STAN BURDITT WRITES

Thursday, 9th of August. Isle of Wight.

We are now on our way early this morning, leaving Borden beach, and through Lady's Bower. It is quite a nice morning and the sun is shining through the clouds, not very much sun, but we are approaching Colesham, a little further and we will be in Portonmouth where we are going ashore. We got into the shipyards, we would like to see Nelson's Flagship, the "Victory", so we park the car and walk to the shipyard. Here we are to be disappointed due to the size of the ship, which we cannot see from where we are standing. We walk along to the Ferry Dock, and go aboard the old side wheeler that we must take to the Isle of Wight. We are crowded on board and there is hardly standing room for all of us going ashore. We get as close to the rail of the ship as we can and a little distance there are two destroyers being readied for service. Here we see a tank landing craft, a mine sweeper is tied up at the end of the pier, a gun is being used to fire at the target, a shot of the destroyers, at a distance, the gang plank is taken ashore and we must take our seats. We are told that the ship is to be used as a "Wylie" house this particular spot for one of his subjects, so of course we must take our seats. ### HALDIMAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO MEET

Miss Shimizu showed slides of Japan as she spoke. There was some discussion of the magazine, requiring a pair of pliers, finally another screen was used. Then the table was set for a social hour. The girls in charge of the meeting were Miss M. G. Dean, Caledonia, who illustrated traveltips on Venezuela. The roll call will be followed by exhibiting an old interesting song.
