutton reveals that despite near-hysterical criticism, Mr. Howe remained unworried. Through all the days of viciously critical debate he kept smilingly saying "his eyes were brighter than they had been for many months."

The Maclean's article reports how the pipeline issue is a guide to the character of the man himself—dogmatic, impatient and determined to have his own way at any cost.

Howe's friends, reports Hutton, admit that in 20 years of work for Canadians, he has never come close to winning wide sympathy or affection.

But in his own riding of Port Arthur (which has elected him five times in succession with comfortable majorities) the people held a nonpartisan nonpolitical "C. D. Howe Day" to celebrate his twenty years in parliament. Howe's remoteness from the heads of his party is probably due to the fact that he does not choose his political colleagues as his companions in recreation. Occasionally Howe will disappear mysteriously for three or four days and newsmen will speculate on secret international talks. He is likely to be in pursuit of Atlantic salmon, often at Col. R. S. McLaughlin's Cap Chat lodge where Howe holds the salmon record for catching a forty-pound monster.

Howe has been called everything from a national calamity to a national benefactor. "He has built his habit of power and his insistence on having his own way into an almost legendary figure," says the Maclean's article, "who is easily the most controversial living Canadian—that rare thing, a Canadian about whom other Canadians engage in earnest and evening argument, in and out of parliament."

New Hockey Prospect

Frank Dalton, 14-year-old Ontario boy, called "the hottest hockey prospect in years" by Bob Davidson, chief scout of the Toronto Maple Leafs NHL. The boy lives at Grand Bend, Ont., a small Lake Huron community 40 miles northeast of Sarnia.

Two years ago, playing in the national pee-wee tournament at Guelph, Ont., he scored 17 goals in one game. "That takes talent in any league," says Davidson. Last year, Dalton paced the Grand Bend team and Midget teams to championships in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association and scored 250 goals in the process.

Maple Leafs would be happy to see young Mr. Dalton score 50 goals a season for them in five or six years.

Ottawa AS I SEE IT

John A. Charlton, M.P. for Brant-Haldimand

Almost four years of time and some $2,400,000 of money have gone into the restoration of the Library of Parliament which was re-opened by Governor-General Massey recently. It was in August, 1952, that the damage was done. Fire broke out at a point high in the peak of the building, which is shaped roughly like a great inverted cone.

The fire, which resulted from some electrical failure, did little apparent damage to the structure and almost no damage to the contents. It was the floors of water were needed to put out the hard-to-reach blaze that took the heavy toll of the books.

The Parliament Library has about 600,000 volumes all told, of which about 400,000 were housed in the library at the time of the fire. Only 400 were lost. But rebuilding and other repairs to the thousands which were damaged by water and smoke cost almost a quarter of a million dollars.

What Mr. Massey re-opened might be called the world's most modern Victorian building. When it was discovered that the fire had weakened the structure and that far-reaching repairs would be needed, an argument arose over whether the building should be torn down and replaced with something more up-to-date or the old should be restored, unaltered in appearance inside or out.

The interior was stripped until only the shell remained and then, when the structure was found to be sound, the library was put back together again, exactly as it was before. Or so it would appear at a quick glance. But along the way, number of improvements were incorporated.

Away from the public section of the gallery, the builders went at the job of modernization with a free hand. The basement, which had been a dingy cave equipped with primitive shelving, was made into a bright (fluorescent lighting), damp-free (air conditioning) and eminently well-ordered place for the keeping of thousands of less-used volumes. Also, additional badly needed space was obtained—the library still will not be able to house all its books, however—by putting in a second below-ground floor.

The offices which are located out of sight behind the stacks around the perimeter of the library were entirely rebuilt and re-equipped. In the main chamber, improvements were more slowly introduced. Modern lighting was installed, but unobtrusively. Air conditioning ducts were slily tucked so as not to offend the Victorian decor.

But through it all, the chamber has remained aggressively 1876, which is the time when it was completed. In the rebuilding, even the excessively ornamental gas-brackets with their cut glass globes were replaced. They have no practical function; they are there as coats of arms of six Provinces, which is all the time of the coats of arms were first put up. Nova Scotia and British Columbia long ago had different coats of arms but not in the Parliament building.

Before the fire, the library was intricately patterned floor of white and cherry. There was a new floor now but it is the same as the old; the same wood, the same pattern. The elaborate white pine paneling, the gilded woodwork, the chandeliers, the bookshelves at its most beautiful and treated so that it is a thing of beauty.

The old library achieved its capacity simply by being crowded with books. The new library has a larger capacity. The new floor will go to the National Archives—when there is a National Archives—when there is a National Archives.
