Rusty, or whatever else takes their fancy. And you never dog-kennel with Rusty outside chewing a bone. Yesterday Nancy crawled through a rail fence and was discovered heading for the cows. There is never a dull moment around here these days. The rainless days have resulted in our cistern going dry that is rainless days, plus the household: plus daily baths for two small children and big washings every other day. Not that it matters - when the soft water gives out we connect the hard water to the pressure system and take it from there. That was the way Partner had it arranged when we put the bathroom in. I remember the plumber saying he had never put in a pressure system that way before and wasn't sure whether it would work. However he did as Part ner directed and it has worked out very well. Never yet have we been short of water, and in a farm home that is saying a lot since our water supply has to be shared with the livestock. We know of cases in old farm houses where pressure systems have installed without due regard to the water supply and in some cases the water gave out. Few people realise what a thirsty piece of equipment a bathespecially there is much entertaining. City visitors,, alas, invariably imagine the farm water supply to be unlimited, which can result in an embarrassing situation.

There is a lovely thick carpet of leaves on our front lawn, nice crunchy, crackly leaves that rustle as we kick our way through. Poplar, chestnut and elm,, all mixed up together by drifting winds. And of course there are chestnuts, hundreds o them. Chestnuts that somehow get carried into the house and found under kitchen chairs and living-room furniture. If they stayed under the furniture it wouldn't be so bad but occasionally they are left in the middle of the floor - and a chestnut isn't the most comfortable thing to step on in a hurry. Of course chestnuts and falling leaves bring with them a note of warning . . . a warning that if we have not already done so the time has come to replenish the oil tanks or fill up the coal bin. Even on bright, sunny days when night clouds gather there is a bite in the air that makes us welcome the comfort

Sure To Be A Favorite

This charming afternoon dress, made in sheer wool from Anne Adams new printed pattern is sure to be a favorite in any woman's wardrobe.

Soft lines and flaring skirt give it that new look of femin inity, so fashionable now and for next Spring. Note the becoming collar, the bodice with graceful yoke, the pocket detail that lends a custom made elegance.

Fashion and accurate fit are assured when making this dress with ANNE ADAMS new Printed Pattern. Because the designer's own lines and directions are printed clearly on each tissue pattern part anyone can sew and fit it like a professional dressmake. For best results our pattern designer recommends a 12-inch zipper for the placket closure. We used the Magic-Tab Talon zipper for this dress. It is light weight enough for the sheer wool, yet strong and will release caught fabric or thread like magic. Other fabrics recommended for this dress, Printed Pattern 4650, are dressy faille, bengaline, satin brocade or crepe. This Misses' pattern comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 16 requires 334 yards of 54-inch fabric or 51/8 yards of 35-inch

Rose kept her word and the nine years they were together proved the happiest and most successful of his life. She mothered three children for him and was the best "second" any man could have. She accompanied him to Carson City to see him fight Gentleman Jim Corbett for the heavyweight champion-

On the morning of the contest Mrs. Fitzsimmons retired to her hotel bedroom. Bob waited patiently for her reappearance but, as the time drew nearer for his departure to the arena, he went in search of her.

At the door of her room he paused. The sound of his wife's voice came clearly through the closed door. Rose was on her knees praying for her husband's
