

After reading the last issue of the Port Dover Maple Leaf it is obvious the Editor is out to make something of the little community at the end of the road. Apparently he has been reading about the new skyway bridge at Burlington and has decided that nothing less will do for Port Dover. He has already called into action those two fine gentlemen who represent his political riding, Raymond E. Anderson, M.P. and Hon. James N. Allan, Minister of Highways for Ontario. We think it is a great idea and can visualize the new high level bridge taking off from the top of Brant Hill and coming out somewhere near the Maple Leaf office. After all we might as well look to the future and keep this thing high enough for the ocean going vessels that will be coming up Port Dover Harbour when the sea-way is finished.

We have at hand a copy of the Calgary Herald sent along to us by the travelling Lundy's who stopped off for the stampede on their way to the West Coast. The pictures in the Calgary paper reveal why the stampede is such an attraction for those fortunate enough to see it. Apparently there are plenty of men left in the wild and woolly west yet, judging by the way they get thrown from their broncos.

The Editor of the Bright Leaf Magazine who expounded so authoritatively on our decision to quit smoking last week has quite a story in the current issue of his magazine concerning his experiences in the hospital when he was getting a broken leg.

GARNET W. I.

The Garnet Women's Institute met in the Sunday School room on Tuesday, June 10th, at 2:30 p.m. The meeting opened with the Ode, Mary Stuart, Collect and the Lord's Prayer. The president, Mrs. Mark Phillips read a poem, "Our Country". The secretary, Mrs. Ralph Phillips, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll, which was answered by naming one duty of a good citizen. The correspondence was taken care of and the visiting report given. The new visiting committee was organized.

The story gave us quite a chuckle and we feel was alone worth the price of the annual subscription. We see by the mast head the Magazine can be purchased for $1.00 per year. We can recommend it, therefore, to anyone locally who may be looking for additional reading matter.

Should parents go to church even if they don't believe in it—just for the sake of their children? This was one of the searching questions asked of a panel of child-raising experts by writers June Caldwell and Trent Frayne (Mr. and Mrs. in private life) in Toronto recently. The panel discussion was tape recorded and is published in the current issue of Maclean's.

In answering the question on churchgoing, Mrs. March Dickens, a social worker, told the Fraynes, "I think it would be better if you asked your children to think and feel as you do. It's better if they think that the family is different from the community than they individually, are different from the family."

The panel consisted of Mrs. Dickens, Mrs. Frances Johnson, supervisor, Institute of Child Study; Dr. William Hawke, psychiatrist; Dr. Victor Johnston, general practitioner; Vernon Trot, psychologist; J. D. Ketchum, psychologist; and Dr. Gerard Hamblin, pediatrician.

On the question of drinking in front of children, Dr. Johnston said, "I think that it is most important that we should always drink openly in the family. I don't think there is anything harder on children than parents trying to hide their drinking habits."

The panel was asked to vote on whether children should be spanked for misdeeds. Six voted for spanking, with reservations, one voted against. Mrs. Johnson casting a negative vote, said, "Spanking is a crude method because it doesn't teach a child what to do, but only what not to do."

"Who should tell children about sex?" the Fraynes asked. Dr. Hamblin said the mother should, giving her children chances to discuss the matter with her. He believes the father, because of shyness, is useless to tell children about sex.

The telephone rings and everything's OK

So many of the calls you make every day say "Don't worry!" When someone has to work late, or can't keep a date, or has to cancel an appointment, the telephone lets other people know.

At times like this - whether you are making the call or receiving it - the ready reassurance provided by your telephone can be precious beyond words.

This is just one of countless examples of how your telephone pays its way, as it makes life happier, easier, more secure.

WESLEY W.M.S. PICNIC

The Wesley United Church W.M.S. picnic was well attended by mothers and children on Tuesday, July 18th. Following a short business period, Mrs. Earl Marr opened the programme with a short meditation followed by a hymn. The mission band presented a skit on temperance which was very much enjoyed. Darla Walker favoured the group with an accordion solo. Rev. J. A. Logan gave the story for the children, entitled "Banana Ice Cream". Games followed on the lawn with the C.G.I. T. in charge and a picnic lunch brought an enjoyable afternoon to a close.
