ANYONE FOR AUTOGRAPHS?-New York stockbroker John I Taeni gets assistance from his wife as they handle some of the 400 volumes which contain the fruits of his hobby-30,000 autographs. Mr. Taen owns a collection of signatures ranging from Marie Antoinette to President Eisenhower. Included are such prominent specimens as Adolph Hitler, Maria Theresa. Mussolini and Rudolph Hess. Taeni calls the hobby "my happy sickness. I am a prisoner of it."

Our geraniums are still blooming, thank goodness. We had a touch of frost last week; not enough to do any real harm but enough to get everyone worried about their gardens-just in case. Now the danger seems to be past and we can prepare ourselves to enjoy Indian summer, the maple trees already having taken on a reddish hue. By present appearances it looks as if we should have a beautiful, colourful fall. There is plenty of sap in the trees so the leaves should stay on the trees longer than they did last year. We had a desidedly dry fall then, if you remember. The leaves dropped quickly and there was little of the lovely colouring we associate with the fall season. This year the story should be different.

Another thing we are noticing . . . squirrels! More squirrels than we have seen for many years. Black, grey and red squirrels. A few days ago a big grey squirrel fell out of the Virginia creeper on to our bedroom winthe wedding ring during her dow. For a minute we wondered what on earth was coming as the furry creature slithered downwards. We are wondering what can be the meaning of this sudden increase in the number of squirrels. Where did they come rom and where will they winter? We know it is supposed to be the sign of a hard winter ahead when squirrels lay up a big store of nuts. But an increase in the squirrels themselves : . that has us puzzled. Still another surprise . . . I was poking around in the garden and what should I see but four nice buds on the Easter lily that Joy "Mrs. Carter, this is my sister, and Bob gave me last April and which I set outside after it had finished blooming. We seem to have the most erratic plants around here. A cactus that blooms at Christmas and again at Easter and now it appears we shall have Easter lillies for Thanksgiving. Partner is still busy on his "redding up" campaign. And in that connection he told me last Tuesday that he had broken up something over which I was liable to "raise Cain."

"And what was that?" I in-"The old barrel churn," he answered.

He was wrong, I didn't mind in the least. I had no sentimental attachment for that derelict piece of equipment. I was never the world's best butter-maker Probably I never had the right touch or something. I remember I used to churn and churn for ever so long-sitting, standing, reading or just merely thinking, as I worked the handle back and forth. Sometimes I would hope fully raise the lid expecting to see the cream just about ready to gather. Usually it wasn't. Many times I thought the cream was bewitched-it would get so far and no further. So, it was always with a sigh of relief that job of washing and working the butter. And last but not least, taking it down town and selling the golden prints at twenty-five cents a pound. Or was it fifteen? Anyway, since I used to regard butter-making as more or less of a necessary evil, Partner didn't get any black looks from me when he demolished the old barrel churn. Mrs. N. C., may I take this opportunity of thanking you for trying to help us with our TV problem-that is, in regard to Channel 6. It was so nice of you to write and to say so many nice things about this column, Now I am happy to report that we are finally able to get Channel 6 without any trouble at all. Not because of anything we did but because-or so we think-CBLT finally made adjustments so that viewers can now bring in Toronto quite clearly.

This may make you smile Some people have trouble with children. I have trouble with dogs. You know how it is-a mother is taking little Daughter out visiting. She gets her all prettied up in a dainty littl outfit, complete with white socks and shoes. "Now, you just sit quietly in the garden for a minute while Mummy fixes herself up," she is told. Well, nine times out of ten you know what happens. Mother comes out and

Two young couples living in France arranged a quiet double wedding in a village church. While driving to the ceremony the two brides-to-be were injured in a collision, a slight operation being necessary in each case. But they insisted on being married first and the joint cere-

Al came from Brownsville, a tough section of New York. There's a murder a day in the big city and Brownsville conibutes its full share.

He was the third son of tamily of tenement dwellers. When Al was a schoolboy his elder brothers were constantly in trouble with the law. You wouldn't say the younster was bright, but no one could question his loyalty. He was fierytempered, and it needed only a nasty remark about his brothers to send him belting into

Soon it was discovered that he had a punch above the average. When he connected with a left hook the recipient went he saw red. He rushed to the promoter's office. "What the blazes is this?" he screamed. "I don't want to be called Bummy! You take them posters down!"

"Cool off, you hothead," snapped the promoter. "You fight mmy and the fans like it. Where's your sense? As plain Al Davis you're just another fighter. As Bummy Davis you're someone. Beat it." canvas.

Al saw the logic of that. He went on to more and more wins.

After he had scored thirtyfive in a row he had a argument with another Brownsville boy and they started to settle it in the street. Someone told the promoter, who rushed over to stop the barefist battle. "Are you crazy?" he demanded of Al. "You don't fight on the street any more. Besides he's a better boxer than you - you're not in his class." "Ain't I?" said Al sullenly. "I could lick him anyway!" "All right, lick him for me - but in the ring," snapped the promoter. So many fans wanted tickets for that fight that they had to take it to Madison
